Lesson VI.—Second Quarter, For May 10, 1914.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Luke xvi, 1-13. Memory Verses, 8, 9-Golden Text, Luke xvi, 10-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Our last lesson was concerning a young man who wasted his father's substance in riotous living (Luke xv. 13). Now we read of a steward who wasted

We are all stewards of Him who giveth us life and breath and all things; in whom we live and move and have our being; in whose hand our breath is and whose are all our ways; who giv-We are either good stewards, using His gifts for others as well as ourselves, or we are selfish, using all things for ourselves only. The rich man of next week's lesson, we will find, was unbelieving and selfish. The rich man of chapter xii, 16-20, was thoroughly selfish and foolish. The rich young ruler of chapter xviii, 23, was also more interested in his riches than in a proper use of them. and in that connection our Lord said that riches sometimes hindered a man from entering the kingdom. It is not always so, for Zaccheus was rich and Joseph of Arimathea (Luke xix, 2, 9; Matt. xxvii, 57), as also were Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, David and others.

Money is not necessarily evil, but it is written. "The love of money is the root of all evil." and it is better to follow after righteousnness, godliness, faith, love, patience, meekness (I Tim. vi, 10, 11). This present world or age is evil, it lieth in the wicked one, the devil is its god, its friendship is enmity with God, we are not to be conformed to it, for we are not of it (Gal. i, 4; I John v, 19; 11 Cor. iv, 4; Jas. iv, 4; Rom. xii, 2; John xvii, 14, 16). Therefore we cannot serve God and Mammon, or riches, but we can make good use of Mammon and use this world without abusing it (verses 9, 13).

As to this unjust steward whom our Lord uses as an illustration, he was found guilty of defrauding his employer and was told that he must lose his situation. He at once set about providing for himself when he would be no longer steward by cutting down the indebtedness of all his lord's debtors, thus laying them under obligation to him to befriend him when he would have no employment. He was such a dishonest fellow that he did not care how much he robbed his master if he could only provide for himself. His master commended his shrewdness in thus providing for his future, even thouga it was at further cost to himself. Our Lord did not speak well of him, for He would not justify a wrong transaction, but He did say that this bad man was wiser in his way than those who made no provision for their future in the world to come.

I have often been asked how our Lord could commend this unjust man and his sin. Our Lord did not commend him; it was his own lord, or master, who told him, virtually, that he was a clever rascal in providing for his future in this fraudulent way. Our Lord said to His disciples that it would be well to use all present opportunities | the art themselves. in their reach with reference to the future that many might welcome them in the kingdom. All believers are put in trust with the gospel and with the talents and pounds, and all are stewards of the manifold grace of God, and some are stewards of the mysteries of God, all have received the spirit to profit withal (I Thess. ii, 4; Matt. xxv; Luke xix; I Pet. iv. 10; I Cor. iv, 1; xii, 7, 11). We are debtors to every creature to give the gospel to all, and by going, or helping others to go, and thus win souls, we are gathering unto Him those who will welcome us in His kingdom, even though we may never have seen them face to face on earth. Thus we cause joy in the presence of the angels now and great increase of joy to ourselves in His kingdom.

there are no degrees in salvation, no one can be more saved than another or more safe at one time than another after Jesus Christ is truly received. All who are in Christ are equally safe, and safe forever. But all saved ones are expected to serve the living and true God as He may direct, and every one shall receive his own reward according to his own labor (I Cor. iii, 8; Rev. xxii, 12; Luke xiv, 14). The Pharisees who were covetous or money lov ers derided Him and His teachings. desiring the approval of men rather than the approval of God, and they violently opposed the King and the kingdom until they finally killed Him, saying, "We have no king but Caesar." Those who prefer the friendship of this world are called adulterers (Jas. iv, 4). The true disciple is married to the Lord to bring forth fruit unto God (Rom. vii, 4), but Israel was an empty vine bringing forth fruit unto himself, a degenerate plant of a strange tine bearing wild grapes (Hos. x, 1; Jer. ii, 21; Isa, v, 2).

That which men esteem and which God esteems are as far separate as hell and heaven, and yet the great crowd, many professing Christians included. prefer the ways of man and the praise of men because the god of this world hath blinded their minds. Let us consider well if we are faithful to the "Mr. Brady, your neighbor, Mi- trust committed to us. desiring in all chael Reagan has applied to me things the approval of our Lord. whose for a place as chauffeue. MME. MONTESSONI'S SYSTEM HAS WORKED A REVOLUTION.

dren While They Are at Play Has Accomplished Marvels In the Development of the Young Mind and Her Method Is Being Copied In Every Part of the Globe.

The title of "the most interesting | woman in Europe" has been bestow- ternally, and acts directly on the ed upon Mme. Maria Montesscri, the Italian lady doctor whose system of system. Send for testimonials free teaching children has astonished the educational world.

She became attracted to the problem when, as assistant doctor at'a stipation. Roman clinic, she noticed that feebleminded children were herded with those who were actually insane. The sufferings of the fairly intelligent infants so impressed her that she threw up her medical work to take charge of an asylum for deficient and feeble-minded children, intending to conduct it on new principles she had thought out. The result was dramatic. One of her pupils, originally supposed to be half-witted, was sent, after her training, to the ordinary public school and passed in with higher marks than any of his companions.

This happened several times, and Mme. Montessori realized that her system must be considerably superior to the one followed by most preparatory schools. She decided to apply it to normal children, and re-entered the University of Rome for three It seemed to her the whole world of children were crying for help.

In 1907, in one of the poorest districts of Rome, inhabited by the vicious and criminal, she opened her first school. To all appearance it is just a large nursery, where children either sit in little chairs or sprawl at their ease on rugs playing with wooden blocks, pieces of colored silk, buttons and other fascinating objects to the child mind.

A few days hence, when the letter is called, the muscles of his little hand will instinctively move in the right direction.

If he feels bored, which really means tired, he will tear off his bandage and ask for something else to play with. That is the whole secret of Dr. Montessori's system. She develops the infant mind naturally, encouraging it to awaken from within rather than learn from with-

Because the children are not forced and driven, they learn to love school, and come gladly, even implanting a desire for knowledge in the hearts of their parents. One day a child at home, seeing a plate of bread and butter on the table, cried out, "Rectangle," and when the mother cut off a piece with a knife the child said, "Triangle." The whole family were curious and came round to know what the words meant.

Rough and drunken parents who usually spent their evenings in wineshops stayed at home in the evening to learn for themselves the lessons which their children brought from school. Mothers became interested in the mysteries of writing, and timidly visited the school to acquire

Pupils began to despise playthings because they gave no chance to exercise their reasoning faculties, but they would preserve any odd scrap of paper that contained food for

Most marvellous of all was the improvement in the health of the children. They grew plump and vigorous, and looked like the offspring of healthy parents living in the country rather than mites from the heart of the slums.

A happier school never existed, and it is now being copied all over the world. Teachers of all nationalities visit Mme. Montessori to learn her system, and the Franciscan schools and orphanages propose to adopt it.

After the Messina earthquake the Franciscan nuns at Monteverde hous-We cannot remind you too often that ed and cared for three hundred wild and half-civilized girl orphans who had been saved from the wrecked villages, and ultimately turned them into well-mannered young ladies. If, with all their experience, the nuns deliberately adopt a new system of education, there must be many exceptionally strong points to recommend it.

The Poet Defined.

Somebody was remarking on the number of poets who are mentioned by the daily papers.

"Why," he declared, "I never heard of one in twenty of them. What is a poet, anyway?" And the newspaper man gravely

"A poet is a writer who rarely gets into print."

Drawing the Line.

"I don't mind listening to a man who is paying for my dinner tell me the story of his life," said the woman. "Men's lives are generally interesting, but I won't stand to hear a woman tell everything she knows, even if she does pay for my dinner. I'd rather pay for my own dinner and get an occasional shy at the conversation."

A Consistent Course.

A railroad president was writing to an underling regarding a matter of improvement the other man wished to inaugurate without loss of time, but of which the president did not particularly approve.

"Dear Blank," he wrote, "don't do anything until you see me. "P. S .- Then don't do anything!"
