WESTERN CANADA.
 There are many people in the east who are interested in learning how their friends who have moved to Western Canada are getting on, who are anxious to know what Winnipeg and Western Canada are like. There are also large numbers of persons in this Province who are anxious to obtain reliable information concerning the west and are at a loss to know how to procure it. In like manner there are many in the east who have friends in the west who would welcome news from their old home. Present these friends with a copy of the Chronicle.
 The Durham Chronicle has arranged to satisfy these wants by entering a publishing arrangement with the "Manitoba Free Press" of Winnipeg, the oldest and leading newspaper of Western Canada. The "Manitoba Free Press" daily edition, will tell you all about the wonderful growth of the city of Winnipeg, the conditions existing in that city, the climate, the chances for employment, the cost of living, house rent, etc., and the opportunities of business openings, and will also furnish you with full information on the same subjects in regard to other cities and rising towns of the west.
 The Manitoba Free Press prints every day from three to four full columns of "Situations Vacant," over a column of "Business Opportunities," and usually two columns of "Board and Room" advertisements. Every resident of Eastern Canada who is contemplating removing to the west would find it of the greatest advantage to subscribe for the Free Press for a short time for the purpose of familiarizing himself with actual conditions before leaving.
 The Clubbing Office of the Durham Chronicle advertised on another page, affords you an opportunity of securing the Chronicle and the Free Press at a special figure.

HESPER
 By HAMLIN GARLAND
 Copyright, 1905, by Hamlin Garland

Do you think I will consent to such a piece of folly?
 Ann was cold and calm. "Fortunately your consent is not required." Then the thought of how all this would sound to her lover moved her, and with tears of entreaty in her voice she cried out: "Oh, mother, don't let's quarrel, wait till you see Robert! You cannot help but admire him—he is so big and manly. I came here to ask your help, your advice. I wanted to confide in you. I want your love, your sympathy."
 "You have it—my profound sympathy. But you cannot have my consent to such a foolish act."
 Ann rose, wounded, bleeding, but no longer in a mood for confidences or entreaties. "Further controversy is useless, mother. I have given my future into Robert's hands."
 Once more in her room, she caught up a little framed portrait from her desk. "Oh, my beautiful, poetic, dear father, now I know why you loved the mountains and why you sickened and died here in the city! You gave me a precious heritage, and I have only just found it. I will live as you would have me live, dear." She touched the picture to her lips as a sign of her dedication of herself to her new life. "You would have liked Robert, and I love him!"
 With bosom heaving with passionate resolution she hurried to her desk and wrote a telegram in big, strong letters, as if to make an imperishable record:
 Robert, come for me. I am waiting.
 HESPER.
 THE END.

RENUNCIATING THE WORLD.

She has said a farewell to the world and its joys.
 In bridge she can find no delight
 And she has abandoned the confident poise
 Which made her a woman of might:
 No more does she prance
 In the jubilant dance,
 No more does she sit on the stair
 To tease without ruth
 A poor gold-plated youth
 With a flirt and cynical air.

Now her crimson tonneau is not seen on the street.
 She hears no pedestrian's yells,
 As they leap to escape the "go-devil"
 so sweet,
 Which has an assortment of smells.
 No more do we see
 At the five o'clock tea
 The eminent lady of tone,
 Nor in satins so gay
 Does she go to the play.
 She sits in her room all alone.

Well, of course, it is Lent, but we cannot admit
 That she has a desire to pray.
 We've learned that the lass took no notice of it
 In years that have hastened away.
 With a tear of regret
 Do we say this, you bet,
 But the bard has no reason to lie.
 That Lent cuts no ice
 With Miss Gwendoline Price
 We declare with a sorrowful sigh.
 Then why is he gone from the haunts of the gay?
 Oh why does she sit in her room,
 And gaze from the window with nothing to say,
 As silent and dull as a tomb?
 The reason you see
 Is as plain as can be.
 She has a cold sore on her lip,
 Her proboscis is sore.
 And—need we say more?
 The pretty young thing has the Grip.

THE ALLUREMENT.

In the spring the city feller,
 Not intending any harm.
 Thinks to add unto his fortune
 He will get a chicken farm.
 Where the chickens, bless their hearts
 Will come practicing their arts.
 With one rooster and a dozen hens
 Whose pleasure is to lay,
 He can gather in a basket
 Full of eggs, he thinks, each day.
 Some he'll sell for prices high,
 And the rest of them he'll fry.
 Visions of some dainty pullets
 Stepping round at his command
 And in winter and in summer
 Laying eggs to beat the band
 And unto his joy and pride
 Hatching broilers on the side.
 He can see the profits rolling
 To him all along the line;
 He can see his neighbors jealous,
 And the game looks pretty fine.
 He'll know better by and by,
 When he's given the thing a try.

Nervous Prostration

IT IS WORRY THAT KILLS, NOT WORK
 Work without worry usually tends to prolong life. On the other hand, worry, with or without work, is fatal, because it uses up what the Doctors call the "Lecithin," a phosphorized fat which is the chief constituent of the brain and nervous system—a waste which, if not stayed in time, means complete nervous wreck. The evident moral is "don't worry"—advice easy to give, and in these days of stress and strain practically impossible to take. The alternative is: find some way of replacing the wasted Lecithin—the phosphorized fat. This absolutely essential element will be found in its most perfect, palatable and assimilable form in an emulsion of Cod Liver Oil and Phosphorus (phosphorized fat) together with Iron, the recognized blood builder—making FERROL the ideal nutrient it claims to be.

FERROL

 For the prevention or treatment of nervous prostration FERROL is absolutely unequalled—it is safe, sure and speedy.
 The formula of FERROL is freely exposed, consequently
