The Difference

"Can you tell me," asked the judge, addressing Enrico Ufuzzi, under examination as to the qualifications for citizenship, "the difference between the powers and prerogatives of the King of England, and those of the President of the United States?"
"Yessir," spoke up Ufuzzi, promptly. "The King, he got a steady job."

NEW BOOKS AT $1 MAY REVOLUTIONIZE TRADE

If publishers, by reducing the price of their books to a dollar a copy to the reader, can publish twice as many books, they will make considerably less money than they make now, which is not a great deal. In fact they will lose a half cent a book. But if they will sell three times as many books they will make more money than they now make and everybody else connected with the industry, from the author to the graduate chemist, will make more. We have always thought the publishing business rather a curious one, operated upon strictly original principles, and this would seem to prove it. This calculation has been made by Franklin Spier, who is in the book business as a salesman and advertising promoter, and he expounds his opinions in the New York World. The innovation of the price reduction is a striking one. It means not a reduction of 10 to 15 per cent, which we are growing accustomed to in motor car prices, but a cut from $2.50 or $2. It is one of the most drastic moves made in many a day in any important industry.

May Revolutionize Trade
At present only four leading American publishers are involved. But the others will be obliged to follow suit if the innovation succeeds, and if they take no action until it definitely succeeds or fails they are likely to do little business in the meantime. Of course, the firms that have the rights to the work of the most popular writers need not be unduly distressed since to most people, we suppose, the authorship of a book is the really important thing about it. A man who wants to read a novel by Wells or Dreiser is not likely to read a novel by Ethel M. Dell or Edgar Wallace instead just because it happens to be offered at half the price. So while existing contracts remain the authors will be in rather an impregnable position. But when these contracts run out when new novels are written how will the stand-pat houses fare? If the authors learn that they will make more money by having their books sell at a dollar than at $2.50, will they choose the larger price, the smaller profit and the fewer readers?

The Gulf Between
Not believing that these questions require any serious answer we feel safe in predicting that if the dollar book idea succeeds with the innovators, it will be generally adopted by the others. The great question to be settled is whether the sale of books can be tripled or quadrupled. If they can merely be doubled this simply means that the publishers will be ruined. One might liken their plight to that of a skater on thin ice, making at all speed for the shore. But between the thin ice of an inconsiderable profit at $2 and the security of a sound profit at $1 there looms the hole in the water called a double output. If the skater can leap the chasm he is safe; if not he is better off on the thin ice. But to pursue the figure of speech for a moment it is to be noted that the thin ice has been giving off alarming chackles in the past three or four years. Everybody has been complaining, readers because books are too expensive, authors because profits are too small, publishers because the interest on invested capital is uneconomic and the bookseller because sales are falling off.

Drug and Cigar Store Books
Of late years the phenomenon has been noted of cigar stores and drug stores entering the realms of literature with great assurance and proceeding to sell books at what appeared to be casual buyer's reduced prices. As a matter of fact, the prices are not lower in these upstart emporiums than in the department stores and the ordinary bookshops. F.P.A., the New York columnist, suggests that books get into the drug stores only when they become a drug on the market. For the most part, the books sold far below original prices in any stores are books that the publisher has despaired of getting rid of at any other price. In still other words, the books, as a rule, are utter rubbish which are dear at any price. Still as a matter of physical necessity they must be moved from the shelves or garbage cans of the general public, and they are therefore offered at prices best calculated to get them there in a great hurry.

The Profit on a Volume
But these cut rates have revealed the existence of a new class of buyer, namely the man or woman who will buy a book because it is cheap, not because it is a book. It is believed that there are millions in this class and that they can be hooked with dollar books. It is surely worthy trying especially since, according to Mr. Spier, the costs of a $2 book of which 3,000 copies are sold are as follows:
Retail price of book $2.00
Received from booksellers 1.20
Manufacturing cost:
Author's royalty20
Printing and binding40
General expense:
Overhead10
Advertising and selling30
Publishers' profit 1.00

It will be admitted that nobody here makes an excessive profit unless it is the bookseller, and as pointed out he is being chased by drug stores and cigar stores with their cut rate and their better opportunities to make sales, since a good many more people enter a drug store or a cigar store in the course of the day than enter a book store. Our own bolshevik idea is that what is chiefly the matter with the publishing business is that it turns out too much stuff that should not be published at all; that a great deal of its expenditure is, therefore waste. We put the idea in another way: Can anyone imagine a publisher or a bookseller losing money if he published the works only of Kipling, Wells, Bennett, Galsworthy, Maxwell, Shaw, Dreiser, Tarkington and Wharton. Irrespective of the retail price he sold them at?

Priceville (Our Own Correspondent) (Too Late for Last Week.)

Mr. Findlay MacPhail, accompanied by his daughter Delhia, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. McKinnon and son, John L., motored up from Toronto and spent the week-end here. Miss Delhia remained for a month's holidays.

Miss Dorothy Carson of Toronto spent the week-end at her parental home.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Timmins, Hayward Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Art Richardson and son visited Sunday at Mr. Alex. Carsons.

Mr. David Hincks and two daughters, Ida and Gladys, motored to Guelph and spent the week-end and on their way back called on Arthur friends.

Mr. and Mrs. George McLellan and Miss Brown motored over from Niagara and spent a few days visiting at Mr. Dan Campbells.

Those who attended the Presbyterian on Wednesday at Price's Corner, near Hillsburg were: Mrs. Dan Stewart, Mrs. Dan Campbell, Mrs. Alex. Carson, Mrs. Salter, Mrs. Burt, Mrs. Dan L. McArthur, Rev. Mrs. Stewart, Rev. Mrs. Sutherland, Misses May Stewart, Erma McLean, Mary McEachern, Mr. Dan L. McArthur took them all in his conveyance.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Hincks and Betty attended the anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Black Sunday. They were a year married. Miss Mary McConnell and little niece, Dorothy McDonald, of Toronto were also present. Fourteen sat down to dinner table and a most enjoyable time was spent.

A number from here attended the banquet in Markdale on Friday night and report a good time.

Mrs. McDougall of Toronto is back for the summer months and is living in her house here.

The Holdfast club held their monthly meeting at the home of Miss May Stewart with 23 members and seven visitors present. After the opening exercises Mrs. William Beaton gave a very interesting "Health Talk". Mrs. George Fisher gave a reading "Pa Pays the Bills". The bulletins were discussed. Miss Virginia Lindsay, grand daughter of Mrs. R. Whittaker stepped danced. Mrs. D. Macphail put on a 20-minute knitting contest which caused much fun. The first prize was awarded Mrs. George Campbell, a bag full of clothes pins; 2nd to Mrs. Peter Muir, a large sauce pan; 3rd to Mrs. Alex. Carson, a granite sauce pan; 4. Mrs. William Beaton, a fruit filler. Lunch was then served. The next meeting will be at Mrs. Robert Best's. Mrs. Hector McLean is spending a week in Toronto.
