CORNER CONCERNS.

Mr. Alex. Allan is going to deliver on Monday in Markdale a load of County Commissioners as the summer session is to be held in that place.

A number of farmers to the north of us have had sheep worried by dogs. The town curs are suspected although every one spoken to about the matter declares that their dogs have been tied up all spring.

Weekly services have been resumed in the School again and will be continued during college holidays. Some that are not at all greedy in gospel matters enjoyed the change and now suggest that the service be shortened as much as possible during the warm weather.

This part will be well represented at the Farmers' excursion to Guelph as it is considered a day well spent. Miss Malinda Grasby is home from Scarborough visiting her mother and many other friends in this part.

Changing fall wheat seed with the U. S. is what might be called unrestricted trade relations. As they had thrown amongst their rye and goodness knows what not. The farmers who sowed it spent last week weeding out the extras.

This part sent a contingent to Knox Church picnic on Friday by the fashionable mode of travel, the bike. All report a good time.

A number of men poised on chimney tops along the line dressed in their night dresses trying to count the circus cars, were mistaken for flags hoisted to indicate a public holiday. All went to the circus only about two persons being left in a mile square.

We attended the Reform demonstration at Holstein on the eleventh. Although the meeting was announced for eight o'clock it did not commence until nine owing to so few being present, and the promoters would not believe that Gritism was so dead in Egremont and that even Ministers of the crown could not revive it.

The announcement had probably not been properly understood as out of an audience of 83 half of those were ladies, whom, we imagine, thought three leading gospel Ministers were present and a mammoth prayer meeting was to be held, as at the conclusion of the first speech when they perceived Grit politics was the topic and no good was to be heard, they retired.

Mr. Lachford was second speaker and jumped up in a splutter when he saw them go and begged for them to come back and wait for Graham's speech as his peculiar way of addressing ladies was comical and the best thing on their programme. He, Mr. L., made a short speech. He is young, gushing and impulsive and dwelt throughout on one single idea, that Grits are all honorable, Christian gentlemen, while Tories are wicked old sinners. Mr. Graham was to be the speaker of the evening and as two venerable old ladies from the country had remained in the hall he was able to give his speech as prepared without alterations, and joked away with the two old ladies until he almost had them into hysterics and finally asked them to excuse him for voting a tax on life insurance companies which is for the benefit of widows and orphans. He said those fellows were rich and could well afford to pay the tax with out raising the rates if they were not too miserably mean. Unlike the previous speaker he admitted that there were some blamed scamps in their party and that the Liberal press had spent columns and columns in denouncing the rascals, while Conservatives when they found a rogue in their party they banqueted him and made light of the matter. He said the finger of scorn was pointed at the Government by Tories and other good people for their election trickery in Elgin and Waterloo contests, but guessed they knew something just as bad about the other fellows if they liked to tell it, but their policy was not a slanderous talk of the past, but the future of Ontario and its developments. Mr. Gibson was the first speaker. He said the cry is "time for a change," but thought people should be guided by the report of the committee the Hon. Mr. Ross had appointed to examine if all was right, more especially amongst them was a Conservative, even though as he admitted, he had always voted for Government supporters. He said that their reason for disposing of the timber so recklessly in New Ontario was that population would make greater danger of fire and it was better to sell it and get some good of it than have it destroyed. He spent a good deal of time talking of his old chums in the House who have had their day and gone to their future reward which seemed to give him a good bit of concern. Like the other speakers he paid highest compliments to Dr. Jamieson, and said he was a veritable gentleman while in the city and had voted against almost every act of the Government. Mr. Binnie was announced to make his maiden speech of the campaign, but declined, no doubt, owing to the smallness of the crowd. The meeting concluded with cheers for the King and Binnie.

TRAVERTON

Mr. A. Cook spent a few days of last week with relatives at Maple Hill.

Mr. W. L. Falkingham, of the Falls, had a week girl added to the household, lately. That is lassie No. 5.

Mr. W. J. Greenwood is having part of the old mansion fitted up. Neighbor, John McNally is making several improvements on his home. Mr. Mc. has his farm and buildings in good shape now.

Mr. Thos. Cook has re-roofed the greater part of his barn. His son, Bert, was highly successful in the recent medical examination at Toronto.

Mr. Wm. Paylor is also making improvements in the Falkingham property. He has raised one of the buildings and is having a stone stable built under it. So improvements are taking place every day.

Mr. Jim Allan, Miss Hunter and her brother, of Egremont, were guests of the Hastie family last week and took in Zion's concert.

The mental activities are reached through the heart, the physical powers through the stomach. This old saying was verified here lately when the members of the Beef Ring Ass'n met to erect a slaughter house. Not a chap but hustled. With Mr. Thos. Turnbull for designer and Mr. Jas. Boyle as master carpenter the structure was reared and completed in first class shape before the sun went down last week. 'Twas a prime one slaughtered. 'Twas a prime one supplied by Mr. Thos. Glencross; weighed 428 lbs. The joke is on Mr. Jim Bartley, who came early, early in the morn, the day before it was killed, for his portion.

Word came to Mrs. J. Delaney early last week, that Mr. R. N. Penfield, late of Traverston Mills had died very suddenly in Kansas. Much sympathy is felt for Mrs. D. as she has a family of five young children dependent upon her.

Miss Jennie Smith, of Brooklyn, is spending her holidays at Mr. Geo. Blair's.

Some time ago, Mr. Jno. Greenwood and Miss Sue attended the funeral of the former's brother-in-law, Mr. Robertson, of Molesworth. Mr. Greenwood returned in a couple of days, but Miss Sue is spending a month with her sister there.

Zion's concert last Tuesday evening was, perhaps, one of the most enjoyable and successful ever held. Rev. Wray K. Smith most aptly performed the duties of chairman and added considerably to the programme by a sketch of the Pan-American. The children and young folks did specially good work, but the songs of Mr. J. A. Hunter and the recitations by Miss Maude Irwin were the crowning successes of the evening. Both have won many warm words of praise from Zionites, who also, are very grateful. Reeve McFadden made his first appearance amongst us, and being called upon made a neat, complimentary speech. The Reeve is becoming more popular every day. The proceeds of concert were $18.50.

JUNE WEDDING.

"When love is loved, Earth has nothing to show more fair. When love is not loved, Hope's choicest pleasures doth flee." These poetical ideas rang "little bells of change from word to word" through your scribe's imagination as he watched with intense pleasure the happy blending of two young hearts on June 5th at Limehouse, Halton Co., Ontario.

For weeks before old Probs seemed "sullen and forlorn" for nothing but a cold drenching rain—not "sounds of vernal showers on the twining grass"—greeted the human eye. But, says the wizard of old, odd numbers are lucky, and so, as if to verify this statement, Old Sol on the above date, donned his gayest of wardrobes and clothed the earth in beauty. It was such a day as would cause any ardent Briton to exclaim "Canada, with all thy faults I love thee still!" The contracting parties were Mr. T. McArthur Ives, of Toronto, and Miss Catherine Sharp, eldest daughter of Mrs. S. Sharp (nee Miss Maggie Campbell, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Campbell, of Welbeck, Ont.) Limehouse, Ont.

The groom is a popular business man of Eton & Co's establishment, Toronto. He is of a majestic mien, and "to rule, to comfort and command" will find him at home. The bride is a pretty brunette of twenty-three summers, and for two years or so taught successfully in Rockwood, P. S., and S. S. No. 9, Sullivan, Ont. "The Willow" the home of the bride and the scene of the happy event is a beautiful little country cot surrounded by an attractive mountain spur. Here, flowing rivulets, whitening willows, quivering aspens, inviting uplands, rocky ledges and luxuriant dales, variegate the country and form a scene of ideal beauty. The capacious diningroom was suitably decked for the occasion. At exactly 3 p. m. the bridal party took their stand, amidst hosts of friends, to the joyous strains of the wedding march, played by Miss F. Ives. The bride was given away by her grandpa, Mr. Duncan Campbell, of Welbeck, Ont. The groom was assisted by Mr. George E. Smith, of Toronto, University, while Miss Mary Sharp tastily assisted her sister through the trying ordeal. The knot that made two hearts "beat as one," was tied by the Rev. Mr. McPherson, an old Bruce boy.

The bride wore a dress of Swiss muslin trimmed with valenciennes lace and baby ribbon with yoke of lace and white satin ribbon sash. She carried a bouquet of white roses and the bridesmaid pink roses, both gifts of the groom. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold belt buckle and to the bridesmaid a gold pin.

After the ceremony was performed a rich repast was done ample justice to. Numerous speeches and toasts followed in due order. Friends from Toronto, Charleston, Rockwood, Guelph, Dornoch, and Welbeck all with one accord voiced the sterling qualities of the bride and predicted a happy future. The presents were numerous and of the choicest qualities. The happy couple amidst showers of rice, slippers and old boots left by evening train for their future home on 156 Argyle St., Toronto.

The union picnic of S. S. No. 1 and Knox Church Sunday School was held in Mr. Will Corson's bush on Friday, June 14th. It was one of the largest picnics ever held in this vicinity, loads from Preeceville and Yeovil swelling the number. The teacher, Miss McCannel, and her assistants had a splendid programme prepared consisting of vocal music by the choir and school children, instrumental music by the Ball family, recitations by several children and Mr. Dave Gilmour recited in his usual taking way. Mr. James Watson Miss and Alice favored the company by a well rendered duet. Mr. D. McDonald and Mr. J. Redford, two of our former teachers, spoke briefly, and Mr. W. Wallace also gave a short address. Rev. Mr. Campbell ably filled the position of chairman. There were several races by the children but we did not hear who were successful in gaining the prize money. The tables were laden with an abundance of good things which satisfied the inner man. About 7 p. m. the picnickers gathered on the football grounds where an interesting game was played between Normanby and Yeovil, resulting in 1 to 0 in favor of Normanby. The people then went home convinced that Normanby can do it as well as it is done.
