THE WILD ROSE
 Summer has crossed the fields, and where she trod
 Violets bloom; the dancing windflowers nod,
 And daisies blossom all across the sod.
 She passed the brook, and in their glad surprise,
 The first forget-me-nots smiled at the skies
 And caught the very color of her eyes.
 But, sleeping in the meadow-land, she pressed
 The dear wild rose so closely to her breast
 It stole her heart—and so she loves it best.
 —Charles Buxton Going.

New Canada-Built Equipment

FOLLOWING its policy of having as much as possible of its new equipment constructed by its own forces, the Canadian National Railways this year have completed the construction of two hundred forty-ton refrigerator cars, required for its increasing freight service, in addition to another two hundred which were built by the Eastern Car Company. One hundred each of the new cars were constructed in the Company's own shops at London, Ontario and Winnipeg, Manitoba, and these contain many new features of car construction which are being developed by the Canadian National for the first time.

THE ADVANTAGE OF EARLY FALL PLOUGHING

(Experimental Farms Note)
 Fall ploughing is generally considered a good practice in most parts of the country, if best results are to be obtained. In a section such as Northern Ontario where the growing season is comparatively short it is not only advisable, but it is imperative that the greater part of the ploughing be done in the summer or fall.

At the Dominion Experimental Station, Kapuskasing, Ontario, it has been found that midsummer or early fall-ploughing has materially facilitated the completion of this work before the ground became too wet or was frozen. Experiments have shown that practically all the common farm crops should be sown as early in the spring as the condition of the soil will permit and this is only possible when the land has been ploughed the previous fall, and better still if it has been ploughed sufficiently early to disk a couple of times and also open up proper water furrows before the freeze-up.

While it is true that all of the ploughing can not be done during the summer and early fall on account of certain crops occupying the land, nevertheless, a start should be made as early as possible. Night pastures and old meadows lend themselves particularly well to early ploughing.

This not only assists materially in getting the ploughing completed, but it makes possible the cultivation of the land to some extent after ploughing and thereby partly takes the place of summer-fallowing. This gives an opportunity of keeping weeds under control and storing up a supply of moisture and plant food for the next season's crop.

HONOR OF KNIGHTHOOD ANCIENT PRACTISE

In the Honors List that is issued in accordance with the usual custom on the King's birthday many new knight-hoods are announced.

Today the King creates a new knight by the simple act of laying a sword upon the shoulder of the recipient of the honor but in ancient times knights were sometimes made by the act of dubbing by the monarch, but more often by a formal investiture.

Before the elaborate ceremony the novice spent some time in fasting and in ceremonial bathing. On the night preceding the actual ceremony he had to keep a lone vigil before the altar.

Then the new knight offered his sword on the altar; it was redeemed by a sum of money, and the priest who conducted the service blessed the sword and girded it to the side of the new knight. Spurs were then bound on his heels, and the priest dealt him a blow on the cheek, with the words: "Be thou a good and faithful knight."

The new knight now took an oath to protect the weak and distressed, to fight for right against might and to keep his honor clear as a knight and Christian.

If a knight did not keep to his oath he could be degraded. Then his spurs were struck off with an axe and his sword was broken. A religious service followed in which each piece of the knight's armor was taken off and cast from him.

It was in the sixteenth century that knight-hood began to be conferred on civilians for service, other than on the battlefield.

The first civil knight in England was Sir William Walworth, the Lord Mayor of London, who received the honor in 1381 for killing Wat Tyler, the rebel, in the presence of the king.

MATCH BOX COLLECTIONS VARY IN SIZE
 The largest collection of match-box labels in Britain is that of Messrs. Bryant and May. It is in their museum, and it numbers about 15,000 specimens. The next largest is about 12,000 and it belongs to a collector at Brighton. There are many collections between 5,000 and 10,000. There is an exchange club, which has a membership of nearly fifty keen collectors, half of whom are resident abroad. This club has circulated 40,000 labels in two years. Some labels are now fetching sixpence and a shilling each. Match-label collecting is not a new hobby. It is about as old as philately.
