The New Railroad BRIDGE

across the river in Town is causing a great deal of talk since it was started. Many are predicting that it will not stand the test when the floods come in the spring; others that there will be a big jam when the freshets come, and will be carried away. Well we would not like to have that come to pass, but we would like to see people jam and fill our store up, and get the BARGAINS we are giving in New Dress Goods, Furs, Boots & Shoes, and Underwear etc. Come and see how we will manage to wait on you. IS IT LUCK OR WHAT?

The two puppies sat together in the big box in a wide window, and watched with big, soft, moist, intelligent eyes the passing throng. They were handsome puppies, and it is no wonder that many people stopped to gaze at them.

Whenever their admirers stopped to gaze at them, the puppies wagged their tails and the tails wagged their fat little bodies till they fell over in the straw in the exuberance of their joy.

When the day was far spent I passed down the thoroughfare, and only one puppy was left in the box—a sad, pathetic, drooping little figure with never a wag in him. They will both be sad and lonely to-night, those puppies. They will weep and wail, and each will feel about in the straw for the soft, warm, loving brother that is not there; and the big tears will roll down their sad and foolish little faces, and they will be so miserable—oh! so very unhappy.

One of these puppies will go to the home of a nice woman and two love ly affectionate children. He will be well fed, he will be treated with respect and consideration, he will never want for good food or a warm, dry bed, and he will be an ornament to the neighborhood.

The other puppy was carried home under the arm of a foreign looking person with one white eye. I was sorry for that puppy. It will be well for him if the foreign looking cuss merely eats him; but he likely won't. One thing is sure; the puppy will grow up a tough citizen, if he survives. He will be always hungry, and he will never look nice. He will have a hang dog look about him, and will be continually dodging kicks, brickbats, the insuating kid with the can, and the dog catcher. He will never have a tag, and he will be caught some day, and shot, or hang ed, or smothered. Poor dog Tray!

I knew two little orphans who were for sale just like the puppies—but that is a brutal thing to say; they were for adoption. They were nice little boys, good boys, boys that one could love even as one's own. And one was taken and the other left, and he found a foster father soon.

The first little boy goes to a lovely home in the sweet, clean country, where there is a womanly woman who will rub his hurts with liniment, who will keep him clean, who will feed him good, wholesome food, and who will tell him stories about the youth who had the coat of many colors, and the boy who slew the big braggart with the stone, and the story of the man who was swallowed by the whale, and the story of Jack the Giant Killer, and Sindbad the Sailor, and the Forty Thieves, and all the rest of the dear delightful rot. And he will grow up to be a good man and a worthy.

The other little boy is going to a home where all his native good will be knocked out of him, and a lot of outside devilry knocked into him. He will learn no manners. He will breathe through his mouth, he will eat noisily and with his knife, his fingers rendering frequent assistance; he will be profane and vulgar; he will never read Dickens nor Long fellow, and the Bible and Shakespeare will practically be unknown to him. He will not be able to tell the difference between a carnation and a petunia.

And he will do damage to himself and others before he is done. He may die in the penitentiary or on the shameful tree.

Was it luck, or what, that guided one boy into the broad path?

Will the good boy get all the credit for his good deeds, and the bad boy all the blame for his evil deeds on the Last Great Day?

If they do it will be a clear case of good fortune and hard luck. The Khan.

KEEP THE NERVES STRONG.

No Surer Road to Ill-Health Than Neglect of the NERVES.

The nervous system ministers equally to man's physical as contributes to man's intellectual powers.

Modify its activity, we have various forms of hallucination, mental depression, sleeplessness and hysteria.

If you say a man is strong it implies that his nervous system is strong.

If you say that a woman's nerves are weak, you affirm what is absolutely true, that her whole physical condition is so far below the par that collapse may easily follow.

No remedy has ever been devised that will compare with Ferrozone in nervous maladies.

Ferrozone does not effect the nerves as hypnotics or sedatives which lull them into obedience—it makes them strong, because it contains the constituents that are necessary to make nerve strength.

Ferrozone makes blood, Ferrozone gives strength, Ferrozone forces appetite, assures assimilation of food.

Ferrozone imparts to the whole organism vim, endurance, buoyancy. No matter how nervous you are or how long this condition has prevailed, use Ferrozone, and in a month you will have convincing proof of its tonic and restorative power.

Perfectly safe even for children, absolutely sure to restore anyone nervous, unstrung and hysterical.

Ferrozone cures not by stimulation, but by nourishing and feeding the nervous organization with the elements it lacks; try Ferrozone sold in 50c. boxes by all druggists.

IN MALE ATTIRE.

Echo of Hallowe'en Pranks Furnish Revelations in Police Court.

Windsor, Nov. 7.—An echo of Hallowe'en, characteristic and rather humorous, was heard in the police court this morning, when several young men, none of them more than 22 years old, and some of them as young as 17, were fined $1 each and costs of another $1.75 for being disorderly last Thursday night.

The young men's names were Fred Meloche, N. Trojan, John Zimmerman, Bert Conroy, Dennis Fowler and William Spindelman, and the complaint was made by Postmaster Chas. C. Chauven, of Sutherland's Corners, in Sandwich West. Chauven charged them with destroying fences and sidewalks and using abusive language to him when he told them to stop, and in the course of the trial it developed that the crowd, which numbered about 50, contained several married women dressed in men's clothes. That, according to Chauven, was where the trouble started. One of them went into the post office, which is also the general store, and asked for cigarettes, but instead of selling her any cigarettes Chauven gently escorted her to the door.

HANDS TERRIBLY CRACKED.

Zam-Buk Healed Them

Over and over again the value of Zam-Buk for chapped and cracked places has been demonstrated. Mrs. Yellen, of Portland, adds her testimony, and says: "My hands were so sore and cracked that I could not put them near water. When I tried to do so they would smart and burn as if I had scalded them. I seemed quite unable to get relief from anything I put on them until I tried Zam-Buk, and the balm succeeded when all else had failed. It closed the big cracks, gave me ease, soothed the inflammation, and in a very short time healed my hands completely."

Hands that are chapped may be restored to the smoothness of health by judicious application of Zam-Buk. The value of Zam-Buk, either as a protective or a corrective, cannot be overestimated. A box should be on every dressing-table.

Zam-Buk heals sores, cures eczema, skin eruptions, ulcers, ringworm, itch, barber's rash, blood poison, bad leg, salt rheum, abrasions, abscesses, cuts, burns, scalds, and all skin injuries and diseases. Of all stores and druggists at 50c, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. 3 boxes for $1.25.

Welbeck.

(Received too late for last week.)

Mr. Editor,—It is quite a while since you heard from our burg, so I thought I would write a few of the latest happenings.

Hunting is a thing of the present, and it is not at all surprising to meet a man with a large head and no game wandering through the woods.

The weather is very cold and wintry at present, and by the looks of things I think we will soon have winter.

Mr. Abe Mink visited the Shewell family for the last couple of days.

Mr. James Lister took a trip to Hayward's Falls the other night. Must be some attraction, Jim.

Mr. Donald Corlett is at present in Toronto working for the Government, and as he has always proved himself to be a business man he will likely fill his situation.

Mr. Charles Shewell was seen going east last Friday evening.

A is for Albert, who carried the gun, B is the bear that he shot on the run, C is for Charlie, who shot the rabbit, D is the man who said he would have it.

E is for the elephant they looked for in vain.

F is the fellow that was out in the rain.

G is for George, who ran very fast.

H is for the hawk that saw him go past.

I is for the Indian that gave them the fright.

J is the jigger who stayed out all night.

K is the knowledge the boys should have had.

L is the lad that stayed home with his dad.

M for the man who couldn't shoot straight.

N for the name which we will not relate.

The Welbeck mill is completed and is a very fine establishment.

Mr. A. Campbell has completed the bridge at Welbeck, and made a very good job of it.

The Sufferings of the Hardware Clerk.

The pretty maiden and her Sunday dade, A Hardware Clerk, with sentiment imbued, Sat in the parlor talking of the weather. Not far apart, and not too close together. For they were not engaged, you understand, Though each one thought the other "simply grand."

The pretty maiden was a "culchaw-ed" lass, And wearied of the ordinary gas About the rain last Monday afternoon, And how a cold December was a boon To business men. She gently waved her fan And thus she paralyzed this poor young man:

"You know I find exceptional delight In Bernard Shaw. His work appears so bright, So full of epigram and pungent wit, Such irony, I am so fond of it. A well of English, undefiled and pure."

The worried Hardware Clerk responded: "Sure."

"And Browning," said the maid, "His Sonnets seem As light as fancy, airy as a dream. And as for 'Pippa Passes,' 'tis divine. No other Modern's work is half so fine. You're fond of Browning?" said this young brunette. The Clerk then swabbed his brow and said: "You bet."

There was a grand piano in the house, The girl was very fond of Richard Strauss, And dwelt with special ecstacy upon The many beauties of his Don Juan. "How do you like him?" Thus the maiden spoke. A sudden silence—and the Clerk awoke.
