

Regularity

of the bowels is an absolute necessity for good health. Unless the waste matter from the food which collects there is got rid of at least once a day, it decays and poisons the whole body, causing biliousness, indigestion and sick headaches. Salts and other harsh mineral purgatives irritate the delicate lining of the bowels. Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills—entirely vegetable—regulate the bowels effectively without weakening, sickening or griping. Use

A full grown cow moose was seen in the streets of the Soo on Thursday, evidently driven from the bush by fire.

W. A. McLean of Toronto was elected president of the Canadian Good Roads Congress, meeting at Montreal, with O. Hezlewood, Toronto, as second vice president, and Controller Church invited the congress to meet in Toronto next year.

Dr. C. A. Becher, coroner, of London, had a close call when he lost control of his automobile at the Ridout street crossing of the Thames. The car swerved across the street railway tracks and plunged over the 12-foot embankment, becoming suspended at the rear end by an iron spike in the bridge.

CATALOGUES FOR KINGS.

Royalties Pestered With Tradesmen's Samples.

Tradesmen the world over, manufacturers of all varieties of useful articles and novelties, are assiduous bidders for the patronage of the crowned heads of Europe. Virtually every monarch in the course of a year receives goods to the value of hundreds of thousands of dollars. All the sender would wish is a note of former acceptance. He might live in hopes of orders in the future, but the mere recognition of the receipt and use of an article by a royal personage would be satisfying.

The rule concerning unsolicited sample goods sent to Their Majesties of England is simple. All such goods of considerable value are to be returned to the senders; ordinary samples of little value can be retained and divided among any of the royal servants who wish to keep them.

A year ago, among the samples received by the King were enough cigars, cigarettes, tobacco and pipes to keep the most inveterate smoker well supplied for many years. Five thousand sample boxes of all sorts of cigars arrived in one week from hundreds of different cigar manufacturers, and most of those samples were in silver boxes. They were all returned to the senders.

Queen Mary receives marvelous assortments of exquisite dress fabrics, examples of beautiful laces, embroidery work and shawls, while specially prepared catalogues, never seen by the ordinary public, of varied goods arrive in a perfect avalanche at Buckingham Palace.

Many of these catalogues cost a considerable sum of money to produce. A well-known firm that specializes in children's toys has a special catalogue prepared every year for their royal customers which costs them about $2,500 to turn out.

The King of Spain, when he first visited there several years ago, received, among other things, a model of a motor car made of silver gilt. This beautifully designed car was two feet in length and modeled in proportion. The value of the metal alone must have been $500. The young King bought it for $1,500.

A wealthy and celebrated firm of furnishers sent models of six furnished rooms to the Kaiser when he was staying at Buckingham Palace as the guest of the late King several years ago. The dimension of each room were 12 inches by 8, and the furniture was modeled in proportion. All the chairs, tables, bureaus and other pieces of furniture were of antique design, and were carved in mahogany and satinwood. Many of the chairs in one of the reception rooms were of Louis XV. and XVI. periods, and were exquisitely reproduced in gilt.

The whole model took nearly three years to prepare. The Kaiser purchased it for $3,500.

Falling Leaves.

There is no doubt that climatic conditions influence the fall of leaves from trees. To determine the effects of varying rainfall a French meteorologist has made observations for a dozen years, chiefly on lime trees, which are fed from the deep soil, and has found that, with the usual winter reserve of moisture in the subsoil, foliage is independent of drought and heat. Cold is not so well withstood, premature frosts decidedly hastening leaf fall. Different plant species behave differently, and in one year, with plenty of soil moisture, the leaves of the lime trees fell unseasonably, two months before those of the plane trees and the fruit trees.

He Was Welcome.

Picking himself up after a rapid fight down the stairs, the young man broke forth: "Of course it is your privilege to throw me out of the house, Mr. Roughman," he said, "but there is no need to add insult to injury by having me land on a mat which has the word 'Welcome' woven in it." "There is nothing wrong in that," remarked the cause of his sudden descent; "you are welcome!" "But you threw me out!" —"on the outside of the house where the mat lies, sir!" concluded the man of the house, closing the door.—London Tit-Bits.

Conscience.

A man's first care should be to avoid the reproaches of his own heart; his next to escape the censures of the world. If the last interfere with the former it ought to be entirely neglected, but otherwise there cannot be a greater satisfaction to an honest mind than to see those approbations which it gives itself seconded by the applause of the public. A man is more sure of his conduct when the verdict which it passes upon his own behavior is thus warranted and confirmed by the opinion of all that know him.—Addison.

Benjamin Constant.

Benjamin Constant, having sided with Napoleon during the hundred days, felt the need of justifying himself when Louis XVIII. returned to power. He wrote the king a letter with that end in view and called upon Mme. Recamier to discuss the subject. She asked him quietly: "Have you finished your letter?" "Yes." "Are you satisfied with it?" "Entirely satisfied. I have almost persuaded myself."

Little Things.

Life is made up not of great sacrifices to duties, but little things, in which smiles and kindnesses and small obligations given habitually are what win and preserve the heart and secure comfort.—Sir H. Davy.

Misfortunes.

It's an old French saying that "misfortunes are in morals what bitters are in medicine. Each is at first disagreeable, but as the bitters act as corroborant to the stomach, so adversity chastens the disposition."

Assuring Your Business

A policy of advertising is a policy of life assurance, and the protection thus secured is well worth its annual cost.

Old customers die or move away—they must be replaced.

Old customers are subject to the influence of temptation—they may be induced to divide their custom—to do some of their shopping at a competitor's.

New comers to this community will shop with you—become regular customers—if they are invited to do so.

Your competitor's advertising is an influence which must be offset if you are to maintain your trade.

Not to advertise regularly to the readers of THE DURHAM CHRONICLE is to leave your business unprotected.

A WORD TO THE PUBLIC

It is no sign of weakness to follow the lead of advertising. You owe it to yourself to get the most for your money, the best goods and the best service. And if you find that your inclination is to shop where you are invited to shop rather than to continue to be a customer of the shop which never solicits your good-will, you need have no compunctions of conscience.

Shop Where You are Invited to Shop

Smooth Out the Ruts

HOW soon will your roads, that now take the heart and soul out of every man and horse that uses them, be made into a continuous stretch of road that you and everyone in your county will be proud of? How soon will you stop filling the ruts and mud holes with your road taxes, and build roads that will permit you to put your road taxes into more good roads?

Concrete Roads

cost no more to build than any other good road, and their upkeep expense is practically nothing, which makes them the cheapest kind of good roads.

Concrete roads benefit the farmer, consumer, merchant, newspaper, board of trade and railroad. They make for greater prosperity generally, by increasing land values and production; bringing more trade; more industries; more employment; greater traffic. They decrease the cost of marketing. All of these factors combine to decrease the cost of living.

Every citizen owes it to himself to investigate the advantages of concrete roads and learn how they will directly benefit him. This information is free for the asking. Write for it to-day to
