At Last

A travelling man put up one night in a cheap little hotel, where the thin partitions of a range of bedrooms, stopped half-way to the ceiling. And in the stilly watches of the night he lay awake and listened to the finest demonstration of plain and fancy snoring that it had ever been his fate to hear. It was full of sudden and awful variations. Sometimes strangulation seemed imminent; then in the middle of a fantasia of agony stopped suddenly and there was silence.

From a nearby room he heard a voice exclaim wearily: "Thank goodness. He's dead!"

The boy who slid down a 300 foot cliff to rescue a dog has good impulses but hasn't yet learned the value of life.

MOVIES

Season's Finest Acting in "Noose"

A young boy, just at college age, stands with a smoking gun in his hands. His victim is a huddled, shapeless heap on the other side of the room.

This is the dramatic punch that opens "The Noose," First National's picturization of Willard Mack's sensational stage play which comes to the Veterans' Star Theatre on Friday and Saturday.

From this tense, startling opening, the story moves swiftly through a series of dramatic incidents to the finish. "The Noose" is one of the most powerful stories ever written. It deals with life in the raw, with the underworld and its gunmen and gangmen, with justice and with politics, with sympathy and compassion.

Seldom has such a strong story been brought to the screen, and probably never with such marvelous players to enact the various roles.

Richard Barthelmess in the stellar role again demonstrates his amazing histrionic talents as Nickie Elkins, the boy. He brings to the role sympathy and understanding.

Unusual Theme

The stage play created widespread interest because of its unusual theme. The First National picture is being even more more widely discussed, for it carries to heights impossible in a spoken play.

The audience is taken backstage at a night club, then out into the crowds on the dance floor. Next to the death house in the penitentiary, and then to the governor's mansion.

Through every scene the interest is kept enthrilled, and one dramatic climax follows another.

Surrounding Barthelmess in "The Noose" is an exceptionally capable company.

Lina Basquette, former Follies dancer, is cast as Dot, the carbaret girl who remains faithful to the boy through all his trouble. Miss Basquette is not only a dancer of ability but proves herself a talented dramatic actress as well.

Alice Joyce is cast in the sympathetic role of the Governor's wife, who saves the boy from the gallows. Thelma Todd is the society budd who deserts him in hour of need. Montagu Love is the gang leader who meets death at the boy's hands.

To economize on the time spent in complaining.

To mix a little more charity with your judgments.

To spend more time getting the other fellow's viewpoint.

To depend more upon yourself and less upon others.

To look for the good in the most unpromising people.

To do these things and see how soon life grows sweeter.—Exchange.
