Classified Advertisements

ADVERTISING RATES
Judicial, Legal, Official and Government Notices—12c. per count line for first insertion, and 6c. per line for each subsequent insertion.
Classified Small Advertisements
1 1/2c. per word each insertion, with four consecutive insertions for the price of three; a discount of 33-1/3 per cent allowed for cash with order. Minimum charge, 25c. cash with order and 35c. if charged.
Every advance notice of any kind, where the object is the benefit or convenience of any person or number of persons—is advertising, and it will be treated as such. If no instructions accompany the notice advising us whom to charge it to, it will be charged to the person phoning or sending it in.
Advertisements ordered for insertion "until forbidden" and those sent without written instructions, will appear until written orders are received for their discontinuance.

A WORLD APART

When you leave the steamer "Belle of Temagami" you are in a quiet retreat seemingly thousands of miles from the noisy workaday world. Peace and quiet are the chief laws of this forest kingdom, twenty miles from the nearest automobile and a hundred from a street car.
Under the lordly trees of Temagami black bass, lake trout and maskinonge lie in wait for the fisherman in the innumerable lakes. The quaint Indian settlements, the magnificent scenery and the many other attractions simply can't be appreciated until you see them.
Ask your Canadian National Agent for literature and information on Temagami.

ROGUEING THE SEED PLOT TO CONTROL MOSAIC OF POTATOES

(Experimental Farms Note.)
The seed-plot is a comparatively old idea but during recent years it has been applied more generally as an aid in the control of mosaic which is known to effect serious reductions in yield. The Division of Botany, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, have demonstrated that this disease is kept under control by careful and consistent roguing of the seed-plot, a method which is accepted as an established practice by the most successful producers of Certified seed.
Roguing should be done only by individuals capable of detecting diseases. The symptoms of mosaic are greatly influenced by seasonal and climatic conditions. They are obscured by bright sunlight, by rain, and by deposits from spray materials. Roguing should therefore be timed to overcome such obstructions.
The removal of diseased plants is rendered less effective by ignorance of the symptoms, haste, poor eyesight, by leaving part of the diseased hill in the ground, and by not carrying the infected plants from the field, for aphids may be present and because they dislike the flavour of dying plants will go to healthy ones to which they will carry the disease. Diseased plants should be removed as soon as the symptoms appear, which may be very soon after the plants come through the ground. Should these plants not be taken out immediately the symptoms may become masked and later will be the source of infection for healthy plants. Best results can be expected only when roguing is done often as well as early and late in the season. When roguing late, tubers from diseased plants are liable to be left in the ground. This is to be avoided as such tubers will be harvested with the crop and will be an aid in the transmission of mosaic from one crop to the next.
In seed plots where potatoes are planted according to the tuber unit method it is quite easy to detect all the plants from one diseased seed tuber. In such cases the plants from one diseased tuber should be removed but some of the units, the remaining members may be removed with the assurance that they represent the complete tuber.

FALLACIES CONCERNING THE ANIMAL KINGDOM

David Lee Wharton in Capper's Weekly
Strange, is it not, how certain fallacies in regard to animals become so deeply embedded in the human mind? Many who are really fond of animals and should know better, still cherish these illusions. For example, it is commonly believed that it is from choice that animals upon the approach of death steal away to die alone. Now any one who has soothed the last moments of a loved and loving sub-human friend, walked with him to the gates of death and watched them close upon him, knows that an animal longs for the companionship of his loved ones in the hour of death as much as does any human. Wild animals who have no human friends seek seclusion, perhaps, in order to avoid vultures, or the cannibalistic of their own kind. And, speaking of death among animals, what becomes of the thousands of sparrows which must die annually in large cities? Only after a severe storm or terribly cold period is a dead bird seen on city streets. Even in the woods a dead bird. There is an old legend which affirms that birds do not die, but are borne away to Heaven while alive. At any rate, it is a rare thing to come across a bird which has died of itself.
Another queer idea is that animal faces are inexpressive. Why, no face on earth is so capable of registering astonishment as that of a dog! His look of amazement is, at times, so exaggerated as to be ludicrous. Consider the expression of fatuous complacency upon the face of a (supposedly) fierce death among animals, what becomes of the thousands of sparrows which must die annually in large cities? Only after a severe storm or terribly cold period is a dead bird seen on city streets. Even in the woods a dead bird. There is an old legend which affirms that birds do not die, but are borne away to Heaven while alive. At any rate, it is a rare thing to come across a bird which has died of itself.

old home, but he proceeds to make himself as comfortable and happy as possible.
Still another mistaken idea is that animals do not care for cleanliness. Every animal is happier when clean, even those who dislike water. Cats and monkeys, as heartily as they detest a washing, are delightfully comfortable and happy after a forcible bath.
Even the sparrow, who is no dandy, as is the sleek and well-groomed mockingbird, will bathe at every opportunity. Watch the sparrows gather and enjoy a "shower" when the sprinkler is left going on the lawn. The canary, of course, must have his bath daily.
The majority of the people firmly believe that dogs understand only tones and gestures, and not the words themselves. Anyone who talks with dogs and not merely to them, will smile at this assertion. Mention, even casually, dogs or cats, in the hearing of a dog, in the language to which he is accustomed, and see his instant interest, but speak of them as emphatically as you please in a foreign language, and he pays no attention, simply because he does not understand the words.
One of the most cruel and unjust of fallacies in regard to animals is that they are incapable of mental suffering. Never a day glides into eternity but bears the life of at least one "beast" who has died of a broken heart.
That domestic animals are able to provide food and shelter for themselves is another pernicious delusion. Where in Heaven's name can a dog or a cat find refuge from the elements with every garage and cellar door locked, or food, with every morsel cast into a garbage can and closely covered? How little time and effort it would cost to put the edible scraps in a pan or even upon a paper, and place it where some hungry wail could get it!
That animals are possessed of instinct only, and not of reason, is still another foolish error. Why is it so difficult, apparently, to realize that the "lower" (?) animals are creatures of like feelings as ourselves, and that the lordliest king and lowliest living thing are "brothers under the skin"?
United States Senator Schall of Minnesota, who is blind, has a very intelligent police dog who acts as his "lower" (?). Schall called at the White House and while there, a President, then Calvin Coolidge, asked him to bring in his dog of whom he had heard a great deal.
"This dog is the first visitor I have had in nearly eight years that didn't want something." The President remarked, patting the dog's head.

Freedom
To every mortal is denied
Some cherished wish; unsatisfied
In part he always goes.
Hope, sometimes, like Spring's tints
Must fade
And dearest plans may be betrayed
As life, tempestuous flows.
But freedom is the dower still
Of every soul; imperial will
To bless or curse the hours,
To build so that the Far Away
Will all be better than today;
Such are each being's powers.
To all alike the gift is made:
The timorous, the unafraid,
Rich, poor and well or ill;
Alike all men are equal heirs,
And Earth's most priceless boon is theirs.
The high, imperial will.
"Foo de ye hae that bit o' lookin'
glass in yer dog's dish, Sandy?"
Sandy: "Mn, d'ye no see that Towser thinks he's getting twa banes for his dinner?"
