Would Reduce Curves

Curves on the main highways have always been regarded by the Provincial Department as dangerous and efforts have been made to eliminate their as far as possible. However, the many curves on the King's Highway from Flesherton to Dundaik are still very dangerous and each week sees one or more accidents of cars turning over into the ditch. Speed may or may not have a tendency to ditch the cars, but nevertheless the road is dangerous, and, to our idea the curves should be made more swerving than at the present time. -Flesherton Advance.

Binder Used 45 Years

76 74 MD AT de

We have read recently of farm machinery that has been in use for twenty some odd years and still going strong, but we believe that the record for keeping implements in first class repair belongs to the Flesherton district. Fourty-four years ago Mr. Richard Bentham of Flesherton purchased a Massey-Harris binder, one of the first on the market, from Messrs. Petch & VanDusen of Flesherton. It has just finished the cutting of the forty-fifth crop. The original canvas is still being used and very few replacements of parts have been necessary. The secret of the long life of machinery in this case seems to be that of storing it in a shed immediately after being used and constant oiling and general care. It has been proved many times that the care of machinery pays high dividends and heavy drain on the bank balance thereby eliminated. -Flesherton Ad-

Bidders Were Cautious

Bidding was not very brisk at Wesley Mewhinney's auction sale on the 4th concession of Carrick on Tuesday afternoon. Farm implements brought somewhat disappointing prices and Auctioneer Darroch had hard work to get rid of a lot of the stuff. Hay sold at $4.50 per ton; oats at 40c.; barley at 41c. and new wheat at 61c. The horses were the best quality sold at any aucaion sale in Carrick for years, but the highest price realized was $114. Good cows sold as high as $80 and young prairie. cattle were fairly brisk at good prices but they were all good breedy stock. One brood sow sold at $63.50 and another at $52. The sale would have done better a month later, but Mr. Mewhinney's health is not good, and he had to get off the place at once.-Mildmay

Is "A'I In Your Eye"

Staff in Toronto Mail and Empire, Sees No Justification For Prevailing Pessimism.—Western Wheat Farmer Will Come Out All Right This Year, He Thinks.

This has been a rather "bad" year for wheat movement and the crepehangers have been busy predicting all kinds of trouble financially for the Western Canada wheat farmer, now that the 1930 crop is about to be harvested. According to them, there was to be an enormous surplus, and with much of the 1929 crop still unsold there was nothing but financial ruin in store for the farmers in the West, with the resultant business depression all over

It is rather refreshing to read an article by Vernon Knowles, the chief of times for the Western farmer and scouts the pessimistic cry put up apparently by those who traffic in wheat to the detriment of the grower and the consumer. Mr. Knowles' article should be read by every farmer, and if read A deputation from Meaford, Thorn- carefully should instil increased con-

Alarmist Reports and Ignorance

But, getting right down to brass tacks, is there anybody simple enough to be stampeded by alarmist reports into thinking that the banks, with millions of dollars in wheat through the pool as well as through "the trade" are going to work deliberately to smash the pool-to bankrupt more than half the wheat-growers of the West. For that is what the suggestion means. Is there enough ignorance in this country to swallow the silly idea that the banks are about to wreck the Prairie West's economy, when by so doing the banks would be murdering Canada and committing suicide themselves?

Now, piled upon the top of a lot of such rot, the annual elevator jam is being trotted out; the carry-over of last year's wheat is being demonstrated as most fearsome, and timid souls are being given to fear, by mountains of statistics, that the wheat is going to be allowed to rot out upon the bald-headed

Some facts are readily available. For instance, a month ago the Federal Bureau of Statistics showed that the anticipated total carry-over of the 1926 and 1929 crops combined would reach 115,000,000 bushels. By reason of better export demand than was looked for the carry-over is only one hundred and eleven million bushels some four million bushels less than had been anticipated; a favorable sign in itself, there is at present no market for sugar beet seed. This is because of the fact that at the present time sugar beet seed can be brought in from Germany and laid down at points as far west as Lethbridge, Alta., at a price of three cents per pound.

As a matter of fact, the usual allow-size for home purposes in ascertaining the export surplus of a crop is around one hundred and fifteen million—seed, forty-four million bushels; forty-four million bushels; forty-four million bushels milled for human food; nine million bushels for loss in clean-

The Panic-Mongers

We have thus shown that panic enthusiasts, even in one article, by guessing wrongly at the carry-over and at the home consumption allotment, are able to produce a bogey, some seventy- CAST OF LIVINGSTONE'S three million bushels in error, to frighten economic children; or to convey the idea that the new government is about to combine with a cabal of malignant bankers to send western farmer with his wheat pool, and not in lesser the demnition bowwows.
