Mrs John Hallman of this place narrowly escaped death by poisoning last Friday. About noon on that supposed was a dose of Pain Killer for a temporary ailment. As soon as she had swallowed the liquid her mistake was, of course, obvious to her. She had swallowed 15 drops of iodine. With remarkable presence of mind she immediately drank a pint of milk and the family physician when he arrived stated that the prompt action in taking the antiseptic and her clear-headedness had no doubt saved her life. Not every one would have kept their head in a like instance. We are pleased to state that Mrs. Hallman is recovering nicely from the mishap.—Hanover Post.

The Listowel junior football team went to Milverton on Wednesday to play a match with the juniors of that place. A hotly contested game, in which neither side had scored, was almost finished when an unfortunate accident occurred which put an im mediate end to the game. In a rush for the ball, Charlie Zilliax, one of the Listowel players, and son of Mr. Chris. Zilliax of the Queen's, received a kick on the leg, which broke the bone between the knee and ankle. It was purely an accident, the kick being intended for the ball. Surgical assistance was secured and the fractured limb attended to Charlie was brought home yesterday by train, and is doing as well as can be looked for. His companions and friends very much regret the accident .-Listowel Standard.

On Saturday night, Jack O'Brien, a gentleman well known around Chepstow, was called upon to appear before His Worship, the Police Magistrate, to answer to a charge of larceny. Larceny means stealing, and the things stolen or alleged to have been stolen were four Plymouth Rock chickens, the property of Mr. John Grainger, of Walkerton. Constable Russel, first of all obtained a search warrant, but on searching Mr. O'Brien's premises he only found two of the chickens and a lot of feathers. However, that was enough, and O'Brien was fined $5 and costs or 30 days in jail. Not having the money, O'Brien went to jail for the time being. but on Monday two of the town councillors put up the money cut of their own pockets, and O'Brien was once more a free man. Hazen Jackson was also mixed up in the affair, but so far he has not been located .-Telescope.

On Tuesday afternoon the people of this village were shocked to hear of the sudden death of an old resident of the village, Mr. Matthew Stanley. He had been making arrangements with his brother George to put in a new furnace, and in company with his brother came up to Stanley and McLaggan's hardware store about 2 p. m. He walked back to the part of the store where the seeds are kept. His brother was getting grass seed for a customer and Mr. M. Stanley said. "I feel a weak spell coming over me." Mr. George told him to go into the tinshop where these was more air and he took on ly two steps when he reeled and fell. Mr. Geo. Stanley caught him but his brother being a very heavy man he was unable to prevent him falling to the floor Dr. Brereton was on the spot in half a minute after Mr. Stanley fell but he was dead before the doctor arrived. ### DR. STOWE CREMATED.

Remains Taken to Buffalo by her Sons.

Howard Jennings Stowe were cremated at Buffalo to-day. The funeral service was held last night at her late residence, 463 Spadina avenue, being conducted by one of her old friends, the Rev. Dr. Parker, and the Rev. Dr. Sunderland of the Unitarian Church. Mr. Howard Stowe, Dr. Frank Stowe and Dr. J. B. Gullen accompanied the remains to Buffalo, that city being nearer than Montreal, where is located the only crematory in Canada, and will bring the ashes of deceased back to this city. Both from santary motives and for convenience the late Mrs. Stowe was a firm believer in cremation, and her last wishes have been carried out by her relatives, despite much protest and comment by her acquaintances. She dreaded the burial method now in vogue. "I have never done an act upon earth to pollute it, and I do not wish to do so in dissolution,' were her words to her daughter. The most proper manner for her earthly remains to return to the elements was, in her opinion, the process of cremation. The funeral sermon was brief and most informal. "O Rest in the Lord" was sung by Mrs. Pal mer, an intimate friend of the deceased, and made a great impression upon the mourners. The house was filled with floral decorations from re lations and colleagus from far and near.—Toronto News.

A week ago last Sunday one of our boys coming home along the sideroad past the place where the man's body was found some time ago had a hair-raising experience. He saw a man walking on the road ahead of his team. He overtook the man just at the little culvert where the corpse was discovered and asked him if he would have a ride. The man looked at him and did not answer, as he passed to the back of the wagon. Having stopped his horses the young man turned around to see if the pedestrian was climbing in. There was no person in sight. He got down and looked under the wagon and into the culvert but no person could he see.
