Mrs. Kinnee gave an exceptionally good synopsis of the last chapter of "From Jerusalem to Jerusalem" which was the climax of the book, giving a description of the International Missionary Conference held in Jerusalem in 1928 where two hundred and forty delegates met, representing fifty-one nations. As they faced the World's need and the open doors confronting the church they realized afresh that the power that is needed in the crisis of the church can come only through prayer.

The meeting was closed by singing "Nearer My God, to Thee" and prayer by Mrs. Fiddes.

The cost of living is high but the cost of life still remains cheap.

HYMENAL

MORLOCK-MATHER

A very quiet wedding took place on Saturday morning, June 28th, at Knox United manse, when Rev. W. H. Smith united in marriage Daisy, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Mather and Bryson, youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Morlock. The bride was prettily gowned in pale pink georgette and carried pink roses. The young couple were unattended. The wedding breakfast was served after the ceremony in the home of the bride's parents, with only the bride's family present. The young couple left by motor for Toronto, Belleville and Montreal, the bride travelling in green and sand ensemble suit with sand hat and shoes. The groom's gift to the bride was a fox fur.

The good wishes from a host of friends go with them on their matrimonial journey in life. They will make their home in Durham.

PICKERING-MIGHTON

A pretty wedding took place in Yorkminster church, Toronto, on Tuesday, June 24, at 12 o'clock noon, when Mildred, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Mighton, became the bride of Mr. John Pickering of Toronto. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. Mr. Cameron in the presence of a few immediate friends and well wishers of the bride and groom.

Simple but effective was the bride's costume of white satin faced crepe fashioned on princess lines, uneven hem line, with side drapes of radium silk lace, caught up with rhinestones. Her veil of embroidered net was becomingly draped from a bandeau of orange buds and blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of butterfly and sweetheart roses, lily-of-the-valley, baby's breath and maiden hair fern, white satin shoes and gloves completed her bridal attire. She was attended by her maid of honor, Mrs. K. H. Greer, cousin of the bride, who wore white and tomato shade ensemble of silk flat crepe with hat, shoes and bag to match, her bouquet was of red and pink ophelia roses, maiden hair fern and baby's breath. Mr. J. McKenzie, Toronto, was groomsmen. The groom's gift to the bride was a crystal pendant.

Immediately after the ceremony a wedding luncheon was served the bridal party at the Ford Hotel, later in the afternoon the happy couple motored to the bride's home. For travelling the bride wore a camel shade dress of silk flat crepe with coat of matching shade trimmed with caracul fur and hat of straw, shoes, hose, purse and scarf to harmonize.

Her party dress was a sleeveless frock of pale blue silk chiffon with seed pearls and rhinestones, black satin shoes and striking mystery hose.

In the evening a reception was held with about 300 in attendance, including friends from Hamilton, Toronto, Southampton, Hanover, Durham and Elmwood. The young couple received many beautiful and useful gifts and a number of substantial cheques. It will be hard for a time to realize that the bride is not in our midst, but all are one in expressing to her and husband, the best that life can give. Mr. and Mrs. Pickering will reside in Toronto.

RAHN-WILLIS

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER

About thirty friends of Miss Daisy Mather, who was married last Saturday, gathered at the home of Mrs. T. Brown on Garafra street and presented her with a miscellaneous shower. Miss Mather opened the gifts and Miss Mary McKechnie read the verses and best wishes attached thereto. In a very neat speech the bride-to-be thanked her friends for their kindness and good wishes. Games were enjoyed and a lunch was served during the evening. Before dispersing the company sang "For she's a jolly good fellow."

OTHER PAPERS' OPINIONS

No Hard Times in St Marys

After reading some of the gloomy news about business conditions in the larger centres particularly in the States, it is somewhat heartening to observe that the people in rural districts such as ours are still getting three meals a day and something left over to buy gas. Looking over the field from the small town end it seems as if some of the nervous feeling regarding the business outlook is unjustified. For instance business out at St. Marys Cement Plant should reflect conditions in the building trades in Western Ontario. Our information is that never in the history of the local industry, which is a million and three-quarter barrel plant, has it been so busy, in fact that the building trades are very much alive. Other local industries are mostly up to normal production. One of our largest manufacturers expressed the opinion yesterday that business will reach record proportions this fall. It is bound to, according to this observer, as producers have been carrying practically no stock and they will have to speed up. Another local businessman who has lately returned from the Maritime Provinces stated that conditions are better by the Sea right now than they have been in many years.—St. Marys Journal-Argus.

The Real Heroes

That man who went through the Niagara whirlpool in a barrel got a big headline in the dailies and so did Seagrave, who lost his life on Lake Windermere in England by going over 100 miles an hour in a speed boat. What benefit to humanity have these dare-devils been? Nothing so far as we can see. They took foolish risks for no serious purpose. The 200 men who combed the rain-soaked bush in Arthur township for nearly a whole day to find the little ten-year-old stray-away boy and were successful in saving a life, got only a short notice in some local papers. The boy, who dove into forty feet of water without removing his clothes to rescue a drowning child from the Chippawa River received only a short paragraph in the dailies and he was a real hero. The vices of today gives altogether too much prominence to those who perform foolhardy stunts and too little space to those who perform heroic service in life-saving.—Chesley Enterprise.

The Rhyming Optimist

By Adeline Michaelis Pity Yourself No More

Pity yourself and go Menaced by loss and woe, Never secure and proud, Never free and unbowed; Pity yourself and gain Only new pangs of pain. Learn that these words are true: Life has some work for you, Purpose and plan must be Back of all things you see; Patiently take up your task, Though it is not what you ask. Take pride in the burden you bear, Poverty, calumny, care All will seem right in the end When you learn life is a friend; Pity yourself no more And strength will come in at your door!

Unshared Good

It is not enough that man may live His life to the full, you know Great tasks and the thrill they give Or love with its beacon glow. Though his treasures pile heaven high All gifts that the world desires, Still after each smile comes a sigh And his spirit droops and tires. If he selfishly keeps for the few The bounty that falls to him, For his pleasures will not ring true And his sunlight must soon grow dim. It is not enough to gain After the toil is done, A feeling of proud disdain, A mountain crest in the sun. For one who dwells thus alone Will find earth a barren place Till he shares all the good he has known And it shines from each brother's face.
