Saturday Night in no uncertain sound takes a hand in touching up the "energetic nobodies" who will force themselves into the presence of Royalty to spell out their frothy productions. The article is well worth reading, though it may not be very effectual, as no amount of newspaper or other ridicule will pierce the hides of egotistic nonentities who are smelling round for positions they haven't the ability to fill. SATURDAY NIGHT is level on the question and this is what it says:

Immediately after writing my last Miss Nelly McAssey, of Traverston, report a very unfortunate occurrence called on her sister, Mrs. Jno. Sulli- prevented me from getting another off in time. On my exhibition visiting day a fire took place starting in a restaurant and destroying the building and contents, also a band stand. The excitement was intense as it was feared that other buildings would go also. But there was little cr no wind and the prompt action of For the firemen prevented what was at one time expected to be a general wipeout. The cooks and waiters in the building destroyed came out in a disorderly condition and many of them lost their outdoor wearables. However, that matter was soon rectified no one was injured and the loss amounting to some $15,000, was fully covered by insurance. Of course this put a stop to my visit for the time, thus preventing me from getting my budget off in time. Will try and keep up after this burning accident.

Mr. A. Butters, of Priceville, arrived a day or two after the fire and he and your cor. took a part of a day and visited the Canadian section. This Section and the Exhibit in the annex to it is by far the largest and best of any Exhibit outside of Britain Canadian industries are exhibited in many striking ways, and are calculated to impress upon the visitor the extent to which they have developed many places the following incident and the importance they possess.
