

The Union Jack.

Read by Mr. Thompson, Teacher, of Allan Park, at the South Grey Teachers' Institute, in Durham, at the October Annual Meeting.

An orator once said of a flag. "It is a piece of bunting lifted in the air but it speaks sublimity and every part has a voice." This is especially true of the Union Jack and every child should be taught to hear these voices and understand the message they convey and to love and honor the flag.

Across the face of the flag is the red cross of St. George the Patron Saint of England. About nine hundred years ago Richard the Lion-heart fitted out a fleet to go on a crusade to the Holy Land and near Beyrout won a decisive victory over the Saracens. Near Beyrout is an ancient grove famed as the traditional spot where the brave knight St. George slew the dragon which was about to devour the daughter of the King of the City. In memory of this victory over the Saracens Richard adopted the Red cross of St. George on a white ground as his banner during the rest of the crusade, and afterwards St. George was known as the Patron Saint of England.

Many of England's greatest victories and discoveries were made under this flag. They won the great naval victory of Sluys which gave England command of the seas. It floated above the English soldiers when they carried death and destruction into the ranks of the French at Cressy Poitiers and Agincourt. Under it Drake sailed around the world, Cabot discovered Cape Breton, Newfoundland, Labrador, and Raleigh founded Virginia. The ships of Elizabeth defeated the Great Spanish Armada and rather than haul down this glorious flag from the mast-head, Sir Richard Grenville with one ship fought fifty-three vessels, the whole naval power of Spain.

Ship after ship the whole night long
The high built galleons came
Ship after ship the whole night long
With their battle-chimney and flame
Ship after ship the whole night long
Drew back with her dead and her shame
For some were sunk and many were shattered
And so could fight us no more
God of battles was ever a battle like this
In the world before.

All those glorious victories were won before England was joined by her sister nations Ireland and Scotland and it is a fitting tribute to her prowess that to-day the single red cross of St. George is the flag borne by the Admirals who command the British fleet.

The original flag of Scotland was the cross of St. Andrews, a white diagonal cross on a blue ground. In the year 987 it is said that Athelstane King of West Saxons marched with a large army against King Hungus of the Picts. King Athelstane of the Scots joined King Hungus and the night before the battle while the Scots were praying to St. Andrew for victory there appeared across the blue sky a white cloud in the shape of a diagonal cross. The Scots encouraged by this sign attacked the Saxons with such impetuosity that they were driven from the field with great slaughter and since that time St. Andrew has been the Patron Saint of Scotland, and the white cross of St. Andrew on a blue ground has been their flag. This was the flag displayed by Robert Bruce at the Battle of Bannockburn where he defeated the immense army King Edward had gathered to crush him, and although the men under it have not always been victorious still even in defeat their foes have been reminded of the motto of the Scotch Thistle, "No one may touch me with impunity."

In 1603 James III of Scotland became King also of England. This fact did not unite the two countries in anything except that they owed allegiance to one King. Their Parliaments and Courts of Justice were entirely separate. The Scotch ships continued to use St. Andrew's cross and the English that of St. George but some of them put up both flags and this caused trouble. To avoid this James got his heralds to make what was called an additional Jack which the ships of both England and Scotland were to carry as well as their own Jack.

This Jack did not show a union of the two countries but was merely made to avoid trouble for we find that in the reign of Charles the I. the right to use the additional Jack was taken from the merchant vessels and confined to the Royal Navy, the merchant vessels being commanded to use only the flag of their own country. Except for a short time during the common-wealth these flags were used until in the reign of Anne, 1707, the parliaments of England and Scotland were united.

Before the union both Parliaments agreed that the flag of the united countries should be the crosses of St. George and St. Andrew joined in such manner as Queen Anne should see fit. This flag consisted of St. Andrew's cross on a blue ground having the red cross of St. George with a white border laid over it. The only difference between it and James' additional Jack being that the white border of the red cross was wider in the Jack of Queen Anne than in that of James.

It was under this flag that Clive won India for the English. Wolfe raised it above Quebec and gained Canada for the English and it was this same flag that floated at the mast head when Nelson won the Battle of the Nile.

Ireland has two emblems, the harp which was shown on the Great Union of Cromwell and St. Patrick's cross, a red diagonal cross on white ground. It is supposed that St. Patrick suffered martyrdom on a cross of this shape, so when he was made Patron Saint of Ireland the emblem of the red cross was adopted by the Irish.

In the reign of George III. when the parliament of Ireland was united with that of Great Britain the red cross of St. Patrick was united with that of England and Scotland to form the red white and blue of our present Union Jack. This flag united the three crosses. The red and white diagonal crosses of St. Patrick and St. Andrew united and having the red cross of St. George laid over all.

The ground was to be blue. The Red of St. George 1-5 width of flag. The white border of St. George 1/3 of red of St. George. The red of St. Patrick 1-3 of the red of St. George. The red border of St. Patrick 1-6 of red of St. George. White of St. Andrew 1-2 of red of St. George.

Since 1801 no change has been made in the flag. It is beautiful and easily distinguished and has the great advantage of being a national flag made up of the crosses of the three different countries. Its colors in heraldry mean, red—bravery, white—purity, blue—truth. Thus we see the three sister nations united by courage to build up a realm on a foundation of purity and truth.

It is only a small bit of bunting
It's only an old colored rag
Yet thousands have died for its honor
And shed their best blood for the flag.

It's charged with the cross of St. Andrew's
Which of old Scotland's heroes has led
It carries the cross of St. Patrick
For which Ireland's bravest have bled.

Joined with these is our old English ensign
St. George's red cross on which field
Round which from King Richard to Robert
Britons conquer or die but ne'er yield.

It flutters triumphant o'er ocean
As free as the winds and the waves
And bondsmen from shackles unloosed
Neath its shadows no longer are slaves.

It floats o'er Cyprus and Malta
O'er Canada, the Indies, Hong Kong
And Britons where'er the flag's flying
Claims the rights which to Britons belong.

We hoist it to show our devotion
To our King and our country and laws
It's the outward and visible emblem
Of advancement and Liberty's cause.

You may say it's an old bit of bunting
You may call it an old colored rag
But freedom has made it majestic
And time has ennobled the flag.

The Germs of Catarrh.

Not only attack the passages of the head and throat but finally reach the lungs and cause consumption. Nothing destroys Catarrh so quickly as fragrant healing Catarrhoxone which relieves the cough, stops the discharge, takes all soreness from the throat. "I consider Catarrhoxone has no equal as a cure for catarrh and lung trouble" writes Jas. E. Wetherell, of Brighton. "It cured me after many good Doctors failed to even relieve my trouble." Catarrhoxone can't fail to cure—It's guaranteed. Two months treatment $1.00; trial size 25c.

Sackett's Corners.

The weather at present is all that could be desired, and the Farmers have got their turnip crop well stored away. We regret to learn of the death of Mr. Duncan McMillen, of Proton. Deceased has been in poor health for some time, and death would be a happy release. Mr. McMillen was one of the old Pioneers of Proton who settled in this country when it was a wilderness, and made a comfortable home for himself and family. He was wide and favorable known, and when in good health always took an active part in church and Sabbath School. His funeral was largely attended and interment took place at St. Andrew's Church, Swinton Park. We extend our sympathy to the bereaved widow and family.

Hallowe'en passed of very quietly here. Every one was on their good behaviour and as far as we can learn nothing was done to cause any one's displeasure, but from what we hear the people of Botheville were not so fortunate, as the place looked as if it had been struck with a North Dakota Blizzard and whirled things out of place in general.

Mrs. Donald McMillen, of Web Wood, formerly of this place, is in Toronto Hospital, undergoing an operation which we are pleased to learn has been a success. Mrs. McMillen is doing well.

Miss Carry Parris has invested in a Bell Organ. When the Music teacher from Dundalk makes a few dozen trips we will have lots of music.

Mr. Geo. Lane has built a new pig pen, and so has Mr. G. Sackett. Mr. G. Witter is also building a drive barn and slaughter house.

PIMPLES SPOILED HER BEAUTY.

A Society Belle of Kingston Cured of Pimples and Blotches by Using Ferrozone.

Miss Evelyn M. Gaetz of Kingston, writes: "I had an attack of blood disorder which broke out in horrid looking pimples. They were ugly red disfiguring blotches that ruined the appearance of my face. I tried all sorts of medicine but the pimples didn't leave. I was recommended Ferrozone and gave it a trial. I noticed an improvement after the second box, and kept up the treatment which finally cleared my skin. As the result of Ferrozone I have a clear healthy complexion and can recommend it to all other young women similarly affected."

Another young lady well known in society circles of Springfield, who derived exceptional benefit from Ferrozone, says: "I feel it my duty to make known the value of Ferrozone. My trouble was poor, weak blood, and as a consequence my lips were pallid, and my cheeks had no color. I wasn't at all strong and required a bracing tonic. Ferrozone soon brought color to my cheeks, improved my appetite and made me stronger than I had been in years. I favor Ferrozone because it is so simple to take and works so quickly."

Just one Ferrozone tablet at meals that's all. Easy to take, sure to cure, and not expensive. Better use Ferrozone and be beautiful and strong like others that employ this splendid tonic. Price 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50, at all druggists or by mail from the Ferrozone Company, Kingston, Ontario. Don't fail to get a supply of Ferrozone to-day.
