We know from Pep and from passages in the plays or contemporary dramatists that the commers of theater audiences in the restoration epoch | In some countries voting is compulsory were not nice, but there is no reason to believe that even the fops habitually arrived at the theater late. Mr. Sparkish, Mr. Novel and their fellowswould talk loudly while the play was going on to show the superiority of their wit to the poet's, but they likely were on hand early to lose none of the fun In later epochs of English theatrical history theater going was a serious undertaking, not a mere pastime. One can tell from the beginnings of old plays that the authors counted on audiences closely attentive from the first. Lady Randolph is the first speaker in "Douglas," Orestes in "The Distressed Mother," Almeira in "The Mourning Bride." The custom of "playing the audience in" with a short piece was of still later origin. Perhaps about that time the habit of going late to the theater became common. "Half price" for late comers was a custom of Thackeray's time. - Westminster Gazette.

A Perilous Experience.

While bunting in the Big Horn mountains two men found a narrow path, little more than a deer trail, leading up to the summit. They dismount ed and led their borses, moving very cautiously, for on one side the moun tain rose up like a wall, and on the other sloped down a thousand feet to the canyon below. Suddenly both horses pricked up their ears as if scent ing a wild beast. Then there came a shot from the bunter in advance, and the hunter in the rear found himself hanging over the cliff. He had been leading the horse by the reins, and when the horse shied and upset him be held on with a death grip. It was nearly five minutes that he thus bung on to the slender strap, while the horse held back with all his strength. But he could not climb up, and his companion had to haul him up to a place of safety, and then he naturally fainted.-St Paul Pioneer Press.

Pigs and a Palace.

King Charles of Roumania made many changes in his Balkan kingdom since he arrived there in 1866 after an adventurous journey in disguise from Germany. Notable among them are the changes in the capital and the royal palace. When he made his triumphal entry as the country's new prince the carriage reached a house before which a guard of honor was stationed. "What house is that?" be asked. "That is the palace," replied General Goleski. The prince, thinking he had misunderstood him, said. "Where is the palace?" And the gen eral was so embarrassed that he could only point silently to the one storied building. The principal feature of the view from the windows on one side was a gypsy encampment, with swine wallowing in the main road before the palace.

ROADWAY SUNK FIFTY FEET. A curious phenomenon occurred between Teeswater and Wingham. near the village of Belgrave, says a recent despatch. A large section of the roadway sank to a depth A few miles from the spot is another large hole, at the bottom of which quicksands are perpetually swirling, as if disturbed by some unseen current below. The appearance of these two great holes. which run in a northeasterly direction towards the town of Wingham, leads geologists to the opinion that a subterranean river exists, which flows somewhere under the Bruce Peninsula and connects Lake Huron with Lake Ontario.

It is said that several kinds of fish of the smaller variety and peculiar only to Lake Huron have been found in Lake Ontario, which could not possibly have made the long journey through Lake St. Clair and Lake Erie, and therefore must have made their way through some channel unknown to man.

The flow of the Maitland River is also getting smaller and at times runs almost dry, which is probably caused by the draining away of the water by the underground river. The people in the vicinity are somewhat alarmed at this phenomenon, as the land about there is low and of a boggy

The township of Turnberry is hiring men and teams, who are drawing loads of stone. The undertaking is a gigantic one, and no doubt hundreds of loads will be necessary before the roadway is properly repaired.

FORESTRY FACTS.

The following, from a Government Bulletin, is thoroughly reliable:

Mr. R. H. Campbell, Director of Forestry, who recently returned from a tour of inspection of the Dominion Forest Reserves in the West, says, "Unquestionably, the work there is in better shape this year than ever before." Not only have fire-fighting facilities. as trails, lookout stations, telephone lines, tool caches, and fireguards, been very much improved, but the construction of good roads has made the pleasure-resorts in these reserves more accessible to the public.

The larch, or 'tamarack', of eastern Canada will soon be commercially extinct. Already, according to Dr. Gordon Hewitt, the Dominion Entomologist, its enemy, the large larch saw-fly 'has destroyed between fifty and one hundred per insect pest was introduced into the United States from Europe about 1881, and, having few natural enemies in America, has spread over the whole eastern half of the continent. It is doubtful whether it will be brought under control.

The revenue from the forests of British India, under the administration of the Indian Forest Service, amounted last year to $14,-000,000. Over $1,250,000 were derivnoted in the West. One Dominion hind quarters.
