Cracker-eating Relay Girls are given a cracker each and they line up in a row. Boys line up opposite and at the word "go" run to the girls opposite, receive a cracker, and return to their original places. They must eat the crackers as quickly as possible and returning to their ladies kneel before them and whistle a tune, which the lady recognizes and names. The first to name the tune wins.

Loop the Hoop The players stand in two lines of equal numbers. Each line has a wooden barrel hoop, and when the starting signal is given the one at the head of each line raises his hoop above his head and lets it drop down over his shoulders to the ground. He then steps forward and the one behind him picks up the hoop and follows his example, and so on down the line, the two lines racing, of course.

Potato Race Give each player a wooden spoon with a potato in it and have him run to a certain point and back. The potato must not be touched or dropped.

Stations The players stand in a circle, each one taking the name of a railway station in Ontario or Canada. The "brakeman" stands in the centre and suddenly calls the names of several stations. The players with the names called must change places, and the brakeman tries to slip into one of the vacant spaces during the change. If he manages to do so, the "station" who cannot find a place must become "brakeman", giving his name to the one who was "brakeman" before him. Teen age children like this particularly well.

Irish Arms If it is possible to have music this game is very interesting. Have the girls line up. Put hands on hips, alternately; first girl, right arm; second girl, left arm, etc. Have one more boy than the number of girls. Boys circle around girls to some well-known tune. When the music stops boys must grab a girl's arm, on the side he is on—no crossing through the line allowed. Odd players drop out each time, also one girl each time. Reverse and have the girls marching around boys if desired. There is much excitement when, with only one boy left, two girls are dashing madly around him seeking to secure his arm, and thus be the winner.

Timid Tossers Ladies are lined up for the toss. Each one in turn is given an indoor baseball and is asked to throw it as far as she can. The five who throw the farthest are then lined up with five of the men, and the real contest is on. The men are to throw as far as they can with their left hands, while the women try to overthrow them with their best right-handed throwing.

Dustpan Race A grassy plot is chosen for this race and eight men and eight boys. Each big racer takes a little racer as his partner, and two couples form a team. The first man of each team is given a dustpan. When the signal is given the boy sits on the dustpan with his feet under him.
