DOWN ON THE FARM

Down on the farm about half-past four,
I slip on my pants and sneak out the door—
Out in the yard I run like the chickens
To milk the cows and feed the chickens;
Clean out the barnyard, curry Rhoda and Jiggs,
Separate the cream and slop all the pigs.
Hustle two hours, then eat like a Turk—
By heck—I am ready for a full day's work.

Then I grease the wagon and put on the rack,
Then sling a jug of water in the old grain sack,
Hitch up the mules slip down the lane,
Must get the hay in—looks like rain.
Look over yonder, sure as I'm born,
Cows on a rampage, hogs in the corn,
Start across the meadow run a mile or two,
Heaving like I am windbroken, get wet clean through.

Back with the mules, then for recompense,
Rhoda gets a-straddle the barb-wire fence.
Joints all aching, muscles in a jerk—
Whoop! Fit as a fiddle for a full day's work.

Work all summer until winter is nigh,
Then figure at the bank and heave a big sigh.
Work all the year, didn't make a thing,
Less cash now then I had last spring.
Some folks say there ain't no hell—
Shucks! They never farmed, how can they tell?

When spring rolls around, I take another chance—
As fuzz grows longer on my old gray pants.
Give my galluses a hitch, belt another jerk,
By gosh, I am ready for a full year's work.

Not Much Loss
There were two Browns in the village, both fishermen. One lost his wife and the other his boat at about the same time. The vicar's wife called, as she supposed on the widower, but really on the Brown whose boat was lost.

"I'm sorry to hear of your great loss," she said.

"Oh, it ain't much matter," was the reply. "She wasn't up to much."

"Indeed, said the surprised lady.

"Yes," continued Brown. "She was a rickety old thing. I offered her to my mate, but he wouldn't have her. I've had my eye on old Tom Ross' for some time."

GOOD ATTENDANCE AT ANNIVERSARY

Overture of 1812, in the middle of it. We have not heard the trampling of the French legions as they invaded Russia, or their singing of their national anthem as they march. We hear only the deep groan of the Nation as it deserted Moscow. And then the glad ringing of the bells of the Kremlin, and the joyous tones of the Russian national anthem when the invasion has failed, and the miserable French army are dragging themselves back to Paris.

Following up the figure, the preacher examined some of the passages in this psalm of victory, stating that they present a succession of spiritual discoveries

(I) The discovery of a heart religion. Some of these Hebrews thought only in terms of the surveyors line, the lot of their material inheritance. They cared for no higher experience of God's blessings. But when all these things have been swept away, asked the speaker, What then? When homes and property, when country and friends when health and peace of mind, when bank accounts and means of livelihood have been swept away, when there is nothing tangible to symbolize God's blessing. What then? You have nothing left unless you can find God dwelling in your heart. Your religion is what you have left, when all earthly valuables are lost. If your soul has not learned to find God within itself it can only turn in folly to another God with the vain hope of recovering what you have lost. "Their sorrows shall be multiplied who exchange Jehovah for another God." God within is the psalmist's antisepic against idolatry, and it will be your antiseptic against questioning doubts and despair.

(II) A new discovery of Righteousness. It is like the unsuspected, marvellous scene when the fog lifts. Jesus spoke of moral blindness, and another psalm says that "The commandments of the Lord are pure, enlightening the eyes".

When people see God they see through much else God is the great teacher of Conscience. The story of men who have seen God, is one of highest conception of purity, honesty, kindness, patience, sacrifice, the story of the repudiation and detestation of everything low. Zachaeus looked into the face of Jesus, and got a vision of the true life. The woman of the streets with her ribald companion joining the crowd around Jesus to scoff at the Nazarene fell under the spell of His purity, and later came to Simon the Pharisee's house and washed the feet of Jesus with tears of repentance, and wiped them with the hairs of her head. Saul of Tarsus visioned God in Christ on the Damascus road, and reconstructed his whole life. Written codes and statutes can never change the heart of man. Only a vision of God can do it.

(III) The third discovery, continued the preacher, is that these heart experiences provide a solution to all of life's most annoying problems.

Remarkably good music was given by the choir, their numbers being "Lord I Believe"; and "Face to Face" by Tullar, in the morning, and "Now the Day is Over", and "The Wonderful Story", by Gabriel, in the evening. A special request came from several music lovers, to have Miss Jean Priest sing, to which she very acceptably responded with "The Light of Life", by Bonar and Eville.

In the evening Dr. Parker preached on "The Inescapable God" and quoting at length from Francis Thompson's "Hound of Heaven" he said the God pursues us as he pursued Jacob. In contradistinction to Esau, the animal, Jacob was a quiet brooding idealist. He was no weakling. The Bible only records worthwhile characters. Jacob was courteous to women, an ardent lover, tenacious, clever, but crafty, treacherous, deceitful scoundrel. But God pursued him and rescued him from his evil tendencies. God pursued us in his hosts. At Bethel he broke in upon Jacob's privacy. At the Jabbok the Angel of the Lord stands between him and further advance. Jacob had dealt treacherously with Esau, and with Laban, he must now deal with God. He could not come into the blessing of the birthright until he had dealings with God. God is inescapable. Jacob had to realize what he was in God's sight, a swindler, and then convicted and repenting, he left all that behind the river Jabbok, and was a new man, with a new name, Israel, the prince, that crossed over to meet Esau.

God eludes us. Jacob wrestled till dawn trying to hang onto the angel for the revelation of daylight. But when morning dawned he was left alone. Job said, "Oh that I might know where I might find Him... He hideth Himself that I cannot see Him etc." But, concluded the preacher, God has revealed Himself in Christ, who said, He that hath seen me hath seen the Father.

Mulock (Our Own Correspondent)
Congregations taxing the capacity of the church assembled on Sunday last morning and evening to worship and celebrate their anniversary. The preacher of the day was the Rev. L. E. Mason of Paisley Baptist church, who has left a lasting impression on his hearers by his earnest and devout discourses. At the morning service the speaker chose as his text the latter part of the third verse of the first Psalm: "And whatsoever he doeth shall prosper." Here he warned his hearers not to be numbered amongst the ungodly, the sinners, nor the scornful, but to see that the individual life as well as the life of the church and all the organizations are linked with God. The godly alone shall so prosper and have the certainty of eternal life. At the evening service the subject was from II Corinthians v:13: "The love of Christ." To Paul the love of Christ was vivid, personal, mystical, and the Christian power to live the life of service. So all were urged to say with Paul: "For me to live is Christ." Excellent solos rendered by Mrs. Galloway added much to the impressive services. Beautiful decorations of flowers and the fruits of garden and field adorned the pulpit and windows of the church, in which no effort was spared to make the services attractive and bring to the minds of the people the bountiful harvest that had just been gathered in.

As on Sunday, the church was again packed Monday evening with a contented and happy throng. The ladies of the congregation proved ideal hostesses when they served a bountiful lunch. The programme consisted of several numbers from the male quartette of the Hanover Baptist church, an address by Rev. T. Richards, greetings from Crawford and Lamlash churches were given by D. J. McDonald and D. Chittick. A number of humorous recitations were given by Gertrude Fisher of Ayton, and a solo by Mrs. Galloway. A specially excellent number was given by Miss Edith Long of Walkerton, and an instrumental by Mr. Harvey Smith, each number being much enjoyed. The chair was ably filled by Rev. J. Galloway, who excelled himself in his application of wit and humor, to the delight of the audience. He welcomed the many guests and moved a hearty vote of thanks to all who took part.

Miss Gertrude Fisher of Ayton is the guest of her friend, Miss Ulva McDonald this week.

Visitors at the home of Mr. Clark Torry were Mr. Clifton Bailey of Allan Park, Mr. Walls and daughter of Lamlash.

Mr. Gerald Brunt and friend, Miss C. Smith of Toronto, were week-end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Brunt.

Miss Eva Redford, Durham, was a welcome guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Adam, and attended the anniversary social Monday night.

Mr. John McDonald of McMaster University, Hamilton, spent Sunday at his home here and attended the anniversary services on Sunday.

WORLD WAR COWARD FOREIGN LEGION HERO

As an officer in the British army during the world war, he was stripped of his rank, degraded before the men he had commanded and sentenced by court-martial to be shot for cowardice.

As a private in the French army, going through the worst fighting around Verdun he was promoted on the field for courage and decorated afterwards by Marshall Foch, who described him as "the bravest man I have ever known."

That is the amazing story of a dual personality which has been revealed for the first time by French government department.

This coward-hero, an Englishman by birth, was 19 when the war broke out. He was working in France, and hurried home to join an English regiment.

Shortly after his arrival on the French front he was involved in an affair resulting in his being charged and convicted of cowardice. On the night fixed for the execution the man who was known as Potter managed to escape, and was hidden for some while by a French woman.

The hue and cry for him eventually died down, but apparently driven by remorse, he joined the foreign legion, claiming to be Alsatian. He gave his name as "Henry Mayer." Because he spoke perfect French he was able to get away with it.

"Mayer" won the rank of captain, and was wounded seven times, and has been mentioned numerous times for conspicuous bravery.

Recently his real identity was discovered by the French police but it is hoped that he will be shown mercy by his own government in view of the extraordinary circumstances.

TIMELY TIPS

Keep a pail of water near the sand bin in which carrots and beets are stored during the winter. This provides the moisture required to preserve vegetables in a cellar that is dry.

It is a mistaken idea that cucumbers must be soaked in cold water for some time before serving to remove the poison in them. They are not poisonous. Slice them and cover with ice until ready to serve, then remove ice.
