Henry Watterson thus nominates Tom Johnston as Democratic candidate for president in 1904.—'Did not Lincoln come thus, and Tilden and Cleveland? Why not this friend of Henry George; this millionaire Anarchist, so called, who has fighting blood, racehorse blood in his veins; who springs from stalwart Revolutionary stock; who was born lucky and got rich by his own exertion; at once a typical American and a thoroughbred Kentuckian crossed on a Buckeye; representing the common people yet not affrighting the classes; a possible Cleveland; and planted not merely in Ohio, the Virginia of the modern States and statesmen, but in Cleveland, Ohio, the home, the citadel of the Warwick who is said to make and unmake presidents.

The following is the reason given by a minister in a neighboring town for women taking their hats off in his church: "No human being can get much good out of the sermon unless he can see the speaker face to face and study its expression. No sermon can inspire a man who is looking into a lopsided aggregation of dead birds, stuffed weasels, chameleon skins, ribbons, jet beads, stick straws, paper flowers, corn tassels, and thistle down. It makes the sinner feel lost in this wilderness."

Last Tuesday morning Mr. John McDonald son of Mr. Hugh McDonald of the south line, arrived home from Michigan, with the first flinger of his right hand in a bottle of alcohol. John was running a butting saw in a mill and in some way the digit got too close to the revolving disc and tore it so badly that it had to be amputated at the third joint. The accident happened last Saturday and two hours after the doctor cut off the injured member, John was on the train on his way home.—Flesherton Advance.

The memorial service in the Baptist church on Sabbath morning last held in memory of the late Mrs. Jas. Stafford, of the 4th line, was largely attended. The pastor, Mr. Lamont, preached an appropriate and comforting sermon from Rev. 14:13—"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

HITS AND MISSES.

Wah Lee looked as if he were lost on Sunday night. He must have been looking for a girl. Some one might have relieved his anxiety.

A thankful wife sent the following recommendation to a patent medicine firm: "Gentlemen, before taking your medicine I was too weak to spank the baby, but now I can lick my husband, Heaven bless you."

Carried away by his own eloquence a London orator was earnestly commending the project of raising a memorial to the late Queen, so that "we may now be able to tell her virtues to our fellowmen, and when we are dead and gone, to our children yet unborn!"

A good pastor of a church not a hundred miles from Guelph, recently caused a succession of smiles to ripple over the faces of his congregation by quietly remarking, at the close of an operatic performance by the salaried soloist. "We will now resume the worship of God."

Nothing galls the natural pride of a true-blue Scotchman more than to have his country overlooked. A striking instance of this feeling is said to have occurred at the battle of Trafalgar. Two Scotchmen, messmates and bosom cronies, happened to be stationed near each other when the celebrated signal was given from Admiral Nelson's ship: "England expects every man to do his duty." "Not a word about poor Scotland," dolefully remarked Donald. His friend cocked his eye and turning to his companion, said: "Man, Donald, Scotland kens weel eneuch that nae son o' her's needs to be tell't to dae his duty. That's just a hint to the Englishers."

Here is a story of Carnegie told by himself: "One winter Mr. Carnegie and Mr. Schwab were spending a few days in Florida, and as a lark went to a colored church. After the sermon the minister asked for a collection for whitewashing the church. When the basket was passed to Mr. Carnegie and Mr. Schwab they dropped in a couple of crisp bills of large denominations. When the basket was placed on the desk in front of the colored divine that gentleman put on his spectacles, and with astonishment stamped on his face, closely examined the bills, and then, addressing the congregation, said:—"De whitewashin' ob dis chu'ch will begin to-morrow, providin' dat dese here notes dat de gentlemen in de rear ob de chu'ch dropped in de basket am not counterfeits.
