At 8 o'clock, when Toast Master Mr. John McArthur took his place and looked over the faces before him he could not fail to remark that the success of the evening was assured.

The spirit of pleasure and good fellowship took possession of everyone, and seldom was there an evening spent with so much thorough satisfaction to all.

The choicest dishes were served at their proper time, and it indeed spoke well for the house, which has so long held the reputation of being one of the best conducted hotels in the country.

After justice had been done to the many good things provided and the table cleared, Mr. McArthur opened the program with a very appropriate address, in which he spoke in praise worthy terms of the lady of the house.

As a toast master, Mr. John McArthur stands second to none. He has long been recognized for his great gifts.

His manner puts those around him at ease. He has unbounded control and a knowledge of the world that nothing can surpass.

Priceville.

A farewell banquet in behalf of some guests was given by the Commercial Hotel at Priceville on Thursday evening.

Everything in the large dining room was very prettily and gracefully arranged, and the many who were present will not soon forget the merry hours spent there and the genial and honorable company represented.

The management was so perfect that no period of the evening saw an embarrassing feature.

At 8 o'clock, when Toast Master Mr. John McArthur took his place and looked over the faces before him he could not fail to remark that the success of the evening was assured.

The spirit of pleasure and good fellowship took possession of everyone, and seldom was there an evening spent with so much thorough satisfaction to all.

speeches made by the following gentlemen:-

Mr. Murchie-"The element of success is nothing more than doing what you can do well, and doing well whatever you do without thought of fame."

Mr. Barclay-"Be a friend to yersel and itthers will."

Mr. Drowley-"Then do not squander time for that is the stuff life is made of."

Mr. Stewart-"Every man stamps his own value upon himself, and we are great or little according to our own will."

Mr. Ford-"The cheerful live longest in years and afterward in our re ards."

Mr. Manley-"Can anyone be so elegant as to have few wants and serve them one's self."

Mr. McAndrews-"If a man can write a better book, preach a better sermon or make a better mouse trap than his neighbor, though he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."

Mr. Dingwall-"It is the part of a wise man to keep himself to day for to-morrow and not to venture all his eggs in the one basket."

Mr. Hunt-"I hate a thing done by halves; if it be right do it boldly; if it be wrong leave it undone"

Mr. Rowe-"Things don't turn up in this world until somebody turns them up."

Mr. Carmichael-"The falling drops at last will wear the stone"

Mr. Hebden-"To color well requires your life-it cannot be done cheaper."

Mr. Fairbairn-"Blessed are the jymakers."

Dr. Atkinson-"The longer I live the more deeply am I impressed that that which makes the difference between one man and another-between the weak and the powerful-the great and insignificant, is energy-invincible determination-a purpose once formed, and then death or victory."

Mrs. McAndrews proved a delightful entertainer. Several solos were rendered by Mr. Saunders and well received.

The various speakers dwelt upon the many acts of kindness shown them by Mrs. Butters and her assistants, Miss B. Conkey and Miss J. Gilles.

Dr. Atkinson, son of Mrs. Butters, replied in a few well chosen words and returned thanks for their courtesy and gentlemanliness while guests in the house, and wished all prosperity and happiness.

The program was interspersed with many songs and amusing stories, instrumental music and dancing.

Piper Hector McDonald and his little daughter Jessie appeared to great advantage in full Highland costume. Piper McDonald is one of the finest specimens of the stout and stalwart Highlander that ever donned the kilt in this village, and to see him in full costume with the great military bagpipe over his broad shoulder would make any Scotchman proud.

But Hector charmed the company with wonderful playing, both on the bagpipes and violin. He is indeed a great musician and loves to play the old Highland tunes so dear to our people. He was received each time with great applause.

Jessie McDonald is the best and most charming little Scotch dancer that has ever appeared in Priceville. She became at once a general favorite.

Mr. Angus McLachlan entertained the company with his feats of dancing. Angus is a born contortionist. At step-dancing he plants his nimble feet so gracefully, lightly and quickly and has such a variety of steps with good time that all admired the jolly red haired boy from the north line.

His presence is always desirable, and wherever Angus can hang his hat is "home sweet home."

The program completed, the guests danced away the happy hours until daylight warned them 'twas time to go to work.

BANKER FOOLED HIMSELF.

The merchant called at his bank a few days ago for the purpose of borrowing $1,500 on his own note. He had put through transactions of a similar nature with the same bank on previous occasions, at this time he was told it would be necessary to have an endorser on his paper.

Two names were suggested by the bank manager as endorsers, either of which he would accept. To the banker's surprise the man returned in the course of an hour with the note endorsed by both the gentlemen suggested. The bank manager then threw up his hands and acknowledged that he could not loan the money, no matter how many endorsers there were on the note, as his bank did not have the money.

The customer then reported the matter to one of the endorsers, who had several thousands in the savings branch of the same bank, and who was somewhat provoked because his endorsement would not be accepted by the banker. With his friend he proceeded to the bank, making out a check for $1500 drew it on his savings account, passed it over to the merchant and took the note himself. And now the banker is trying to figure out what his institution gained by refusing the loan.—Woodstock Sentinel—Review.
