DURHAM CHRONICLE

W. IRWIN, Editor and Proprietor.

Durham, Nov. 12th, 1903.

MR. ROSS IN MUSKOKA.

Toronto News.

There is something pitiful in Mr. Ross' plea to the electors of Muskoka. We miss the high note of other and more robust days. Time was when the Liberals were presented from every platform in Canada as the party of fair elections and honest politics. To-day Mr. Ross can offer nothing better than a laborious argument, designed to show that at least the Liberals are not more corrupt than Conservatives, who as Sir John Macdonald used to say, never pretended to be better than their neighbors. What a change from the days of Mackenzie, Blake and Mowat! It would be interesting if we could have the views of the fathers of Canadian Liberalism on the Government's unspeakable cowardice in shirking a contest in North Renfrew.

ROSS IS RESPONSIBLE.

Toronto News.

Mr. Ross' friends find fault with the criticism to which he is sometimes subjected, but how can he stand as a chivalrous and honorable public man if he sanctions such methods as were employed to bribe and coerce the electors of Sault Ste Marie and consents to outrage the Constitution and to lie in wait for a trickster's advantage, as in the case of North Renfrew? He knows how much he is sacrificing Mr. Stratton and his machine, and he should know also that the price is infinitely more than he can afford to pay if he desires to have an honorable place in the history of his province. He may win North Renfrew, and the victory may give his Government two or three more years of office. He may lose, and if he does his Government will hardly survive, and all the shuffling and plotting and buying of the last few years will have gone for nothing. In any event a change of Government in Ontario cannot be long delayed, and there is grave reason to fear that the Liberal party will go out of office loaded with a record of official shuffling and of electoral ill-doing that will discredit it for half a generation. Much of this Mr. Ross could have prevented, and he, more than any other man, will be held to account for the unworthy practices by which his Government continues to hold power, and by which his party remains dominant in Ontario.

SANCTUM SIFTINGS.

If a man is too lazy to work and earn an honest living, it would be much safer for him to cultivate a successful limp and go begging rather than take the chances of stealing for a livelihood. Even the most timorous can shoot off a piteous recital of some imaginary misfortune, and whether or not he deserves to be the recipient of charity he will find a responsive chord in many a heart and pick more money than he could earn by honest toil. It may not be out of place here to express the opinion that a large percentage of mendicants are not deserving of public consideration, and a curtailment of generosity on the part of a credulous public would go a long way to reduce the army of beggars. How often does a person feel galled at finding the recipient of his favor an hour afterwards staggering on the street or rolling in the gutter!

The newspapers have had considerable to say about fakirs since the time of the Fall Shows. This paper has not allowed the occasion to pass without a protest against this unnecessary adjunct to the country fair. In a neighboring village the manipulator of a skin game offered sixty dollars for the privilege of doing business for a few hours on the day of the show. To the credit of the management the favor was denied and the fakir left next train for more congenial quarters. Is there any one fool enough to imagine a person giving sixty dollars for the privilege of performing his antics and giving something for nothing to a gaping crowd? Let someone who attended Durham fair answer.

When the Man on the Street sees a good article in any paper he is not only pleased to copy it, but pleased also to give credit to the source from which he takes his selections. This week he gives a number of well written, pointed and pithy paragraphs from The Shoe and Leather Journal, published in Toronto, every issue of which contains a number of cleverly written articles under the heading, "Scrap Shots from Solomon." Were he to clip these and put them in his original articles many of our readers would put him down as a clever contributor to the columns of this paper. It may be modest, or honest, or perhaps fear of being found out that keeps him from doing so. If a man is a Jackdaw, or Jack of any other breed, he'll soon be found out when he tries to pass himself off as a Peacock.

SERVANTS AS KINGS.

The man who was raised on potatoes and salt usually makes the biggest fuss about what he is given to eat. When you find a fellow kicking at the way the quail is put on toast you don't miss your guess when you put him down for a bog trotter. The worst nigger driver is often the pot bellied bully who made his first dollar a good deal harder than he spends it now. The woman who can't keep a servant is nine times out of ten one who has graduated from a kitchen run by as big an upstart as herself. What is bred in the bone will come out in the flesh. The gentleman to a manor born, whether he carries a hod or wears a coronet, can't hide his blue blood. The dress suit may cover a multitude of sins, but it can't hide boor nature. Of Felix, governor of Judea, Tacitus said: "He ruled with the spirit of a slave." He came from the scum, and like his contemporary, Judas, he gravitated towards his own place. Put a beggar on horseback and he'll ride to the devil. The servant when he reigneth is a sight to "make the angels weep."—Solomon, in the Shoe and Leather Journal.

A FULL FOOL.

A swelled head and a big belly are the hall-marks of a fool. One of this ilk who had just returned from "abroad", was descending recently to a much-bored acquaintance for the benefit of a full street car, upon the shortcomings of the best European hotels. He found it so awfully difficult, don't-you-know, to get decent quarters in some of the swell watering places of the old world. Of course this was the idiot's way of letting people know that he had travelled. There was not a child in the car but sized up the loud-mouthed braggart, who, at the same time, forgot there might be people listening to his yap who were aware that a few years ago he was clerking it at nine dollars a week, and boarded at a hash factory. The cad. It is safe to say that he went in when "abroad" for cheap restaurants and backstreet hotels. When some men get a little money and a full stomach, the world is too small for them. When you find yourself talking big or showing off get some big negro to give you a swift lift under the caudal extremity, or some candid friend to jog your memory on the old shake-down in the attic. "A fool filled with meat would make an alligator sick."—Solomon, in the Shoe and Leather Journal.

SERVANTS AS HEIRS.

A servant who thinks he is "it" is next to the principal who can't wipe his nose without asking the book-keeper. It is a good thing to have employees take an interest in the concern, but it is a bad thing to have them give outsiders the idea that they are the whole thing. Some of these arrogant understrappers are worse to deal with than the most pudding-headed principal. Don't hand over your business to employees until you are in a six-foot hole. People like to see you about and to feel that your hand is on the tiller even if you don't amount to as much as you might. Encourage your staff to take responsibility, but keep their wings clipped. Don't let them fly away with you and your business. What you consider smartness in an assistant or clerk may appear to others as "fresness." "For three things the earth is disquieted, and for four which it cannot bear: for a servant when he reigneth; and a fool when he is filled with meat; for an odious woman when she is married; and an handmaid that is heir to her mistress."—Shoe and Leather Journal.

Priceville.

The Public Library Concert held in Watson's Hall, was beyond doubt, the best of its kind in the history of the Village. It was a splendid combination of talent, Mr. Donald C. MacGregor, who has been here so often before, kept up his reputation indeed. The more we hear Mr. MacGregor the better we like him. His appearance and pleasant manner together with his beautiful baritone voice puts him to the front as a favorite. There are few who can give us the Scotch like "MacGregor." Too much cannot be said for the young and pretty violinist Miss Maude Buschlen, who appeared amongst us for the first time, she played by request many of the beautiful Scottish airs which never fail to win the hearts of the people. This time they were sweeter than ever. Her powers as a violinist seem supernatural, were she to visit us again she would get a great reception. Miss Allan accompanist fulfilled her duties very satisfactorily. Master Alex. McDonald, Highland dancer, gave us all a surprise, this young man performed his part cleverly, he is a born dancer. Piper Hector McDonald and Mr Eastman with his Cadets were as usual well received. The Bell piano supplied by Mr. Paterson of Flesherton was a beautiful instrument and added much to the success of the concert. Rev. Mr. Matheson occupied the chair. The turn out was not so large as some times have, but it being a busy season and several other entertainments in the vicinity would necessarily reduce our members. However we are pleased to know that the people are none the less enthusiastic for the success of the library. We must strive to retain our admiration for all that would enable, and our interest in all that would enrich and beautify our life. So perhaps in the near future we shall add a few books to the library and also give the people another good concert.

Commissioner McArthur, returned from Owen Sound, Saturday evening where he had been attending a meeting of County Council. As usual Mr. McArthur has taken an active part in the general business. There is one thing noticeable in Mr. McArthur's work, the township he represents always gets fair play.

We are sorry to have to chronicle the death of one of the oldest and best respected members of our community Mrs. John McLaughlan. The deceased was sick but two weeks and although all the weight of medical science was brought to bear upon the case, nothing could save her. She passed peacefully away and conscious to the last. All the members of the family were present who could possibly be there. We extend to the bereaved our heartfelt sympathy.
