SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at the office of any Local Agent of Dominion Lands (not sub-agent), on certain conditions. Duties.—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required in every case, except when residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties.—Six months residence in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and 50 acres extra cultivation. A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price, $3 per acre. Duties.—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land.

IDEAL WIVES.

Well-Known Novelists Views on Desirable Women.

Tastes, of course, differ, but some men appear to want a wife who never existed except in romantic dreams. She must be a model of all virtues and possess no failings. She must be "so pretty that we are always proud, and so good that we are never un- easy; a woman who wears well and looks her best in two-year-old gowns; who applies the adjective important in relation to our work, our food, and our desire for unfettered holidays; who laughs at our jokes and preserves a marble face when we are scored off by others; with whom we have the massively comforting sensation that she will never recognize the plain, staring fact that we are not brave, not wise, no kind, not clever."

The words quoted are those of that popular novelist, Mr. W. B. Maxwell, and "the astounding, incredible thing," he concludes, in his comments on the sort of woman a man likes, "is that, wanting all that, we sometimes get it."

A truer note, perhaps, is struck by Mr. Joseph Hocking who, remarking that a woman a man does not like is the political woman, says: "Man's ideal of womanhood, as far as I know men, is suggested by the old-fashioned word 'womanliness'. She is a sympathetic companion, one who desires to share in the joys and sorrows of her husband. She is a lover of home and children, and finds her greatest joys by her own fireside. She is far removed from the creature whose main thought is her own pleasure. Whether she is intellectual or not I do not think of great importance, but she must be pure in heart and life, and, like Dickens' Agnes, hers must be the 'hand that ever points upward'."

And both Mr. Coulson Kernahan and his friend, Mr. Max Pemberton, agree with Mr. Hocking. The former, in a Strand Magazine symposium, quotes G. H. Lorimer, the well-known American editor and author, who has given it as his opinion that "Marriages may be made in heaven, but most engagements are made in the back parlor with the gas so low that a fellow doesn't really get a square look at what he is taking."

"But," comments Mr. Kernahan, "the woman that the majority of men like may be dark or fair, tall or short, plump or slim, so long as she is, before all things, womanly." And most readers will probably agree with Mr. Max Pemberton, who gives it as his opinion that men want "chiefly a womanly woman. She must be," he says, "the woman in all the world for him, and he must be conscious of the fact. It is quite impossible for one man to convince another that any particular type of beauty is an element in the mystery of love. The appeal is from the soul of the woman to the soul of the man. Nevertheless, it is the quality of womanhood, of gentleness and patience and capacity to love, that is the supreme thing."

Mr. E. Temple Thurston is somewhat severe on his own sex. "The kind of woman a man likes," he says, "is the woman who can minister to his selfishness without obliterating herself, who can listen to his egotism without making him feel he is monopolizing the conversation, who can clothe his thousand faults with the desire to win to his few virtues; she who can be mother and child, mistress and wife, friend and counsellor, to his countless inconsistencies."

A Millionaire's Freak.

M. Spiridinoff, a well-known Moscow millionaire, is just about to celebrate his golden wedding. To the festivities which are to mark the event two hundred guests have been invited. Each of these two hundred people received the other day a special and appropriate card of invitation, made of pure gold. As each card weighs 20 grammes, which is rather less than 3-4 oz. avoirdupois, it follows that the total amount of gold used is just about nine pounds. The metal was transformed into these unique missive, on which the invitation was worked in enamel by a Moscow goldsmith. Each invitation card is valued at about $30.

Her Name.

One needs patience to succeed as a teacher of the young, as this brief dialogue in one of our elementary schools may show:

Scholar—I've left home now, ma'am. I'm living with my auntie. Teacher—What's her name? "She's called after me—Fanny." "Yes, but what's her other name?" "She has no other." "But what does the woman next door call her?" "She doesn't speak to the woman next door."

Rendering Lard.

Cut leaf lard into small pieces and run through the meat chopper before rendering and you will have almost all lard and very few cracklings when through cooking. A teaspoonful of common baking soda in the water in which you start your lard to rendering makes its white and sweet. Sprinkle a thin layer of salt in the bottom of jars before pouring in your newly rendered lard and it will not get rancid.

Soft Gingerbread.

A cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of shortening, two eggs, a cupful of molasses, a tablespoonful of ginger, a tablespoonful of cinnamon, a heaping teaspoonful of soda dissolved in a cupful of boiling water, three and two-thirds cupfuls of flour and a tablespoonful of vinegar. Beat well and bake in a moderate oven thirty-five or forty minutes.

A Lark.

What a lark it would be if an egg came down the chimney. No, it wouldn't, unless it was a lark's egg, and even then not until it was hatched. Eggsactly.
