BRAIN AND BULLET.

What Happens When the Skull is Pierced by a Shot.

The results of firing a bullet at a flat brittle bone and into a soft substance like the brain are very different. The bone is pierced, and the lateral displacement of its particles is very slight, but the brain is thrown aside in all directions. The difference is due to the different degree of cohesiveness of the particles composing the two bodies or, in other words, to the greater fluidity of the softer structure.

Next, the importance of fluid contents in intensifying the effects of a bullet fired through a closed receptacle is shown by one of Kocher's experiments. Two identical tin canisters were filled with equal quantities of lint, which in one was dry and in the other saturated with water.

A bullet of moderate velocity fired through them simply perforated the dry one, but caused the wet one to burst explosively. Kocher also filled a skull with water and found that a bullet fired through it caused bursting of the sutures.

Very remarkable is the shattering that results when skulls that have been filled with water or with wax are treated in this way, and if they are compared with others showing the effects of bullet wounds under normal conditions it is easy to appreciate that the variations presented are dependent, in part at least, upon the difference in the character of the contents.—Current Literature.

ALMOST DEAD OF BRONCHITIS.

Few people have suffered more than Jno. P. Taylor of Dymont, P. O., Ont. To-day he is well and writes:— "I must tell you how much Catarrh-ozone has been to me. I was so bad with bronchitis sometimes I thought it would soon be over with me. A spell of choking would come on that left me prostrated and weak. Since using Catarrh-ozone I have had no trouble at all. It strengthened my throat, stopped the cough, gave me free breathing and entirely cured." Just the usual experience. Catarrh-ozone invariably cures whether Bronchitis, Asthma or Catarrh. Two sizes 25c and $1.00 at all dealers.

Thackeray's Pantomime.

William Makepeace Thackeray was always too genial, too generous, too open handed, to be an accumulator of this world's goods, and in spite of the large earnings of his pen he died a poor man. Shortly before his death a friend, John Leech, the cartoonist, called upon him and found him in his study writing—writing and sighing at the monotony of his work.

"Why don't you have a holiday," said Leech, "and take your girls to the seaside?"
 The great novelist made no verbal answer, but, rising slowly, plunged his hands to the very bottom of his pocket, brought these receptacles out, and then vigorously without eliciting a word of cain, replaced them and then resumed his seat.

WANTS BRITAIN'S FAVOR.

Sultan of Turkey Is Anxious to Cultivate Her Friendship.

The Daily Mail gives prominence to an interview with the Sultan of Turkey, who, responding to congratulations on his apparent good health, said he was exceedingly well, and that he never felt better. He expressed a wish for the continuance and the increase of the old bonds of friendship between Great Britain and Turkey, and said he would always do his utmost to foster them. He alluded to the case of Fehim Pasha, formerly chief of the secret police, who was exiled at the demand of the German Ambassador, in a manner showing that he felt there had been some disregard of etiquette and an infringement of his personal dignity in the matter, inasmuch as it had been pressed upon his personal attention, although it was purely Turkey's internal concern. He seemed to regard as monstrous that the idea should exist that he would shield an offender. He said:—"It is nothing more than my plain duty to see justice done. Even if it were my own son I would see justice done."

The correspondent remarks that in this case his Majesty tempered justice with mercy, and adds—"Nor is this to be wondered at in a monarch who has never yet been known to sign a death warrant."

The interviewer says that, contrary to the general belief, the Sultan's interest in the outside world is exceedingly keen and varied. When conversing with politicians he reverts to the rivalries of nations, and their latest doings interest him keenly. The writer particularly mentions Japan, Russia and the United States in this connection. His Majesty has always entertained a kindly feeling for Jews. He believes they are destined to play a great part in the world. He has even greater faith in the future of his own countrymen, particularly if they remain true to the precepts of the Koran. The correspondent describes Abdul Hamid as the most popular Sultan with the Turks since Mahmud II. The passport to his regard is not wealth and position, but good-will and proven services to himself and the country.

FOX HUNTING A LUXURY.

Cost of the Sport Figures an Enormous Total.

The fox hunting season of 1906-7 now drawing to a close will be memorable so far as England and Wales are concerned for its open weather, large fields and, speaking generally, first class sport.

On the whole foxes have been fairly plentiful, and there is hardly a hunt which cannot tell of several very fine runs, but local prejudice against hunting has resulted in loss of hounds and foxes in several counties by poisoning.

From figures obtained from one of the best authorities on fox hunting it is possible to realize the enormous sums of money involved in hunting finances. This expert asserted that during the last 50 years the cost of hunting has more than doubled. Whereas a half century ago the expense for a three days a week hunt was about £1,200 ($6,000), it now requires £3,000 ($15,000) a year and possibly something from the master's own pocket to make the accounts balance.

There are about 170 packs of fox-hounds consisting of about six thousand couples, in England and Wales, and as the average number of days the hounds are out is about three per week the cost of the packs alone is at least £500,000 ($2,500,000) a year. This is taking no account of Ireland's twenty-six packs, with about eleven hundred couples, and Scotland's eleven packs of 300 couples.

The capital value of the hunters employed is an enormous figure. Probably 200,000 are engaged in English and Welsh hunts alone, and at the low average value of £60 ($300) each they are in the aggregate worth not less than £12,000,000 ($60,000,000). At a very modest estimate they cost the owners nearly £3,000,000 ($40,000,000) to keep.

MILLINERY OPENINGS.

Last Wednesday and Thursday were Opening Days at S. F. Morlock's and the many ladies who visited the show rooms were more than pleased with the stylish effects shown in fashionable millinery for fall wear. Mr. Morlock has secured a first class milliner in the person of Miss Grinyer to take charge of his millinery department. A lady with long experience in the art of designing and trimming ladies' headgear. She has visited the different wholesales in the principal cities and comes here with newest ideas in artistic millinery. She has as her assistant Miss Jean Brown who has had several seasons experience in millinery, and is well known in Durham as an obliging and pleasing saleslady. With a staff of competent improvers they will be able to cater to the wants of Mr. Morlock's many customers in millinery.

The shapes this year are much larger than former seasons. The leading shades that are shown are Tans, Bronze, Green, Navys, White and Black. Trimmed in the most artistic fashion with Ribbons, Feathers, Fruit, Velvet Flowers, and Foliage.

One very attractive shape was a large velvet hat in golden brown, flaring off the face, tucked edge with two large tinted tan plumes fastened to a large draped bow by fancy burnt wood buckle.

A very dainty pink flop with a balloon shaped crown which was much admired was trimmed with liberty satin ribbon plaited around the crown and twisted around a pair of tinted pink wings.

Although the Fall Openings were a few weeks earlier, than usual the Parisian Millinery Parlors were aglow with very artistic decorations in all the autumn shadings of Tan, Roche, Empire Greens, Tadeau and New Purples including the very new shot and fancier effects in the most perfect blendings.

One handsome mode much admired, was of Roche felt faced Tadeau velvet and trimmed with beautiful roses, shaded foliage to match. The new purple shade was also shown on a smart hat with drooping brim covered plain, finished with two handsome Amazon plumes in pearl grey and bow of shaded ribbon on bandeau. Hats off the face were also shown and one of the tan velvet with crown of silk caught up off the face and fastened with large brown ornament holding large bows of tan velvet ribbon.

Wings, birds were shown on the stylish street hat also bows of fancy ribbon in large bow effects were quite in evidence.

Ten drops in sweetened water gives relief instantly. Almost like magic is the change you experience. The cause of the nausea is removed, every symptom of vomiting and indigestion is cured within ten minutes. When Polson's Nerviline is so trusty and economical, a bottle at home wouldn't be amiss. Large ones for a quarter at all dealers.

PANDORA

Owing to the flue construction of most ranges it is a rather difficult feat to cook and bake successfully at the same time.
 But the arrangement of the Pandora flues differs considerably from others. They are so constructed that the draft for baking is also the best for cooking, the heat circulating around the oven twice and under every pot hole before passing up the chimney.
 The Pandora bakes and cooks perfectly at the same time.
 Do you know of another range that does?
 If your local dealer does not sell the Pandora write direct to us for Free Booklet.
