SLEPT WITH A BEAR

Astounding adventure of an American Child.

Lost boy slept on bear's bosom; stranger still, the bruin that sheltered the child had two cubs.

This is the characteristic introduction, in an American paper, to a remarkable story of the disappearance and recovery of a small boy in the wilds of Minnesota. The child, who was lost in the woods, slept all night on the bosom of an old she bear, and when found was none the worse for his perilous adventure. The story is almost incredible, but it is told by so much circumstantial detail that it is probable that it has some foundation in fact. In Minnesota there lives a homesteader, named Hans Larsen, who has a family of seven children. Among the number is a three-year-old child known as "Little Gabe," who happens to be the hero of the adventure with the bear. He suddenly left home one day, making for the woods, and his absence was not noted by his mother for three or four hours. It was then decided to make a systematic search, in which all the neighbors joined. A logging contractor was also notified and he assembled his crew of fifty men. The remaining part of the story is best told by the lumber-jack, who found the boy the following day at noon:—"When the old man sent the hurry-up call for us to drop drivin' and hike over to the Norski's who lost his kid, we broke for the little farm mighty quick. We knew the woods were full of wolves, an' if they didn't get the kid the night was due to be colder'n—and he'd freeze to death before the frost fell. We just stopped long enough to fill our lunch sacks with grub an' get plenty of matches, and then we put right into the woods a flyin'. We made torches of birch bark, besides havin' all the lanterns there was on the drive, and the ol' man spread the whole fifty of us out, and we fine tooth combed that country all night. But we couldn't find hide nor hair of the kid, and when mornin' come I says to myself, 'that kid's a gone, sure,' and about everybody else thought the same way. 'Least the ol' man, and he never would give in if he died. After we had such a went at it again. Along about noon I found the kid sleppin' in a hollow log. Would not have seen him if it had not been for his little cap that had fallen on the ground. He was in a bear den. I took him out of the log, and the first thing he said was that he was hungry. I gave him all the lunch I had left, and he devoured it. I tried to get the story of his experience from him. After I raised the long yell an' was waitin' for the boys to come in, he did make out to tell me that he played about in the woods until he got tired and then tried to go home, but couldn't get there. Then it got dark; then he caught on to a big black 'doggie and two little 'doggies' laying down, and he layed down with them, and slept warm all night, and he was so tired when mornin' came that he couldn't keep up with the 'doggies.' They ran away and left him. Then he tried to get home, but couldn't make it, and found the hollow log and crawled in, crying for his mother. Jehosephat! If that kid didn't sleep with that she bear and her cubs, and never got a scratch! But how a she bear with cubs, the most dangerous creature that walks, ever allowed him to do it I can't get through my head.

Other men were working at the scene of the accident, but Franks was alone in the house and all others escaped. The crane was badly wrecked and it will be nearly a week before it will be repaired. The accident will handicap the company considerably as it was to be used in unloading a cargo of coal now at the company's wharf.

Mr. Franks was a capable engineer and competent for the position, but was inclined to be reckless, and had often been cautioned for the way he handled the machine. Only yesterday morning Manager Wood had warned him to be more careful. An inquest will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock by Coroner Allan Cameron.

Harvey Franks was the second son of Mr. Matthew Franks, 278 Poulett St., and is 35 years of age. He was married 14 years ago to Cassie Beattie, daughter of Wm. Beattie, Dease St., who is left to mourn his loss with four small children, Arthur, Harold, Blanche and a baby girl. The family reside on Stavely St., East Hill.

The New Remedy.

Take it Now that Vacation Days are Fast Approaching.

Thousands of men and women are anxiously looking forward to the vacation days that come in June, July and August—not so much for the pleasure or enjoyment as for the chance of getting rid of their ill health.

To thoroughly drive away troubles of the stomach most people think they have to make a business of it with dieting, exercise, and perhaps a vacation.

But Mi-o-na stomach tablets taken with regularity, in a very few days will drive away indigestion, dizzy spells, distress after eating, headache, sleeplessness, and the many other symptoms of bad digestion and sluggishness of the digestive organs that keep people from enjoying themselves.

Day after day, at work behind desks or in the factory with poor sunlight and air, soon results in sluggishness of the entire physical and mental apparatus. The first slight symptoms of indigestion can be easily cured, but when they are allowed to increase without any help, then the stomach complaints become hard to shake off.

Strengthen the whole digestive system with Mi-o-na and you will soon find that both stomach and bowels do their work as they should.

We absolutely agree that your money will be refunded should you buy a 50c. box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets and not be satisfied with the results. Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere, or will be sent by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents. Booth's Miona Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

A FATAL ACCIDENT

(O. S. Times.)

Mr. Harvey Franks, Stavely street East Hill, was terribly scalded in an accident to the locomotive crane at the Imperial Cement Works yesterday afternoon and died three hours afterwards at the General & Marine Hospital as a result of his injuries and after suffering terrible agony.

Mr. Franks had charge of the locomotive crane for moving marl, coal, etc., at the cement works, and operated it from a cab on the crane. Yesterday afternoon he was operating the crane moving stock marl from the yard into the mill. About three o'clock he was loading and, it is said, used the boom at too long range and then swung the machine around in the opposite direction, giving it a three quarter instead of a quarter turn. In swinging the heavily laden boom the whole machine tipped over, and in doing so broke the steam connections between the boiler and engine in the little house. Franks was in a perilous position enclosed in the house and was terribly scalded by the escaping steam, and it was some little time before he could be removed. He was frightfully injured, particularly about the more exposed portions of his body. Dr. Dow and others were quickly on the scene and Franks was removed to the General & Marine Hospital. His mouth was parboiled with the steam and his breathing was so difficult that a silver tube was inserted in his throat. He suffered great pain, but gradually weakened and about six o'clock passed away.

Other men were working at the scene of the accident, but Franks was alone in the house and all others escaped. The crane was badly wrecked and it will be nearly a week before it will be repaired. The accident will handicap the company considerably as it was to be used in unloading a cargo of coal now at the company's wharf.

Mr. Franks was a capable engineer and competent for the position, but was inclined to be reckless, and had often been cautioned for the way he handled the machine. ## MARK TWAIN AT WINDSOR.

Samuel Clemens Crack* a Joke in the Royal Presence.

London, June 23.—Garbed in the regulation silk hat and frock coat, Mark Twain was the centre of attraction at a royal garden party at Windsor yesterday. He afterwards said:

"I think it is no exaggeration to say that the Queen looks as young and beautiful as she did thirty five years ago, when I saw her first.

"I didn't say that to her, because I learned long ago never to say any obvious thing, but to leave an obvious thing to comor-place and inexperienced people to say.

"That she still looks to me as young and beautiful as she looked thirty-five years ago is good evidence that 10,000 people already have noticed this and have mentioned it to her. I could have said it and spoken the truth, but I have been too wise for that.

"I have kept the remark unuttered and that has saved her Majesty the vexation of hearing it for the ten thousand and onth time.

"All that report about my proposal to buy Windsor Castle and its grounds is a false rumor—I started it myself."

HEATON AS GUIDE.

Mark Twain was piloted to the festivity by John Henniker Heaton, who introduced him to Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, Fridtjof Nansen, Sir Henry Mortimer Durand, Ellen Terry and other notables.

He was presented to the King and Queen by Ambassador Reid. He spent a quarter of an hour with King Edward, and offered to buy Windsor Castle from the Queen.

MET KING OF SIAM.

The King called on him to meet the other guests. He introduced Twain to the King of Siam, the Duke of Connaught, Prince Arthur of Connaught, and others. Prince Arthur is to receive a degree at Oxford at the same time as the American humorist, and he remarked that he would collapse if called upon for a speech. Thereupon Twain offered to undertake to speak for him.

The staff of Punch invited him to a dinner at the Savoy on July 9, but he intimated his preference to dine in the famous Punch room at the Punch offices, and the dinner will be given there.

Mr. Clemens considers this one of the greatest honors of his visit.

The garden party given at Windsor to mark the close of the Ascot meet was the first royal party since the late Queen Victoria's in 1897.

Speaking of his reception Mark Twain said:—

"His Majesty was very courteous. In the course of the conversation I reminded him of an episode sixteen years ago, when I had the honor to walk with him when he was taking the waters at Homburg. I said I had often told about that episode, and that whenever I was the historian I made good history of it, and it was worth listening to, but that it had found its way into print, once or twice in unauthentic ways and had been badly damaged there. I added that it should like to go on repeating this history, but that I should be quite fair and reasonably honest, and while I should probably never tell the story twice in the same way, I should at least never allow it to deteriorate at my hands."
