TOOK GOPHER POISON TO END HIS TROUBLES.

Charles Havenith, of Forget, Suicided Before Friends Could Interfere—Verdict of Self-Destruction.
Forget, Sask., Nov. 4.—The body of Chas. Havenith, a popular young man of this place, was brought into town Saturday, he having met death by taking gopher poison at the farm of a friend, whom he accompanied to bring in a load of oats. It appears he had been drinking heavily and had been despondent for some time. After they had gotten themselves a meal Havenith asked for a gun to shoot himself, but was refused. A little later he noticed a bottle of gopher poison on the table. Taking it up he said "Good bye" to his two friends and drank the contents before they could interfere. An antidote was given and they thought he was all right, having vomited twice, but the unfortunate young man died before he reached the town and secured medical aid. An inquest was held to day by Coroner MacGregor and a verdict was brought in of "suicide while temporarily insane." The funeral took place shortly after the inquest.

Chapped hands "are quickly cured by applying Chamberlain's Salve. Price, 25 cents. For sale at Parker's Drug Store.

AGRICULTURE.

We're learnin' Agriculture now at school, It's awful hard I feel jus' like a fool. I can't remember what the teacher tells About organic matter in the wells 'N nitrogen, 'n phosphorus. Gee whizz! This 'subject' is the hardest one there is.
This crop rotation bothers me a lot. Does corn come after wheat, or does it not? Does clover take the phosphates from the land?
'N if it does, I do not understand What phosphates is. Say, are they good or bad?
Hub! Agriculture! Gee, it makes me mad!
Paw sez a girl what never seed a farm. Can't tell us nothin'. She's a false alarm. But all the same, he knows no more'n me
What phosphorus an' nitrogen can be. Our teacher knows. gee whillikens, she's bright!
Don't care what Paw sez. Teacher is all right.
She knows the bugs 'at spoil a feller's trees, 'N how to kill 'em with the greatest ease.
She says alfalfa benefits the land, But how, I'd never, never understand.
I'd hate to be a agriculturist. Say, I'd rather be a farmer any day.

DAYS OF LONG AGO.

From The Durham Standard of Feb. 4th, 1859.

Destitution in the County of Bruce.

(From the Kincardine Commonwealth.)
The distress which at present prevails in several of the townships of the County of Bruce is most appalling. Cases of the most pitiable and heart-rending destitution are every day coming to our knowledge; and the most serious apprehensions are entertained regarding the future. Bad as times have been, and fearfully bad as they now are, yet nevertheless it is evident, that they are at the worst, and that there is a crisis rapidly rushing in upon us, that will stagger and defy every effort to ameliorate it, unless some immediate and decisive steps are taken to meet the coming storm. The horribleness of our position is daily revealing itself to us in all its sadness. In the adjoining townships there are hundreds of families verging on starvation; and God only knows where the end will be, or what is to become of them. Many of our best and thriftiest farmers are destitute of the where-with-all to carry them through till the next harvest,—the crops of the past year having almost proved a total failure. We could enumerate instances where, even already, families are subsisting on a few boiled turnips, others on bread and water alone, and the supply so small, that it cannot keep body and soul hanging together for many weeks longer. Some have consumed everything in the shape of vegetation, and, as their last resort, have slaughtered their oxen, which forms their whole sustenance. What in the name of everything that is sacred is to be done to rescue these poor creatures from the death by starvation which stares them in the face? Are we to stand by, and become the eye-witnesses of their dying agonies, or will we be up and doing, to stem the tide of starvation and death that has almost reached the portals of our habitations. Now or never is the time. Two months hence, and the sickening cry, too late, too late, may fall with reproachful accents upon our ears, from the dying lips of hundreds of our fellow creatures. God truly has laid his chastening rod upon us, but he it is also who in the abundance of his tender mercies can open up a way of deliverance. But man must strain his every faculty, and with the Almighty, who can bless and crown his efforts with success, there is yet abundance of hope. It will not do to stand and speak and look aghast at each other. We must go into action, with a determination equal to the task before us. It is difficult to say what plan of operation would be the best to follow out; but, if we are successful in securing private or Governmental aid at home, there is still another door open; and the writer of these lines knows right well, that if an appeal were made to his countrymen, Scotland, forever preeminent in every good work and benevolent act, would not fail to extend the requisite relief, to save hundreds of her unfortunate Highland countrymen from famishing in the wilds of Canada.
The above is a deplorable picture, which we hope is over drawn. If there exists a necessity of pecuniary aid, there need not be an appeal to Scotland, or any other land, beyond our own shores; although there has been upwards of twelve thousand bushels of wheat exported from Durham this season, there is yet sufficient remaining to supply, in a great measure, the wants of our brethren in Bruce, and we feel certain the disposition to assist will not be wanting, when applied to, if those most interested will take immediate steps to organize some mode of procedure, by which the desired end can be attained.—Ed. Standard.

THE LADY AND THE BARD.

A nation spoke to a poet,
A people sent word to his bard;
Come to my season of fruitfulness,
You that have judged be hard;
Gaze on my endless acres,
That a wealth of gold disclose,
When the wheat flames o'er the prairie
Of your Lady of the Snows.
"Neither with scorn nor with favor,
But scouting all other report—
Gaze on my wealthy lying naked, [port
When the Zepherus of summer dis
Speak to the stones of my cities,
List to the hammers' blows,
Ask of the steel rail girdles
Of our Lady of the Snows.
"My speech is clear and single.
My answer is cities fair,
Loose miles of sharf and marketplace
And the restless furnace glare
O'er the blue of my lakes and rivers
The keel of commerce goes.
Is mine an ice bound Thule?
Asks Our Lady of the Snows
"From my vine clad hills and valleys,
Pick the purple fruit of the vine,
Old Bacchus fares not better
On the slopes of Appennine,
See my woods in the late September,
Ere the breeze from the Northland
blows.
Drink deep of the richest crimson
Of Our Lady of the Snows.
"In winter you have seen me,
And Europe took your work:
May your story of my harvest-time
Through all her length be heard.
Tell the genius of my people
No bond from winter knows,
And I'll forgive you, Kipling,
For your 'Lady of the Snows.'"
Ottawa Oct. 12.

Biliousness and Constipation.

For years I was troubled with biliousness and constipation, which made life miserable for me. My appetite failed me. I lost my usual force and vitality. Pepsin preparations and cathartics only made matters worse. I do not know where I should have been to-day had I not tried Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. The tablets relieve the ill feeling at once, strengthen the digestive functions, helping the system to do its work naturally.—Mrs. ROSA PORTS, Birmingham, Ala.
These tablets are for sale at Parker's Drug Store.

IMPORTING BUTTER.

F. O., Toronto, writes: I should be much obliged to you if you would kindly give me your judgment in the following case: I read some days ago, in a Toronto paper, that on account of the shortness in the production of butter in Canada it has been necessary to import butter from England and Australia. The report gave the exact figures of the amount of imported butter. A friend of mine with whom I discussed the matter would not believe this fact, and it is indeed hard to believe. I therefore ask you kindly to answer me through your esteemed paper if the fact that butter has been imported this summer is true or not.
Ans.—For the nine months ending March 31st, 1907, there were imports amounting to 868,348 lbs. From Great Britain, 55,239; Australia, 218,942; Newfoundland, 21; New Zealand, 33,712; and United States, 560,433. Dealers state that the great bulk of the importation from the Old Country, at any rate, was returned butter, the shippers finding they could make a larger profit with prices prevailing here than they could on the British market. There is a considerable contingent on the way to Canada now from Australia and New Zealand, and also from Ireland. Dealers state that butter can be brought from these countries and set down in Toronto and Montreal at 28 to 30 cents per pound.—Toronto News.
