REMARKABLE OUTBREAK OF CUTWORMS.

Last week much alarm was created in the neighborhood of Leamington, Ont., by an extraordinary outbreak of caterpillars which devoured everything before them. Application was made to the Agricultural College at Guelph for advice and assistance, and Mr. L. Caesar of the Entomological Department was at once sent up to investigate. The insect proved to be the Variegated Cutworm (Peridroma saucia.) which has on previous occasions appeared in devastating numbers, the most serious outbreak occurred in British Columbia and the neighboring Pacific coast states in 1900. Near Leamington the worms were first observed in clover fields where they soon devoured the crop and left the ground bare and black; they then marched on to the next field and consumed whatever vegetation they met with, corn and tobacco, tomatoes and other vegetables seemed especial favourites for consumption. If a fruit tree happened to be in their way, they climbed it and devoured both fruit and foliage; many peach trees were thus attacked and the fruit ruined.

Like the cutworms these caterpillars feed only at night and remain in concealment during the day, hiding in the ground where the soil is loose and under any rubbish or other shelter that they can find. When full grown the worm is about two inches long, with a yellowish stripe on each side above the legs, the rest of the body is darker and mottled with black, white or gray; the most characteristic feature is a row of yellow or white spots, five to seven in number, along the middle line of the back. Some are already changing into the chrysalis stage, for which purpose they bury themselves in the ground and form there an oval earthen cell. The moth, into which they finally turn, has a wing expansion of about an inch, and is dark blackish brown in color, often clouded with red towards the front margin of the wings, but with no conspicuous or distinguishing markings; the underwings are white with a pearly lustre. Like so many other of our most destructive insects, this one has come to us from Europe.

Many specimens have been sent to the College for identification from various parts of the Province, the complaint being in most cases that the worms are destroying the green tomatoes by boring great holes through and through them; in some cases corn is badly injured, and in gardens vegetables of all kinds are attacked.

REMEDIES.

The most effective remedy for these nocturnal marauders is the poisoned bran mash, which is made by mixing half a pound of Paris Green in fifty pounds of bran (the proportion for larger or smaller quantities is 1-100.) the poison should be added to the dry bran little by little, and stirred all the time till the whole is tinged with green colour, then add water sweetened with sugar or molasses till the mixture is sufficiently moistened to crumble nicely through the fingers. If bran cannot be procured, shorts or flour may be used, and for field work may be distributed dry by means of a seed drill. The mash is sprinkled about the plants at sun down, and after dark the worms come out and eat it in preference to the vegetation and then go off and die, usually in their places of concealment. Paris Green, half a pound to forty gallons of water may be used on many plants with much advantage.

When the worms are very numerous and are moving on from one field to another, their progress may be checked by ploughing a deep furrow ahead of them—two about four feet apart would be better, in these hot holes are bored or dug from twelve to fifteen feet apart. The furrows should be made in the morning, so that the sides may be dry and friable by night fall. The worms fall into them as they march and being unable to climb up the loose sides they travel along the furrow and fall into the post holes; there they will be found in dozens or hundreds in the morning and can easily be killed. Where the soil is stiff clay, this plan will probably be not be so effective, as the worms may be able to climb up the sides and go on their way; reliance will then have to be placed in the poisoned bait. Where very numerous a heavy roller may be employed with advantage, if the soil or crop will permit of its use. It must be remembered that live stock or poultry must not be allowed in any place where the poison is scattered.

The worms are no doubt attacked by parasitic insects and many will perish from bacterial diseases—this is the usual experience when outbreaks of a similar character have occurred, and therefore there is little danger of a repetition of the plague next year. Everything, however, should be done to check the visitation now before more damage is inflicted and to reduce the number that may survive for the production of another brood.

Handle With Care.

A few days ago a young lady in a local grocery store discovered a big spider in a bunch of bananas. Fortunately its discovery was the only feature in the incident—and before it had time to do any harm it was killed. It was undoubtedly a good specimen of a tarantula. On Saturday, at St. Catharines a young Syrian lad who worked in an Italian fruit store was bitten by a tarantula and lies in an unconscious state at his home with a number of doctors working over him. The boy was helping to unload bananas when the deadly creature which had made the trip from the south hidden in a bunch of bananas darted out and fastened itself on his bare arm. The fact is however that by the time the banana bunches reach this far north the venomous spider is chilled by cold storage until he has little life left in him. He should be handled with care nevertheless.—Owen Sound Times.

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart or The Kidneys. Troutles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me to-day for sample and free Book. "How do you manage here without a doctor within ten miles? Suppose somebody is taken ill?"
"Sure, we'd just give him a glass of whiskey, sor!"
"And if that did no good?"
"Then we'd give him another!"
"But suppose that had no result?"
"Bedad, then, we'd know he wasn't worth throbbing about."—Tit-Bits.

NEVER SLIT YOUR BOOTS.

Exchange Echoes.

We had a rare visitor in our town last Saturday night in the form of a lady burglar. About midnight and after Mr. Aaron Wenger and family had retired, the dog set up a persistent bark. Mrs. Wenger arose and went to see what was the cause of the disturbance, and found a lady about half way up a ladder she had set up against the roof of the house. Mrs. Wenger asked the nocturnal visitor what she wanted, but got no reply. She then gave the alarm, but when she returned there was nobody to be seen. Some of the neighbors were notified, and made search but no trace of the mysterious person could be found. Plunder seems to be the only reason for the strange and untimely visit.—Aytton Advance.

A particularly sad drowning accident occurred on Tuesday afternoon of last week at Shallow Lake. Little Richard Ward, age 6 years and 10 months, was bathing in the lake a short distance from the cement works with his brother Archie, age 9 years old. The boys were stripped and were wading about the lake. Richard got away from his brother and as the water was muddy could not see the bottom, and walked into a deep hole where the dredge had been operating. His cries drew the attention of his brother, who was powerless to go to his rescue, but promptly gave the alarm to men at the cement works, and in a few minutes dozens of men were on the spot. Several quickly went into the water, but it was fully 14 minutes before the body was recovered. Dr. Dunlop made every effort to resuscitate the body but to no avail. The boy is a son of Mrs. Richard Ward, Shallow Lake, and is also survived by two little brothers.—Aytton Advance.

A young man named Campbell took French leave of the town last Friday night, and Mr. Swinburn, who is engaged with the Portland Cement Co., was $20 poorer the same evening. There seems to be a connection between the two events. Campbell is a tailor by trade and a good one, but like a lot of good workmen he has a passion for the flowing bowl and indulges not wisely but too well. He is a happy-go-lucky ne'er-do-well, in which character generosity and good nature are mixed with the fool. But he has left us. While up at Chesley last week taking in the lacrosse game he lost his hat, and borrowed one from Mr. Swinburn. When returning it to his room at the Reid House it is alleged he rifled the cement man's pockets, and anyhow he was particularly flush that evening around one of the local hotels. He got a farmer to drive him to Allan Park on Friday night, and getting up early the next morning he walked to Durham where he caught the eleven o'clock train out. The police in various centres were telephoned to but at time of writing this gay young Lothario has not turned up.—Hanover Post.

Never has death entered our midst more unexpectedly than on Monday morning. On that morning, with but little notice, while the nearest neighbors were unaware of any serious illness, that certain old warrior entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Umbach and added the life of their son Walter to his many victories. Friday morning he went to work in the mill as usual, but not feeling well he returned home and remained about town all day. On Saturday afternoon he consulted Dr. Easton and received treatment for a pain in the back. On Sunday he remained in bed most of the day. An early call from his physician on Monday showed fatal developments during the night. Creeping paralysis had started in the lower limbs and was working rapidly towards the body. The medical profession knows how useless it is to try to arrest the progress of this fatal disease, so physicians and parents looked on powerlessly while a useful young life was being sapped out, inch by inch. At last the vital organs were reached and the earthly career of Walter Umbach was in. Deceased was not yet 20 years of age, was an active, strong, industrious and hard-working young man, as had often been attested to by his foreman, Mr. G. Glebe. He was mild, kind and inoffensive in his every-day life. He was respectful to older people and a favorite among those of his own age—he was courteous to all. His sad and sudden taking away is lamented by the whole village and country about, and to his afflicted parents and only sister the deepest sympathy is being extended. The funeral, conducted by Rev. Mr. Wilson, of the Presbyterian congregation, was largely attended by all denominations. A beautiful floral offering from the town was among the many that beautified the bier.—Aytton Advance.
