"WILD GESE" PICTURE COMING TO STAR THEATRE
"Wild Geese" a picturization of the famous novel by Martha Ostenso, which won the prize of $13,500 for the best novel by an American author, has been filmed by Tiffany-Stahl Productions, and will be shown for the first time here tonight, Thursday, and also Friday and Saturday nights.
Tiffany-Stahl has a splendid cast selected for the principal roles in the picture including Belle Bennett (said to be her greatest screen role) Anita Stewart, Russell Simpson, Eve Southern, Donald Keith, Jason Robards, Wesley Barry, Retta Rae, Austen Jewel, Evelyn Selbie, and a host of others.
"Wild Geese" tells the story of a family who live on a farm in Northern Minnesota, all of them the wife and four children under the complete domination of the cruel and relentless husband and father. He keeps his wife under complete subjection due to a youthful escapade of hers. The oldest daughter, Judith, after being with the pretty school teacher who boards at her house, learns of the great world outside of the farm. In love with the neighbor's son, she is thwarted in her plans for marriage by her father who fears to lose her services as a "hired man". The mother, seeking her daughter's happiness revolts, but is threatened with exposure in the fact that her son is on an adjacent farm. The climax is reached when Judith, goaded beyond endurance, attacks her father and is bound and shown as an example to the other children. Infuriated, the father tells his wife that he will tell her story to her children in front of her son who was born out of wedlock. All are gathered awaiting the arrival of the father, mystified as to the meaning, when a neighbor brings the news that the husband was devoured by a quack-sand, and the secret remains inviolate.

Welbeck

(Our Own Correspondent)

Sorry we did not have a budget for last week, but your scribe having been busy nursing, making sour kraut and butchering was the reason.

Glad to see the snow going—only for the mud.
No election this year as our Reeve and Council have been elected by acclamation, owing to our mud roads in Welbeck suburbs the Council thought it had better slip in the easy way as on account of the condition of our roads, very few votes would have been polled.
Mr. James Welsh has the radio installed and has been entertaining quite a number of neighbors.
In Hector Boyce's swamp Lorne Goldsmith had a very narrow escape, coming in contact with a large wild cat. Owing to his wonderful presence of mind and making a speedy get away he soon outdistanced his pursuer and reached home glad to be able to tell the tale.
Mr. Fred Haug had a number of fellows from this line last Monday moving his household effects to Ye Editor's town.

Mr. Oscar Hetsler has been busy digging out skunks. Oscar says they are the easiest thing in the world to find.
We understand that Mr. Robert Ledingham has taken a position in the Durham Furniture factory.
Mr. Jack Welsh spent a week-end in Durham. Jack thinks the roads are better south than north.
Mr. Max Grierson spent an evening in this vicinity recently and enjoyed listening to the radio very much.

Quite a number of us around Welbeck are busy picking fowl, while others are attending Ivie Walker's sale.
Mr. William Hodgson, Jr., called on Welbeck friends one evening last week. Wedding bells are ringing.
Mr. Jim Sweeney renewed old acquaintances with the Welsh family last week. Call again Jim.

WHY TEACHERS GET GRAY

The sense of humor is not, as a rule, accorded to the English as a people, but it must be allowed that the British schoolmaster who deliberately set himself to work to gather the choicest specimens from among the errors made by his pupils possessed just a trifle. The breaks were mostly made at examination and, of course, by different boys. Some of them follow:
Finally James II. gave birth to a son and so the people turned him off the throne.
After twice committing suicide; Cowper lived until 1800, when he died a natural death.
The Tropic of Cancer is a painful and incurable disease.
When the last French attack at Waterloo proved a failure Napoleon turned very pale, and rode at full gallop to St. Helena.

Much butter is imported from Denmark because Danish cows have greater enterprise and superior technical education to ours.
The courage of the Turks is explained by the fact that a man with more than one wife is more willing to face death than if he had only one.
The Mediterranean and the Red Seas are joined by the Sewage Canal.
Cataract is the name of the mountain on which the Ark rested.
An elephant is a square animal with a tail in front and behind.
The Minister of War is the clergyman who preaches to the soldiers in the barracks.
The flannellette peril means petticoat government.
The immortal William is a phrase applied to the German Emperor.
Where are the descendants of the Ancient Britons to be found today? In the British Museum.
If Bismark had lived till now he would have been dead for ten years.
The Black Prince died from injuries received by his horse.
During the Reformation every clergyman was compelled to receive thirty-nine articles.
The Australian natives soak the dew into sponges to drink when the water is dry.
How would you make soft water hard? Freeze it.
Isinglass is a glass used by doctors to look into their patients' eyes with.
The midnight sun is usually called the moon.

In the United States of America people are put to death by electrocution.
Probably the time is fast approaching when all gold will take the form of 1 pound notes, as in Scotland.
The expression "chance my arm" means "will you marry me?"

A LIBEL ON THE OSTRICH

Since you and I were children—and long before that—people have believed that the ostrich buries its head in the sand when frightened, believing itself entirely hidden. We may regret to part with this fable, because of its frequent application to the conduct of some people; but fable it surely is, and an injustice to the good sense of the ostriches. The fact that capture of wild ostriches is a herculean task ought to be enough to nail this old fallacy.
What the big bird really does when he becomes aware of danger, and thinks himself yet unperceived, is not unlike the action of a hen or a quail under similar circumstances. He squats down close upon the earth. The long neck that would otherwise make him still conspicuous he stretches out flat along the ground. He does not bury his head; his eyes are open and alert to see whether he had better be running instead of trying to hide. In this position, he looks just like another hummock of the surface. But just try to get near him and you will find out that his eyes and all his protective senses are working.

CO-OPERATION

Two fool jackasses—now get this dope—
Were tied together with a piece of rope.
Said one to the other; "You come my way,

While I take a nibble of new-mown hay."
"I won't" said the other, "you come with me,
For I, too, have some hay, you see."
So they got nowhere; just pawed up dirt,
And oh, my gosh, how that rope did hurt.

Then they faced about, those stubborn mules,
And said, "We're just like a couple of human fools.
Let's pull together. I'll go your way, Then you come with me and we'll both eat hay."
Well, they ate their hay, and liked it too,
And swore to be comrades good and true.
As the sun went down they were heard to say,
"Ah, this is the end of a perfect day."

Now get this lesson—don't let it pass; Learn this one thing from the poor jackass:
We must pull together—it's the only way
To conduct our business and make it pay.

Helping the Down-and-Outs

The business people in every town in the province must be heartily tired of the never-ending calls being made on them for money for support of this, that and the other "good cause". One day last week a lady made the round of the business places in Lucknow soliciting money contributions in aid of a charity being conducted in Toronto, for the feeding of homeless and foodless men in that city. By way of making an appeal of sympathy she displayed a circular showing the picture of a line of men at a door awaiting a free meal. They were, of course, a poor looking lot, just the kind that never do an honest day's work, always looking for sundown and kicking about their job—spending their earnings as they go, in betting, drinking and smoking. It is unquestionable if the charitable feeding of such men does not do more harm than good. Anybody who knows that crowd of city loafers and bums, knows that they will multiply as the means of subsistence increases, so that to remove the evil they represent in that way is hopeless. Why should those who have worked and denied themselves the indulgence of silly and harmful pleasures be called upon to save the profligate from the natural consequence of this folly? —Lucknow Sentinel.

Easy For Him

At a country fair five dollars was offered as a prize to the person who could guess the weight of a certain cow.
Crowds of people tried their skill and varied weights were suggested. Finally old Garge, who was regarded as the village idiot, came forward. To their amazement he named the exact weight of the cow offhand.
"How did you do it?" asked the judge, after awarding the prize.
"Twarn't nothin'," replied the hero of the occasion modestly. "Id 'a done better'n that if I'd tried."
