CAVE DWELLERS.

Fine Description of Peculiar Home of Africa Sheik.
Scattered from Babes to Dehibat and from Matmata over the Tripoli border are the troglodytes or cave dwellers of northern Africa. They live on mountain sides. Sometimes there are small groups, many times a single family. The towns are built in ovals, with only one entrance for each tribe, so that a small group of men heavily armed could if necessary protect their strongholds from thieves or enemies.
All of the troglodyte towns are set far in the wilderness and can be approached only with the greatest difficulty. This makes them places of exceptional vantage in time of war. The people could see an enemy approaching in the desert for many miles unless it was at night. Even then the passage-way—a arrow path through the mountain—would be too dangerous for approach, for a misstep would mean a fall of hundreds of feet to the rocks below.
Sheik Ferdjani's cave in Matmata is described by a traveler in the most minute detail.
The cave was whitewashed. To the left were a wooden chest and a gun, one of many. Back of the gun on a stand cut out of the rock was a dark object, an oil lamp the form dating back to the Greek and Roman days. There was a white object in the centre, a bedstead cut out of the rock, and there were comfortable mattresses filled with wool and native blankets and rugs. Above the bedstead was a sort of cupboard where snuff, matches and other articles are placed.
To the right were large oil and water jars. At the back of the cave were couscous covers, the larger ones having come from Ghadames. These covers and couscous plates are highly prized and very ornamental. Above the plates and covers were a Persian picture and an Arab almanac.
Progressive Chinese City.
The city of Canton, China, with a million and a half inhabitants, has no place for a street railway system. Canton is one of the wealthiest and most progressive of all the Chinese cities and it would very much like a modern street railway system. But the space within the ancient walls and fortifications is so crowded that many of the so-called streets are but narrow alleys, not even wide enough for two sedan chairs to pass. There is no room for horses and carriages, and certainly not sufficient space for a narrow-gauge railway. But the Chinese engineers are not so easily baffled and Canton will have its electric railway. It is planned to tear down the ancient stone walls and fortifications which encircle the entire city. The material from these walls will be used to fill some of the old canals which traverse the city. A three-track belt line will be constructed on the site of the old wall, completely encircling the city, and the old canal sites will be used for feeder lines.

Lasting.

"Your suggestion," said a depositor to the bank receiver, "offers very cold comfort. It is a bachelor's comfort—that is to say, no comfort at all."
"What," said a bachelor to a benedict, "only married a year and already so blue?"
"Ah, but," groaned the benedict, "I never imagined that a wife would prove so expensive."
"The bachelor patted the blue married man on the back in a consolatory way."
"Yes," he said, "a wife is an expensive article; that is true. But then you must remember that she lasts a very long time."

Baked Apples.

The next time you have baked apples try this way of cooking them: Wash, then core the apples; fill the holes with boiled rice or hominy; sprinkle sugar, a grate of nutmeg and a small dot of butter on top of each apple. Mix equal parts of water and grape juice together and use this for basting. Place the apples in an agate dish and bake until tender, basting several times. When done lift them carefully with a cooking fork into a glass dish, flavor the syrup with vanilla and pour it over the apples. Serve hot or cold with soft gingerbread or lady fingers or sponge cake.

Hats and Politeness.

"French and German hats," said a hatter, "only last half as long as ours. It isn't the poor quality of the hats, but the fine quality of the manners that causes this. Lifting the hat in salutation is the hardest work that falls to the headpieces and the French and Germans lift it to men and women equally, thus giving it twice as much labor as we do. Naturally, then, it wears out twice as quickly. It goes in the brim in no time over the water."

Twenty-Three Nations Understood.
Have you ever looked at Esperanto, which is an attempt at the language the whole West can understand, as the East understands Hindustani or pidgin English?—The British Esperantist publishes the words and music of a song that Mr. Harrison Hill wrote, composed, and sang at the Berne Congress, and 23 nationalities joined in the chorus with immediate understanding.—London Chronicle.

Was at the Front.

A retired army officer was in his back garden one day when a tramp came round the end of the house. "I've been at the front," he began, "and"—The old officer beamed on him as he interrupted to ask: "Have you indeed, my man? And were you wounded?" "No," said the man; "no, sir, not exactly. But I couldn't make no one hear, so I come round to the back."

DECLINED WITH THANKS

HE.
Oh, will you walk a mile with me?
The wind is from the west;
The lark is singing merrily,
A song is in my breast;
The day is fair, the sky is blue,
And sweetly Nature calls;
I long to walk a mile with you
Beyond the City's walls.
SHE.
Excuse me, kind sir, if you please,
And think me not unfair;
I have a chance to loll at ease
And breathe the country air:
I lately have received a call
From one whose car is new,
And I possess no wish at all
To walk a mile with you.
—S. E. Kiser.

ZAM-BUK

MRS. A. SAICH, of Cannington Manor, Sask., Writes:—"My brother suffered severely from eczema. The sores were very extensive, and burned like coals into his flesh. Zam-Buk took out all the fire, and quickly gave him ease. Within three weeks of commencing with Zam-Buk treatment, every sore had been cured."
This is but one of the many letters we are constantly receiving from people who have proved the healing powers of Zam-Buk. For eczema, piles, sores, burns, cuts and all skin troubles there is nothing like this wonderful balm. No skin disease should be considered incurable until Zam-Buk has been tried.
