AN OLD OFFENDER.

Charles Shettle of Albemarle is an old offender whose name has became sadly familiar in court circles. He was convicted last September by Judie Barrett for cattle stealing and assulting Constable Trout of Wiarton. Our readers will remember how he tackled Constable Trout, bit ing him severely and leaving a deep impression on that arm of the law. The Judge viewed his case in a lenient light, and after giving him short confinement in the jail let him go on suspended sentence, He returned to his old haunts and like wise to his old habits. He has since been making himself obnoxious to Mrs. Moore a resident of that township, 6 t. by trespassing on her property, after being repeatedly forbidden to do so. A bench warrant was consequently issued for his arrest, and he was again brought into the presence of His Honor, Judge Barrett. The law in this case exacted the pound of flesh that his crime had merited, and a sentence of three months in the Walkerton goal was the lot of the Albemarle offender He donned the prison garment on Monday last . LONG TRIP TO MARRY.

Travels Eleven Thousand Miles to Wed His Nurse.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 16.-Walter H. Wilson, Fairbanks, Alaska, was in Detroit yesterday on his way home after having travelled eleven thousand miles to marry Miss Margaret Corbett, of Durham, Ont.

Wilson, who was born in St. Johns, N. B., was injured ten years ago in New York. He was taken to Roosevelt Hospital. His nurse was Miss Corbett. Friendship between them ripened into love, and they became engaged, Wilson determined to win a fortune before marrying, and went to Alaska. After several years hard work he "struck luck," and came east to claim his sweetheart.
