This is Labor Day. We didn't notice whether the Chronicle is off on an excursion this week or not. Edi tors, like other mortals, need a rest once or twice a year, but there is no rest for the tiller of the soil. sooner is he out of one hurry than another is standing at the door waiting on him and hurrying up to attend or the consequences will be serious. Editors think, sometimes, that some would be farmers are hard citizens to deal with, but some forget that the editor needs more to live on than paper and ink, consequently they have sometimes to engage the collecting agency to get in their expected pay. But there are exceptions to every rule. Few subscribers might The London Hunt Club have kind by way of advancing the Journalist's cause, be contradicting otherwise In this case it would be nothing less than a mean act for any editor to place such into collecting agencies' hands. We don't mean to say at all country. They are more manly than to do such an act.

The rains of yesterday evening are after cooling the atmosphere.

Cars will soon be into Priceville. this week. They expect to be in this week as the track is laid within a couple of miles. The steam shovel moved down to Martin Stonehouse's, two miles west of Priceville, and the little cars moved down to the Glen, so they are cornering up pretty well.

We don't hear of many going to Toronto Exhibition from here this week. They are all saving their time to attend our own local exhibitions, which will be coming on in a few weeks.

We notice two fine monuments put up lately in our cemetery in Priceville, one to the memory of the late Arch'd McKinnon, Top Cliff, and one to the late John Simpson and wife, showing that the living have respect likewise. The small yard, which is their sister Miss Annie Staples only 3 of an acre, is pretty well filled. It is 48 years since the first burial took place, being the late John Mc-Lachlin, who died at the good age of about 90 years, and the last burial was a grandson of D. K. McArthur, Esq., late of Hopeville, Ont,, aged 2 years and 6 months. So we see there must have been a large number that intervened between these two ages.
