CHAPTER XIX.
RAYMOND did not see Ann at breakfast next morning, but sent word by Louis that important work in the mine detained him, and the girl was hurt by the neglect. It was not a cheerful going at best, for Mrs. Kelly was broken hearted and frankly pessimistic.
"You'll never come back," she said.
"You'll forget the Kellys—you'll forget you ever lived in a log hut and swept floors."
"Why, Nora, I'm only going to Valley Springs. Maybe I'll come back, and soon."
"You say so, but you are going far.
I have two eyes, and I can see. You've broken Rob's heart too. I know why he isn't here this morning—he couldn't bear to see you go, and no more can I." The tears came to Ann's eyes. Never had such sincerity, such directness of affection, touched her. "I'll come back, I promise you I'll come back unless you come to the Springs to live."
"Come back!" shouted Kelly, who had entered the door. "Why, sure thing! She can't keep away. D'ye think Louis is going to leave the peak?
Not for long. He has just been telling me when to expect him." Somehow Kelly's tone helped Ann as well as Nora.
"I am not going back to New York till spring."
"Let me tell you something," Kelly resumed, with ponderous effort at being confidential. "Your Wall Street lawyer is all right. He's a man of substance, but Rob is going to sluice a stream of gold out of this hill that'll make the lawyer chap look like a worn dime."
They reached the Springs without accident, and were greeted as if they had escaped from a robber's cave. Mrs.
Barnett and her friends were all greatly excited over the events of the high country, which had been distorted, magnified by the shadows of the clouds, till they were of the most monstrous proportions. Munro was already a boy—a sort of cowboy Napoleon—and Ann laughed at the questions hurled at her head by the Barnetts when they found she had known and liked the captain of the patrol.
"Not at all," she replied. "I found him very amusing. No, he was not drunk, and I never saw any weapons upon him. Mr. Raymond considers him a dangerous force because of his zeal to serve the miners. Yes, it is true that Mr. Raymond is the leader of the free miners and that he and Mr.
Munro are friends. Yes, Kelly and Raymond have made a strike, but they are unable to get the men they need to work their mine."
Barnett came home looking hard and worn, quite unlike his jovial self, but he greeted Ann warmly. "I am glad to see you here. I want to know all about things up there. Where is Peabody?" Mrs. Barnett replied: "Dressing for dinner. Hurry, Don; you're late." After he left them Ann remarked to Mrs. Barnett, "He looks worried."
"He is worried to death. He insists on trying to be the head and front of this citizens' committee of safety. He's chairman of it and is away all hours of the day and night. Do you know the whole city is patrolled?"
"Patrolled! What for?"
"So that the miners cannot come rushing down here some night and burn us all up."
This amused Ann. "How silly! Why should they do that?"
"Because we mine owners live here.
It is not a laughing matter to us.
Word has come to us through reliable sources that your nice friend Munro has planned a raid, and every young man in the town has been enrolled in the 'home guard.'" Ann laughed outright at this. "Jeannette, you people have been eating too much lobster salad and ice cream."

Weak Kidneys
Weak Kidneys, surely point to weak kidney Nerves. The Kidneys, like the Heart, and the Stomach, find their weakness, not in the organ itself, but in the nerves that control and guide and strengthen them. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach these controlling nerves. To doctor the Kidneys alone, is futile. It is a waste of time, and of money as well.
If your back aches or is weak, if the urine scalds, or is dark and strong, if you have symptoms of Bright's or other distressing or dangerous kidney disease, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative a month—Tablets or Liquid—and see what it can and will do for you. Druggist recommend and sell

The large library was soon filled with people who had heard of Ann's return from the peak, and the girl was profoundly amused to find herself taken for a fount of wisdom concerning the miners' war and their demands.
The feeling against the camp was savage, and the men were loud in dequination of the governor of the state, who had refused to order out the militia. "He is as bad as Munro, an absolute anarchist," declared one man, whose strident voice dominated all the others.
One by one the guests dropped away, and at last only the Barnetts and Ann and Peabody were left in the library.
At a signal from Mrs. Barnett Don sauntered out of the room as if on some errand and forgot to return. A few moments she, too, begged to be excused "for a moment" and was seen no more.
Both Ann and Peabody understood these actions, but as he was intent on making an appeal to her and she knew there was no escape from it they faced each other with a tenseness of emotion which seemed impossible a moment before.
Ann broke the silence. "How indecate of them!"
"How considerate, say I, for I want to talk with you," he hurried on. "I want you to go back with me, Ann, as my wife. I can't go back alone. I have missed you horribly. Dear girl, answer me, are you ready to go?" Ann remained silent, her mind running over for the hundredth time the advantages, the duties involved, while his plea proceeded, earnest and manly, but leaving her cold. It permitted her to calculate, to criticize. He had much to give her. He was a man of large income, of unquestioned power, and his home was spacious. She liked him, she respected him very highly, she admired him, but—The girl's dream was not yet faded out of her soul. She hoped—faintly, foolishly hoped—for a return of the glow, the mystery, the flooding, transforming power of a love that was more than respect, more than honor and admiration.
She found herself saying: "I know, Wayne, we seem suited to each other—all our friends would say so—but I'm not so sure of it. It is silly in me, but I am still wanting to be sure. I don't care for you as I ought to do. I'm no longer a schoolgirl; I know what marriage means, and unless I can feel differently from the way I do, now I shall not marry."
"Have you met any one else who rouses this other—emotion?" She flushed. "I don't know. I am not sure."
He sank back in his chair, heavy and inert. The muscles of his cheeks drooped, giving him the aspect of a man of fifty. "Don't throw yourself away, Ann, for God's sake, assert your common sense! If you cannot come to my home, don't waste your beauty, your culture, on some savage. It hurts me to see you out here living among these sordid men."
She interrupted him. "There is another inexplicable thing. This life has interested me. It has developed in me a capacity for physical effort that I didn't know I had. It will seem ab-

Girlhood and Scott's Emulsion are linked together.
The girl who takes Scott's Emulsion has plenty of rich, red blood; she is plump, active and energetic.
The reason is that at a period when a girl's digestion is weak, Scott's Emulsion provides her with powerful nourishment in easily digested form.
It is a food that builds and keeps up a girl's strength.

The Grip.
"Before we can sympathize with others we must have suffered ourselves." No one can realize the suffering attendant upon an attack of grip, unless he has had the actual experience. There is probably no disease that causes so much physical and mental agony, or which so successfully defies medical aid. All danger from the grip, however, may be avoided by the prompt use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Among the tens of thousands who have used this remedy, not one case has ever been reported that has resulted in pneumonia or that has not recovered. For sale at Parker's Drug Store.
Shelburne sidewalks have been slippery enough to suit the wildest small boy during the past week or so. The small boy has had heaps of fun out of it all right, but his elders have been so busy trying to not take a tumble that they haven't had half the fun out of it they might otherwise have had. The editor can say from experience that Shelburne sidewalks aren't any too soft. He took a tumble on the ice while coming down to the office Wednesday afternoon of last week and bruised his right arm so badly that he hasn't been able to do any writing since.—Economist.

Stomach's Importance
How to Strengthen It so That It Will Act as it Should.
The stomach is the principal organ concerned in the digestion of food. If it is weak, inactive or out of order and unable to properly digest the food, the body will soon be in a state of semi-starvation.
Then, too, when the stomach is weak, the food is not properly digested and lies in it for hours, decomposing, fermenting and forming poisonous gases and ptomaines that are absorbed into the blood, poisoning the system and impoverishing the blood.
To enjoy good health, it is absolutely necessary that the stomach and digestive organs should be strong, and no other remedy equals Mi-o-na in strengthening and giving tone to the whole digestive system.
Relief from the use of Mi-o-na is permanent and lasting. Use Mi-o-na for a few days, and the digestion will be good, the appetite keen, and there will be no nausea or distress after eating, no sleeplessness, no nervousness, and the headaches, backaches and disturbed heart action that are the direct result of a weakened stomach will soon be overcome.
We absolutely agree that your money will be refunded should you buy a 50 cent box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets and not be satisfied with the results. Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere, or will be sent by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents.
Write to-day for a free sample package, and also give us your symptoms, and one of the best known stomach specialists will give your case his careful attention without charge. The R. T. Booth Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

A Jamaican Lady Speaks Highly of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.
Mrs. Michael Hart, wife of the superintendent of Cart Service at Kingston, Jamaica, West Indies Islands says that she has for years used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for coughs, croup and whooping cough and has found it very beneficial. She has implicit confidence in it and would not be without a bottle of it in her home. Sold at Parker's Drug Store.
