Anybody wishing to sell cigarettes in Dundalk must pay a license fee of $100, under penalty of a fine of not less than $10 and not more than $100 upon non-payment thereof.

Sometime ago a little homeless Walkerton girl was placed with an old couple down the country who had no children of their own, by the Children's Aid Society. The old people have taken a great fancy to the child, and a day or two ago, Mr. Shaw, the President of the Society, received a letter from them stating that they had decided to leave the child all their property. This property consists in part of a first-class, one hundred acre farm. The youngster would seem to have struck it rich, so to speak.—Walkerton Telescope.

Durham has purchased a street sprinkler to lay the dust. Now if they will but purchase a smoke sprinkler to lay the smoke which makes the lives of housewives in Lower Town miserable, all the councillors may build on re-election by handsome majorities next winter. It is said the people of Durham have no use for white shirts now, anyway, and you can tell a Durham forty rods away by the sooty odor which emanates from his clothing. All Durham is said to be moving back up town to get above the clouds. Lower Town is too much like—well, there is no brimstone in it, but smoke and cinders make up for any lack in that respect. If this keeps on the good people of Durham will soon develop a complexion all their own, known as the cement tone, a slightly different shade from smoked herring.—Flesherton Advance.

On Friday last fire broke out in the frame building opposite the Royal Hotel on Harbor St. and despite the efforts of the fire brigade it was burnt to the ground. The origin of the fire is unknown but it had gained such headway by the time the alarm was sounded that the brigade could do little to prevent the flames from extending to the surrounding buildings. The Queen's Hotel stable caught fire several times but good work upon the part of the firemen and others prevented it from spreading. Mr. R. Baird, the owner of the building, had $300 insurance, but was unfortunate in having a hay press and barley cleaner stored in the place. The latter it is feared will be a total loss. The shop next door occupied by Mr. Jos. Hoekin was badly damaged by fire and water and it is not likely it will be rebuilt.—Bruce Herald.

John Sinclair met with a serious accident at his new barn on the old Ballard farm about 8 o'clock Tuesday morning. With his accustomed energy he was overseeing the building operations preparatory to raising and noticing a sill on the stone foundation a little out of place mounted the wall. In endeavoring to pry the timber into position he lost his balance and fell heavily to the ground a distance of about 9 ft. There happened to be a large stone where he fell and he was so unfortunate as to break both bones of his left arm a little above the wrist; the right arm is bruised and very sore. The right side of his face and his forehead are also bruised and two his teeth were knocked out. Altogether he got a pretty severe shaken up. Dr. McWilliam set the fracture and dressed his injuries. We were glad to see Mr. Sinclair on his feet on Wednesday and trust his recovery may be rapid.—Dundalk Herald.

A stranger at the present time might drive through Crawford and still not notice it. We haven't any departmental stores, underground railway or granolithic sidewalks, but every place must begin somewhere, and judging from the plan laid out by nature, Crawford is destined to be the great metropolis of Grey, at least, and perhaps of all Georgian Bay district. From the 12th con, almost down to the 7th is a continuous chain of lakes covering several hundreds of acres and stretching in places to almost half a mile in width. The bed of these lakes is composed of almost pure marl, which by actual measurement was found to attain the depth of at least 30 feet. This marl has been found by analysis to be 96 per cent pure, which together with its being present in such enormous quantities, makes it one of the world's foremost cement bonanzas. It is a marvel that some enterprising firm or capitalist has not before now taken the matter in hand. The Durham Company are said to be looking longingly in our direction, but as yet have done nothing that we are aware of towards utilizing our lakes. To run a branch out seems to be too expensive, but then the returns would be very great. The Hanover Company may as well keep on building their track now that they have started and run it up in here. Between the two of them they ought to strike onto some scheme. Whatever is done now or hereafter there is certainly a big fortune in it for some one. Those who own these lakes need not wait a great while before they can command enormous prices for them, now almost useless property.—Crawford correspondent of the Hanover Post.

The weather for the past few weeks has been very favorable for the builders and contractors of the House of Refuge, and we are able to report satisfactory progress being made in connection with the building operations. The stone foundation and the centre brick walls have been completed and the joist has been laid for the first floor. Mr. Fred Ryder, of Proton, who has the contract for the brick work, and his gang of men, commenced operations this Wednesday morning, and by the end of the month it is expected that the extensive brick walls will have been built. Six-inch tile has been laid from the House of Refuge 300 yards to the rear to a cesspool 12 feet square by 14 feet deep. Mr. Richards informs us that he expects to have everything in readiness shortly for the laying of the cornerstone of the building. This event which will be an auspicious one and of which further notice will be given later, will altogether likely take place week after next during the session of the County Council in Markdale. Mr. Russell, of Stratford, architect for the House of Refuge, was in town last week. He was here to see the complaint of Inspector Gordon, who was not satisfied with the way in which the basement windows had been built in the stone wall. The specifications asserted, Mr. Gordon claimed, that the windows should be set in nine inches from the outer surface of the wall, and they had been set in only three inches. Mr. Richards refused to make the change claiming that no specifications had been furnished him regarding the distance the windows were to be set in.—Markdale Standard.

A trial of very unusual character took place on Saturday afternoon. The circumstances are briefly as follows: About ten months ago, a girl named Mary Glynn, a resident of Walkerton, was committed to the House of Refuge. Although her parents reside here it was generally understood that they would have nothing to do with her, and refused to give her shelter. There was therefore nothing for it, but to send her to jail as a vagrant, or send her to the House of Refuge. Mr. Cryderman, who was then Mayor of Walkerton, thought the latter alternative the most humane and took step accordingly. All went well for a time, then the girl's parents began clamoring to get her out. The girl herself seemed quite content to remain where she was, at least until her child was a year old. Finally the girl's mother laid a complaint against Mr. White, the keeper of the House of Refuge, charging him with assault the ground of action being his refusal to grant the girl's discharge. Mr. White has no authority to discharge any inmate without the consent of the House of Refuge Committee. At the trial the girl swore that she was being detained against her will. Evidence was adduced to show that she had told members of the Committee and others that she did not want out, and that she was perfectly satisfied with the treatment received at the House of Refuge. The upshot was that Mr. White was fined $1 and costs. The County, of course, will have to pay this fine, but if one inmate can secure a conviction against the keeper for unlawful detention another can do the same thing and there will be no end to these lawsuits. We understand that the case will be appealed, but if the higher courts should uphold the magistrate's decision, then so far as we can see there will be nothing for it, but to close up this institution altogether. Just as soon as the inmates discover that the keeper has no legal authority over them they will begin to do as they like. They are hard enough to manage even as it is, now they may be expected at any time to break out into open rebellion. At the trial on Saturday Mr. Palmer conducted the case for the complainant, and Mr. Shaw for the defendant.—Telescope.

During the recent series of orchard meetings in the Georgian Bay district several new and interesting questions were brought up for discussion. For instance, at the meeting held at Bonda, April 2nd, two samples of injuries to trees were shown, with which the experts were not familiar. Mr. A. McNeill, Dominion Fruit Inspector, kindly offered to investigate the matter and report the result through the press of the district. These results are now submitted.

In Mr. Fleck's young orchard the trunks and branches were thickly covered with scars not unlike the wounds made by hail, but occurring on the under side of the branches as well. Mr. McNeill reports that this injury is caused by the Buffalo Tree Hopper, (Ceresa bubalus). This insect, which looks not unlike an animated beech nut with two sides somewhat longer than the third, makes its appearance about the middle of July and continues to live upon the juices of plants of various sorts till the end of summer. It seldom does much harm, although the scars made in the young wood for the deposit of eggs are somewhat unsightly. Dr. James Fletcher, Entomologist and Botanist of the Dominion Experimental Farms, says that there is no effective remedy for the Buffalo Tree Hopper.

The other injury appeared first as a dark discoloration on one of the larger branches. This discoloration extended and the wood died under the discolored bark. By the third year the limb was entirely girdled and the portion above the injury dead. This was undoubtedly a case of canker. The best remedy if the limb be small, is to cut it off well below the injury and burn it. If a larger limb or the trunk of a tree be attacked, it is advisable to cut out all diseased parts, well into the healthy tissue, wash with the Bordeaux mixture, and when the wood is somewhat dry, paint with linseed oil paint. The wood should be kept well painted to protect it from the weather until the wounds heal over.

CHEMIST — AND — DRUGGIST
DURHAM, ONT.

Glenroaden.

Miss Maggie Quinn was visiting her brother, Mr. John Quinn, also his niece, Miss Rebecca Shunn, of Amsterdam, N. York, for a few days last week.

Mr. Nathen Dunsmore, of Toronto, was visiting his sister, Mrs. John Quinn, for a couple of days lately.

Mr. Wm. Kenny found his colt near Southampton after a notice in that widely read paper, THE CHRONICLE.

A farewell party was given by Mr. Angus McKechnie on the eve of his departure for the North-west. Mr. McKechnie has not been enjoying very good health for some time, and his many friends hope the change will restore him to his usual robust and active vigor.

Mrs. Bailey is visiting her daughter, Mrs. John Queen, Jr. She is quite active for a woman of her years, 78.

Mr. A. McNilly, son of Mr. Thomas McNilly, of the 8th Con., Glenelg, had the misfortune to fall about 40 feet while assisting at a barn raising and fractured some of the bones in his leg. According to last reports he was doing well. It is to be hoped he will soon be all right again.

Mr. Hugh Vaughan has succeeded in getting water at a depth of about 40 feet. Andy says there is lots. Hugh would rather have more.

Mr. John Quinn has sold his fancy driver to Mr. Dan Campbell. Dan knows a good thing when he sees it. Mr. John Cameron is engaged at the mills here, and is up with the lark in the morning and has everything in apple pie order by 7 o'clock. John is faithful and willing to earn his hire.

Dry weather, short clover, caused by no rain.

Mrs. Allan Boyd has returned home from Superior after an absence of three or four months. She at one time had charge of the boarding house here and gave the best of satisfaction.

If the Goat would call at the mill he would get something that would be of some benefit to him. Cash, Bob, cash.

A Cheeky Cuss.

A tramp appeared at Mr. John Hoy's butcher shop on Tuesday morning and with a pitiful look upon his face and a tear in his eye enquired if there were any old scraps of meat in the shop that he could have. The polite butcher informed him that he would not encourage people tramping around doing nothing by giving them even scraps of meat. The tramp informed him that he could not get employment. The butcher replied that there was no occasion for any person to be idle if they were willing to work, and that he must be too lazy to work. Just three short words "A' you're a liar,"—and then the curtain raised for the second act in the comedy drama. It was exciting, and those who witnessed it got value for their money. Mr. Hoy is a law-abiding citizen and his generosity is a prominent trait in his character, but he had no time for his trampship and when he started in to take a part in the second act the tramp took to his heels. He ran up the street past Mr. Taylor's blacksmith shop with the butcher in hot pursuit. Mr. Thos. Lowe was coming down the street at the time, and the tramp, taking him for the chief of police, jumped a high wire fence to make good his escape. It was all a joke on the part of Mr. Hoy but the tramp did not see it that way and he tarried only about long enough to catch his breath. Chief Boon and a couple of stalwart assistants started out about half an hour after the chase to arrest the tramp and open up act three, but they did not locate him. There is no truth in the report that they had two revolvers and a Winchester Repeating Rifle each when they were making the search. His trampship bobs up serenely in the fourth act and unknowingly gets ahead of the butcher. When Mr. Hoy returned to his home that evening on the Meaford gravel road he told his wife of the fun they had with the tramp. After getting a description of the fellow, "Why," remarked Mrs. Hoy, "that's the same fellow that came to the house and got his dinner to-day." Our readers will have to draw on their imagination for the rest.—Thornbury Herald

Deafness is Curable! Sufferers from impaired hearing will be glad to know that their affliction is probably not due to any organic defect in the ear, but results probably from a thickening of the lining of the middle ear caused by catarrhal inflammation. Hundreds of perfect recoveries as a result of the inhalation of Catarrhazone are reported, and on the highest authority we recommend this treatment to our readers. Catarrhazone quickly restores lost hearing, and its efficiency is placed beyond dispute by the case of Mr. Warren, of Toronto, who recovered perfect hearing by using Catarrhazone, after years of deafness. Price $1. At druggists or by mail, from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.
