It is with deep regret that we this week write of the sudden death of Alfred Buller, who passed away on Tuesday evening last at his home here, of heart trouble. Mr. Buller has been one of the prominent business men of the village for some years and was most highly respected. It is just two years ago now since Mrs. Buller's death. Four children are left to mourn his loss which makes his death doubly sad. The funeral was held from his late residence to Presbyterian church where the service was conducted by his pastor, Rev. Bunessan

(Our Own Correspondent)

The Binnie home in the community for over fifty years has been one always known for its generous hospitality. A warm welcome was given to every guest and friendship and neighborliness was sincerely given. This last evening in the home was somewhat different to the usual gatherings. Mr. Archie Beaton was chairman for a short program. Miss Mary Beaton, on behalf of the community read an address of appreciation and Mrs. R. J. McGillivray presented Mrs. Binnie with a large bouquet of carnations and Miss Winnie with a purse of money. PARENTS SAVED BY BABY'S CRY

Former Durham Woman and Family Nearly Asphyxiated in Detroit by Leaking Gas.

A recent issue of the Detroit Free Press says:
 "Crying of their ten-weeks' old son today saved Edward Bauer, 31, and his wife, 22, from suffocation in their home at 4429 Townsend avenue. The house was filling with escaping gas when Mrs. Bauer was awakened at 2 a.m. by the baby. She went to the crib and fell fainting to the floor from the fumes. Mr. Bauer carried her and the baby out of the house. Firemen of the rescue squad revived Mrs. Bauer after giving first aid for an hour. Bauer said it was the family's first night in the house, and being unfamiliar with the heating they neglected to shut off the gas."
 Mrs. Bauer is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Boyd of Durham.

On Wednesday afternoon, at the close of the Mission Band meeting in Knox church, Miss Mather, who has assisted with the work in this society also, was presented with a kitchen shower, from Mission Band members. The recipient thanked both societies for their kindness.

STARLING STEW

Starlings seem to be more numerous than ever in this district this winter and some bird lovers label them as pests. If they are a pest the scheme of a Tilbury man may be a good one. A despatch from that town reads: "Starling bouillon, starling stew and starling pie are favorite dishes in a number of Tilbury homes at present. There are myriads of these toothsome birds around town, and those who know the trick of collecting them in a cluster on the ground, often bag a couple of dozen at one potshot. They have blackbirds beaten a mile and give quail a close run for dainty food, says Eugene Lemire, a Queen-street gunning merchant."

IT WORKS BOTH WAYS

The cost of transportation is an important factor determining the profitable source through which special crops can be distributed, according to a report just received by the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa. Taking the early carrot as an instance, Eastern Canada imports its supply very largely from Texas and the British West Indies. The situation is reversed with respect to the Pacific Coast area where British Columbia growers export considerable quantities of this vegetable to the Pacific sections of the United States.

TRAVELLING FARM SCHOOLS

Since their inception in 1928 specially equipped agricultural trains, which are virtually travelling agricultural schools, have had a recorded attendance of 134,000 farmers. In the operation of these trains the Canadian National Railways, the various provincial governments, and the Experimental Farms Branch of the federal Department of Agriculture have co-operated. They have proven to be of considerable assistance to farmers in respect to increasing the productivity of the soil, better breeding, greater efficiency in the feeding and management of live stock, in extending the appreciation of the use of clean seed, and deficiency in the management of field crops and other farm activities.

A PROBLEM WITH CHICKS

One of the big problems in connection with raising chicks is cannibalism, when chicks pick at the feathers and flesh of their mates. Recent studies indicate that this is more likely to occur where the chicks in brooders are exposed to direct sunlight. Direct rays of the sun should not be allowed to come into the room in which the chicks are carried in brooders. Artificial lighting is proving satisfactory and it should be so arranged as to cast no shadows. Ventilation is important, and provision should be made for the cold air to come in at the top through an opening near the ceiling, but care must be taken to deflect this cold air so that it will be properly heated before coming in contact with the chicks.—Dominion Department of Agriculture. regret that the Binnie home would be no longer in the community. A pleasant social hour followed the presentations and lunch was served.

HOPE FOR US, THEN

The editor stood at the pearly gate, His face was worn and old,
 He meekly asked of the man of fate Admission to the fold.

"What have you done," St. Peter asked, "To seek admission here?"
 "Oh I ran a country printing plant On earth for many a year."
 The gate swung open sharply
 As Peter touched the bell,
 "Come in," he said, "and take a harp— You've had enough of hell."

NOT SO DUMB!

In a small town in the south there was a lad who had the reputation of not being very bright. People there had fun with him several times a day by placing a dime and a nickel on the open palm of his hand, and telling him to take the pick of the two. In each case the lad would pick the nickel, and the crowd would laugh and guffaw.

A kind-hearted woman asked him one day, "Don't you know the difference between a dime and a nickel? Don't you know the dime, though smaller, is worth more?"

"Sure, I know it," he answered, "but they wouldn't try me out on it any more if I ever took the dime."

Visitor (speaking of little boy)—"He has his mother's eyes."
 Mother—"And his father's mouth."
 Child—"And his brother's trousers."

First Impressions Family

The facility with which news is transmitted has a good deal to do with the appearance of serious unsettlement throughout the world and probably contributes an exaggerated idea of unrest. International disturbances in the Orient are made known throughout the world a few hours after they have been manifested, whereas some years ago events of that kind might not have been known generally for weeks or months after they had transpired, and the news might be available to the world only after a satisfactory composition of the trouble had been achieved.

Conditions today must be viewed with due regard to this instantaneous distribution of information and events that at the moment seem threatening should be contemplated with the faith that they are likely to have a less disturbing outcome than the first interpretation might suggest. By being hasty in conclusions based upon first reports people are keeping themselves in a state of fear of disaster which never actually materializes or proves at least much less serious than had been expected.

The safe public attitude is to accept preliminary suggestions of trouble as expressive of an unfortunate modern trend toward exaggeration and to await the developments that usually present the situation less morbidly. It is significant that situations holding possibilities of world disturbances have proven entirely harmless when subjected to the common-sense treatment that is eventually extended.—Galt Reporter.

LIFE insurance benefits.... can be Proved while you are still ALIVE!

LIVING policyholders of the Sun Life were paid in benefits during 1931 $68,000,000—THREE TIMES as much as beneficiaries of deceased policyholders.

The insured no longer have to "die to win." The wisest insurers vigilantly protect their policies and allow nothing to impair them. The Sun Life enjoys a remarkable record for the persistency of its business—largely the result of sound advice and expert service to its policyholders, by its representatives.

This was due, partly to the fact that trained Sun Life representatives, when selling insurance, counsel their policyholders how to secure a dual advantage—the maximum benefit to THEMSELVES, and the greatest protection to their DEPENDANTS.

Sun Life representatives sold $528,000,000 new paid-for insurance last year, making the Company's total business in force over Three Billions—an impressive reflection of public confidence.

To-day prudent men are not only taking on MORE life insurance; they are doing so after consultation with competent representatives of such a company as the Sun Life.

Consult a Sun Life representative or return the attached coupon to the local or head office of the company:
