A well attended meeting was brought to a close by repeating the Lord's Prayer in unison.

Quick Diagnosis of Pneumonia Discovered

Allows Administration of Life-Saving Serum in Shorter Time.

The recent discovery in the Connaught Laboratories, Toronto, of a quick method of analyzing types of pneumonia to allow the administration of the serum particularly adapted to prevent its development was greeted by Canadian Public Health and Ontario Health officials as one of the greatest advances yet made in the fight against this disease.

Announcement of the discovery was made recently before the annual convention of health officials at the Royal York hotel by Dr. M. H. Brown, who has been in charge of this branch of research in the Connaught Laboratories for the last three years.

Doctors stated that Dr. Brown's announcement practically means the solution of the pneumonia problem. Sera has been discovered for the various types of pneumonia within the last year or two, but their effectiveness has been hampered by the inability to quickly ascertain the type of pneumonia from which the patient suffered.

The only means of ascertaining pneumonia types is from the analysis of the sputum. Formerly this process required from 18 to 36 hours, with the result the patient often had passed beyond the stage where the disease could be arrested before serum was administered.

With the Connaught Laboratory method, the type of pneumonia from which the patient suffers can be found within three or four hours after receipt of the sputum, and concentrated serum given for the particular type involved.

"When the serum is given early, the results are striking, giving a very toxic and extremely ill patient marked relief," Dr. Brown said.

For the last couple of years, Dr. Brown has also been working upon the perfection of sera for types 1 and 2, pneumonococcus, the most common cases of pneumonia. Type 3, the most virulent which is almost always fatal, has been found to respond to an enzyme which was discovered last year by a New York research expert. This was described to the meeting by Dr. Brown.

GIANT TREE STUMPS YIELD TO NEW DEVICE

Electricity Replaces Dynamite and Team and Tackle Methods.

Removing the stumps of giant trees has always been the chief obstacle to land clearing in British Columbia. The use of dynamite and donkey-engines is costly and sometimes hazardous, and hauling out the stumps by team and tackle is a strenuous operation; but now a process has been devised for getting out stumps with electricity. This method will be adopted extensively in the Fraser valley this summer.

The new electrical device is a sort of which supplies a direct draught to a fire which may be lighted in the roots of the big trees. Air under high pressure is driven through a hose fitted with an iron nozzle. This air blast feeds oxygen to the flames and combustion is forced along so that the stump may be removed in a reasonable time. It is said that electric current for the new device costs about the same as that for a vacuum sweeper. Of course, the air current is reversed. The fire which is started is helped along with kerosene or other inflammable material until the blast is under way.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION BOARD STATEMENT

During the month of June there were reported to the Workmen's Compensation Board 3,614 accidents, as against 3,285 during May, and 4,860 during June a year ago. The fatal accidents numbered 25, as compared with 18 in May and 32 in June last year.

The total benefits awarded amounted to $444,674.81 of which $377,856.25 was for compensation and $66,818.56 for medical aid.

This brings the total benefits awarded during the half year ending June 30 to $2,668,718.13, as compared with $3,131,715.58 during the corresponding period of 1931.

During the first six months of 1932 the accidents reported numbered 21,877 a decrease of 4,056 from the number for the corresponding period of 1931. The fatal accidents for the six months' period were: 1932, 130; 1931, 167.

The average daily benefits awarded for the half year were $17,792, and the average number of cheques issued daily, 738.

SCOTS WHA HAE

(By G. H. Haney in Kelvington, Sask., Radio)

In our last "Scotch Wha Whoop" spasm the town of Glencoe, Ontario, figured prominently and I have one more Highland Scotch true story to relate of a denizen of that district before moving on to pastures new and green.

Donald —, a well-known carpenter of Glencoe, whose work took him away from home quite often, came home one week-end to find that his wife had brought another little "Hielan'man" into the world. That was not all of the story, however. The wife of a neighbor had also presented her spouse with a fine pair of twins and the two women got their heads together to have a little fun out of Donald. They had all three babies in a row at Donald's home when he arrived on Saturday night and his good wife asked him proudly what he thought of his new progeny.

Donald inspected the line-up with distended eye-balls and asked in an awe-struck tone, "Losh, woman, did any of them get away?"

I am now going to tell a true story about an Irishman who lived in Huron County, Ontario, in a settlement of Scotchmen, and it will serve to illustrate how the influence of the Highland mode of speech and thought will affect even the levelest headed race on earth—the Irish.

John—, a blacksmith of Whitechurch, was a staunch member of the Roman Catholic church in that village, but he did not see eye to eye with a new parish priest, who soon after assignment to the charge, decided that a new place of worship was badly needed in John's native town. Accordingly a meeting of the parishioners was called and it was decided to go ahead with the new edifice. John was not at the meeting. A few days later the good father met John and told him what had occurred at the meeting, but John's only comment was that a new church was not needed and that he would have nothing to do with it. A month later the priest called upon John again and told him that he had been assessed so much toward the building fund. "Well," said John, "we do not need a new church and I will not pay it." "But," said his new spiritual adviser, "You must." "I will not," said John. "Well, you know what that means," said the priest, "you will be read out of the church, and may even be excommunicated." "I don't care," was John's defiant rejoinder, "I'll join the Methodists and go to hell first."

I have heard this story from many a platform but it is usually twisted to suit the sectarian complexion of the audience. If told before a Methodist audience it would be the Presbyterian with whom John would elect to spend his hereafter and so on. A sort of going "from bad to worse," so to speak. The Anglicans were an unknown quantity in that region and the Pentecostals and the United church had not come into being, otherwise—"you know what I mean," as our friend Paul Gillis says.
