

THE DURHAM CHRONICLE

W. IRWIN Editor and Proprietor.

DURHAM, APRIL 16, 1914

PRICEVILLE.

Good Friday was kind of quiet, as there was no business done. The past week was cold, and not much appearance of warm weather so far.

A number of visitors took advantage of the cheap rates at Easter, some coming and going.

From town, Mrs. D. Graham and Mrs. Rev. Matheson left for Victoria and Vancouver some 10 days ago, where they intend to spend some time with their relatives before coming back. All join in wishing them a pleasant trip and safe return.

Miss Alice McDougall of Toronto spent a few days visiting friends on the South Line, Glenelg.

Mr. Herman McLean and family moved to the McTaggart farm, con. 4, N.D.R., Glenelg, Thursday, the 5th inst. Herman is going to try his hand at farming for a change. It is said that a change of work is as good as a rest.

John Stothart shipped a carload of cattle and hogs to Toronto last week.

Dr. Lane is always kept on the move, sometimes day and night. Teachers will have a week's holidays, which will slip over in a hurry.

The hens are busy laying a lot of eggs for to-morrow, Easter Sunday. For our part, we will just eat as many as usual, and no more.

The Corner man is greatly taken up in making references to Gaelic. We would advise him to take his pen in a more manly style and not be tampering with the evil one's name, for if we were to apply the letter D before the evil it would make the sentence sound like his Satanic Majesty's name. If he wants to know a simple sentence in Gaelic we would ask him to learn the following: Chur sein air do theanga agus na bi labhairt chaint neomhagal, or bridle your tongue from giving unmanly language. From henceforth we shall say to him, "Let Ephraim alone, for she is given up to her idols." So we will pay no more attention to Mack's Gaelic or English. In his reference to the late Dr. Norman McLeod we beg to say that he is greatly mistaken. The Dr. was one of the ablest preachers in Scotland, and the most humble, for he would converse with the lowest of his parishioners, as well as he would to the highest, and answer their questions, whether on things temporal or spiritual, as becometh a Christian gentleman.

REMARKABLE CURE OF RHEUMATISM

Supt. Of Sunday School In Toronto Cured By "Fruit-a-tives"

R. A. WAUGH, Esq.

TORONTO, ONT., Oct. 1st, 1913. "For a long time, I have thought of writing you regarding what I term a most remarkable cure effected by your remedy 'Fruit-a-tives'. I have lived in this city for more than 12 years and am well known. I suffered from Rheumatism especially in my hands. I have spent a lot of money without any good results. I have taken 'Fruit-a-tives' for 18 months now and am pleased to tell you that I am cured. All the enlargement has not left my hands and perhaps never will, but the soreness is all gone and I can do any kind of work. I have gained 35 pounds in 18 months."

R. A. WAUGH, 55 DOVERCOURT ROAD. "Fruit-a-tives" will always cure even the most stubborn cases of Rheumatism because it is the greatest blood purifier in the world and acts on the bowels, kidneys and skin.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c, or will be sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

The noted paper mills of the Pirrie firm at Aberdeen were almost destroyed by fire last Friday. The loss is placed at $500,000.

Before a Montreal audience that included 200 priests and many nuns Henri Bourassa said that during the last 50 years there has been a great decay in politeness, honesty and morals of the French-Canadian race. He scored the fashionable women's attire common in Montreal.

A Case of Repentance

By MARGARET C. DEVEREAUX

We have usually presumed that repentance must come before death.

Eleanor Blake lost her father when she was a little girl, and her mother took for a second husband one William Markland, a widower with a son, at the time of the marriage twelve years older than his step-sister. The widow was very poor, and Mr. Markland was rich. His son, Joseph, was a singular youth, sometimes under the influence of pure and noble emotions and sometimes apparently swayed by the devil himself. When he was in the former condition he was very kind to Eleanor, but when in the latter he seemed to hate her.

Eleanor was a favorite with her step-father and he hoped when she grew to be a woman she would marry his son, for he was aware of the latter's Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde disposition, and he believed that she would be able to tide him over his evil periods, but he only wished for this; he did not attempt to bring it about. Eleanor's mother died when she was fifteen years old, and after being made again a widower Mr. Markland's affection for his little stepdaughter was much enhanced. His son's periods of wickedness seemed to be increasing on him and were a source of distress to his father.

Then Joe Markland, when Eleanor was seventeen years old, delighted his father by showing evidence that he was falling in love with his step-sister. Eleanor, however, seemed to regard him only as a brother, but as such was extremely fond of him. He asked for a different love, and when she told him that it was not possible for her to give it to him he fell into one of his wicked states and treated her shamefully.

Joe Markland disappeared one day and was not seen at home again for a long while. Meanwhile his father failed in health, and Eleanor was his sole comfort. She considered it her duty as well as her preference to remain single and to minister to him, though she had many suitors. All this time no one knew where Joe Markland was till a few months before his father died, when Eleanor received a letter from him evidently written in one of his angelic moods. He regretted that she could not love him, but did not blame her. He wrote to ask her forgiveness for the way he had treated her.

Eleanor wrote that his father could not live long and begged him to come home and give the invalid what comfort he could during the short time that remained before death. Joe wrote that he would come at once; but, though only a few weeks were needed for the journey, he did not arrive for several months. He reached home the day his father died, and it was perhaps as well that he did not arrive sooner, for, though he showed no outward signs of his mood to those who did not know him well, he was, nevertheless, in one of his devilish conditions. His father was barely able to bid him goodby and whispered to him that he hoped he would some day secure Eleanor for his wife.

Joe took charge of the household and household affairs till after the funeral, when a search was made for the will. No will was found. Joe, being sole heir at law, took possession of the property and told Eleanor that if she would marry him he would turn over the management of it to her. Eleanor refused. Quite possibly, considering as she did that her stepfather desired the match, she might have yielded, but she saw that Joe was at the time not his better self.

Joe Markland remained at home long enough to put his estate under a competent manager, whom he directed to pay his sister $50 a month and permitted her to remain in the home-stead.

One morning looking out of an upper window she saw her stepbrother coming. Though some distance from her, he appeared bedraggled. He was walking rapidly, and she had scarcely seen him when she heard him at the door. She ran down to meet him, but he was not where she had expected to find him. Thinking he had entered before her, she went into the living room. There stood Joe with a heavenly look on his face, such as she had often seen there when he had become repentant. She was about to spring toward him when she noticed that he was dripping with water. And singularly enough there was a salt odor about him. She ran out of the room to get something in which to wrap him till he could change his clothing, and when she returned with a blanket she had snatched from a bed Joe was not there.

What had become of him? She was about to run into the hall to look for him when she noticed on a table a folded document. She took it up and found it soaked with water. Clinging to it was a fine strand of seaweed.

The paper was found to be a will of William Markland, leaving all his property to his stepdaughter, Eleanor Blake.

Eleanor was found lying on the floor in a swoon, and an illness followed. When she recovered she said that she had found the will in the attic under a leak in the roof. Soon after this news came of the death of Joe Markland. He had been drowned trying to swim across an inlet on the coast of Tasmania.

Had he stolen the will while his father was lying dead, possibly in the same room with him?

RHEUMATISM

SCIATICA AND LUMBAGO QUICKLY CURED BY "KEPHALDOL"

A druggist in Toronto said that he was asking an Old Country customer of his about KEPHALDOL TABLETS. This customer told him, "I suffered from severe Rheumatism and Sciatica for twenty years, hardly ever being free from these troubles. I read about KEPHALDOL in the Glasgow papers and sent home for some. Three hours after taking two tablets, the pain was almost gone, and after taking six or seven, I hadn't a bit of pain."

This druggist went in to see his doctor about his wife and asked him if he had ever heard of KEPHALDOL. The doctor said, "Yes, I understand KEPHALDOL is a reliable sedative and anodyne, relieving pain without affecting the heart or vital organs. Since KEPHALDOL has been introduced into Canada I have prescribed it in cases of severe Headache and Neuralgia, and just recently succeeded in helping a most severe case of La Grippe with it."

Since then, this druggist has ordered KEPHALDOL and recommended it to those of his customers who wanted something to relieve pain. If you are unable to get KEPHALDOL Tablets at your druggist's, send 50c to Kephaldol Limited, 31 Latour St., Montreal.
