Additional Locals.

Mrs. Mitchell, Sr. left here Wednesday morning to visit friends in London.

A FEW weeks ago in reporting the death of Mr. Frend we intimated that he left a widow and two children. We learn that the children were not his but Mrs. Frend's by former marriage.

WE understand that Miss Hutton has purchased a fine new Haines piano from Mr. Midford who has the agency here. Glad to see such a thing as a musical luxury getting more commonly used in the rural homes.

ON Wednesday morning Mr. Chris Scheuermann left here for Stratford Hospital in company with Dr. Gun. Mr. Scheuermann has an attack of appendicitis and has to undergo an operation which we hope will be a complete success and that he will soon be restored to his usual health and strength.

TWENTY-SEVEN Doukhobors, men women and children, attired in pink night-ropes reached Winnipeg on Sunday. The pilgrims who are in search of a warmer climate where they do not need to work and where they expect to see the Messiah, tramped it all the way from Swan River, a distance of about 300 miles. They will likely be arrested as vagrants.

FOR the past four years the result of the Departmental Examinations have not been published in the Toronto papers but sent to the principals of the different schools instead. This caused some delay in getting the information to the candidates, and this year the Department has decided to publish the results by Counties, which will appear some time next week.

THE trustees of the public and model school here received a letter last week from Miss McLeod, who signified her intention to resign her position on the teaching staff. This will necessitate immediate action on the part of the Board to have her place filled at as early a date as possible. Miss McLeod is an estimable young woman and her services were much appreciated by the students, parents and trustees.

THE Women's Institute will hold their next meeting at the home of Mrs. T. Allan, Varney, on Wednesday 7th of August. Subjects to be discussed are, "Why is Autumn So Beautiful in Nature? Compare it with the autumn of our lives. Friendship, Salads and Canning Fruits." All ladies are invited to attend and help to make our meetings interesting and beneficial.

THE Orangemen of Meaford attended the 12th of July Demonstration this year at Barrie. They were dressed in frock coats and silk hats and made a very imposing appearance. Taste and uniformity in society dress will do much to benefit the society but underneath the dress the greatest essential is a good character, and its well not to forget this. Many a society has had reproach brought upon it by the thoughtfulness of a few of its members.

THE railway contractors have made another start in Durham, and when they get under full swing they will soon make a good showing. A number of the buildings have been already removed from the right of way, but there are some still standing. The residence occupied by Dr. Hutton has not yet been touched, but the moving gang is expected to begin on it shortly. It has to be moved only a couple of hundred feet, and once it is jacked up and properly supported it will not take long to get it out of the road.

QUITE DIFFICULT.

A teacher in Flesherton school is said to have received the following letter the other day:—

Sir—Will you in future give my son easier soms to do at nites? This is what he has brought home two or three nites since local optume came into force here—If fore gallons of bere will fill thirty-to pint bottles, how many pints and half bottles, will nine gallons fill? We tried and could make nothing of it at all, and my boy cried and laughed and sed he didn't dare to go back in the mornin without doin it. So I had to send over to Hahn's at Durham and buy a nine gallon keg of bere, which I could ill afford to do, especially when I had to pay the cartage, and then he went and borrowed a lot of wine and brandy bottles. We filled them, and my boy put down the number for an answer. I don't know whether it is right or not, as we spilt some while doin it.

P. S.—Please let the soms be in water, as I won't send to Durham for any more bere.

How Are The Crops?

WE want to know just exactly how the crops are in the County, and in order to get at the truth we cordially invite all our correspondents, and any others who will do so, to give us a budget next week in which special reference will be made to the crops in each writer's vicinity. This seems to be a good way to cover the ground, and we think that many will be sufficiently interested to take the matter up. By devoting a small space to wheat, oats, barley, peas, hay, roots and fruit, a vast amount of useful information can be given, and readers in every part will become more conversant with the conditions in other localities. A good active co-operative movement along this line will be a means of disseminating valuable information to all our readers, and the work of sending in the information will not be much of a hardship to any one. This is a wide open invitation, and we'll do our best to tell to others what you tell to us.

Secret Drinking.

Many women take to secret drinking—the bane of womanhood—by reason of the lonely lives they live, to soften the sorrow which is the lot of so many women or to deaden that anxiety about the future which is so harassing to the timid minds of so many of the weaker sex. It is surely an evil sign of the times when the very factory girls, who think lightly of the present and still less of the future, form what are called "spirit clubs," into which the girls make small payments to accumulate until Christmas eve and then to be spent in spirits, wine and cakes.

Increased Facilities.

Increased facilities for drinking are to be numbered among the causes of the increasing intemperance among women. Women travel alone to a far greater extent than was formerly the case; women's club afford every opportunity to those who wish to indulge in potent liquors; some of the big stores and mammoth drapery establishments have licensed refreshment rooms; restaurants and railway buffets continue to multiply, while the pastry cook with a wine license is very much in evidence in every residential district. A woman in a good position in life may be intemperate to a degree without ever having recourse to the ordinary public house. It is not pretended that all the places enumerated above have spirit licenses, but intemperance in port and sherry or even in bottled ale is almost equally destructive to health.

Deplorable Effect.

Intemperance has a deplorable effect on the nervous system of women, whom it tends rapidly to degrade morally as well as physically, unfitting them for those duties and responsibilities which should be the first care of the women of every race. Intemperance among men is bad enough, but among women it is a far more serious matter, since in their case the future of a race, a kingdom or an empire may be imperiled. Intemperance among women is incompatible with the welfare of the children, who, even if they are unaffected by a bad heredity, must be affected by evil parental example. It is because of this that the drunken mother is regarded as a curse to her family and a menace to the state. Even the most unprejudiced and tolerant of moderate drinkers on the male sides looks upon a drunken woman with a horror and loathing that are almost instinctive.

Powerful Nerve Poisons.

Among the lower orders gin is the beverage of election, or, failing that, "four ale" in unimaginable quantities. The liqueur is another prime favorite with those women who can afford it and is certainly the most destructive of all, containing, as it always does, those deleterious essential oils so necessary to mask the taste of the cheap alcohol, which is so raw and fiery that it could not be swallowed in its natural state. These essential oils and alcohols act as powerful nerve poisons if taken in sufficiently large doses and over a sufficient period of time, and in the seductive flavors of the liqueur containing them lies their great danger to women.

Hope for the future of our woman-kind lies in the fact that all women are to some extent the slaves of fashion, and once it becomes no longer the fashion for women to drink freely of potent liquors at dinners, dances and other convivial assemblies intemperance among them will receive a check. But against the pet vice of secret drinking the only remedy is in the teaching of temperance and hygiene.—London Chronicle.
