SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson XI.—Second Quarter, For June 14, 1914.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Luke xviii, 9-14; xix, 1-10—Memory Verses, 19, 10—Golden Text, Mark ii, 17—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Perhaps there are no people more difficult to deal with or to live with than those who, like the Pharisees, pride themselves upon their own righteousness, which in the sight of God is only as filthy rags (Isa. lix, 6) and can in no case entitle one to enter the kingdom (Matt. v, 20). The righteousness which is required by God must be absolutely perfect, an unbroken law, for "whosoever shall keep the whole law and yet offend in one point he is guilty of all" (Jas. ii, 10). The law is so holy and righteous that no sinful man can keep it, and it was never intended to give life, but to prove our guilt, shut our mouths and lead us to Christ, who is God's perfect righteousness and the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth.

There is no Saviour or salvation for a righteous man in the Bible—that is, for such as think themselves righteous—but only for sinners.

In connection with the murmuring of the Pharisees when our Lord called Matthew or Levi, the publican, and Levi made Him a feast in his own house, at which a great company of publicans and others were present, our Lord said: "They that are whole need not a physician, but they that are sick. I came not to call the righteous, but sinners, to repentance" (Luke v, 31, 32).

On another occasion He said to the chief priests and elders: "Verily I say unto you that the publicans and the harlots go into the kingdom of God before you" (Matt. xxi, 31). To this day there are churchgoers and church members who, "being ignorant of God's righteousness and going about to establish their own righteousness, have not submitted themselves unto the righteousness of God" (Rom. x, 3).

It is indeed a fearful thing to be satisfied with oneself and have no conviction of sin. In the first part of our lesson today the Pharisee did not pray to God, did not ask God for anything, did not seem to need anything, but prayed with himself and told God what a good man he was and how much good he did and how thankful he was that he was not a bad man nor even like that publican. Truly he was well satisfied with his righteousness. The publican had no goodness to prove his righteousness, nothing good to say of himself, but he did have a consciousness of his own sinfulness, and from his heart he said, "God be merciful to me, a sinner." In the margin of the revised version it is, "God be propitiated to me, the sinner." Weymouth has it, "O God, be reconciled to me, sinner that I am." The Lord Jesus Christ, who reads all hearts, the only Saviour of sinners, the only Judge of all men, said that the publican went to his home justified.

I like the definition of justification which I learned in Sunday school when I was a boy, and, if I remember correctly, it read thus: "Justification is an act of God's free grace, wherein He pardoneth all our sins and accepteth us as righteous in His sight only for the righteousness of Christ, imputed unto us and received by faith alone."

In the second part of our lesson we have a rich publican who had a desire to see Jesus, and, though he did not seem to have the same conviction of sin as the poor publican, he, too, was welcomed and saved. He was a prominent man, chief among the publicans. He was not prominent as to his physical appearance, for he was little of stature. He was not what one might call dignified, for he ran and climbed up into a tree. His thought evidently was to see without being seen. How surprised beyond measure he must have been to see Jesus look up and to hear Him call him by name and to hear Him say, "Make haste and come down, for today I must abide at thy house" (verse 5).

Was this something exceeding abundantly above all that Zaccheus had ever thought to come his way, or was it the Saviour's recognition of a desire which He had actually seen in the heart of this man? (Eph. iii, 20; Ezek. xi, 5; Ps. cxlv, 19.) I cannot tell, but I do know that the "handfuls of purpose" which the Lord drops for those who seek Him and for those who seek to serve Him are truly wonderful (Ruth ii, 15, 16).

We do not wonder that Zaccheus made haste and came down and received Him joyfully (verse 6). Any one but a Pharisee would if he only understood what it meant. According to John i, 12, Zaccheus thus became a child of God and according to I John ii, 12, had there and then the forgiveness of his sins—freely justified, as was the other publican. There is only one salvation and one way of salvation for rich or poor. It was foreshadowed in the atonement money of Israel, concerning which it was commanded, "The rich shall not give more and the poor shall not give less than half a shekel" (Ex. xxx, 11-15). That which Zaccheus said he did in verse 8 was part of the evidence that he had become a child of God, for, while no works of ours can obtain or help to obtain salvation, the good works must follow as a result (Eph. ii, 10; Tit. iii, 8). Weymouth translates: "Here and now I give . . . I pledge myself to repay to him four times the amount"

Waves and Their Uses.

Waves are used on the ocean and in hair. They come in crests, breaker and curling irons. They are also put up in ether when they cannot be seen and you have to take the dealer's word that you are getting your money's worth.

Warm waves are common to both summer and winter. In summer they come just when, owing to the delightful weather and a careful perusal of the Old Farmers' Almanac, you have made all your arrangements to stay home. In winter, when you have filled your furnace with two or three tons of coal and turned on all the drafts until you have a bed of coals that would take a blue ribbon in hades and nobody can put it out but the fire department.

Waves are also seen in Wall street. Little lambs can be seen occasionally sitting upon their crests until another wave comes along and knocks them over.

Amundsen's Training.

Captain Roald Amundsen, the Norwegian who put the south pole on the map, was born in Sarpsborg, Norway, July 16, 1872. His youth was spent in Christiania and on board sealers and whalers commanded by his father, Captain Jens Amundsen. He was twenty-five when he entered on his first south polar trip as the first officer of the Belgica expedition. This journey lasted two years and filled the young sailor with aspirations for further explorations in the frozen regions. His parents wanted him to become a physician, and he spent a year in a medical college. Later he went to Germany to study sciences that would aid him as an explorer. His first notable feat was to take a ship through the northwest passage, and on this trip he twice wintered in the ice.—New York World.

CORNE CONCERNS

When we see agent Archie McLellan selling hay loaders to the farmers it seems hopeful for the coming crop; and when we consider that he sold forty cultivators last spring to farmers in this part of the county, it looks as if the past year had also been a successful one.

Mrs. James McKeen, who has been under the doctor's care, we are pleased to report on the way to recovery.

A number of our citizens attended the wedding of Mr. Alex. Aitkins to Miss Bella Ferguson, daughter of Councillor Ferguson for this ward. We extend congratulations.

Miss McKechnie, of Rocky Saugeen, visited her friend, Miss Wilson, last week.

License Inspector Allan was laid up for a few days last week with sickness. We hope he will soon be recovered.

We are pleased to report Mr. James Allan as improving nicely at present and enjoying a visit from his son James, of Winnipeg, who left this part about eighteen years ago and has not been home since.

Our mail carrier, Mr. Alf. McCabe, since parcel post started reminds one of Santa Claus, at least some days when his rig is literally covered with parcels. It is not as much as was anticipated by some at the beginning of rural free delivery, as it was thought that mail matter carried around and distributed by the road side would be either lost or misplaced, but now everything in the way of mail matter, and by the way, mails have increased very much, is done by rural delivery. Our courier is well on to his job and everybody has confidence in him doing the right thing. Although offered pay by patrons for parcels delivered he refuses anything until he knows who is to settle the bill, the people of the Department. Although many a thought and effort has been put forth of how to keep boys and girls on the farm and how to encourage the young to read, rural delivery has done much more than all other efforts put together. When the question was put to those who went to towns and cities why they preferred them to the country the answer was, "Well, we know something of what is going on around us now which we did not have a chance to know when shut up in the country."

The Chronicle says that some good Reformers suggest that Dr. Jami son be returned this time by acclamation and that he donate $100 to each of the Durham churches as a consequence. The idea is along right lines, although the giving part would be hard to regulate as every church in the riding would want something. But we are always willing to lend a helping hand to those who want to do right, and as much time might be saved by an election by acclamation we would suggest that every voter figure up the worth of the saving and contribute it to church purposes and then the doctor to supplement it with what he thought right, and that would give the Grits a chance to help good government and a good cause at one time and would help to make up for some of the past.

Mr. Thos. B. Tucker lost a valuable mare last week through a severe case of the prevailing influenza.

We noticed by last week's issue of The Chronicle that Bentinck council was of the same opinion about removal of stones from the road and that pathmasters and other road makers remove them. Egremont should do likewise. There seems to be great indignation by our people about stones and rubbish being placed by the road side and also the place by the river being made a dumping ground for Holstein debris. Several have told us that we were too mild in our remarks about it last week, but it was a compliment to Egremonters that a gentle hint is efficient.

Last week's Chronicle contained an account of a hen in California helping a cat to raise a bunch of kittens. Some time ago we witnessed a similar event at home and thought it so unique that we intended to report it, but before writing our budget we saw an account of a similar occurrence in the State of Iowa so concluded it was not an event unknown and decided to wait for a report from other hens, but as none can compare with our own we give it. A stray cat had a bunch of kittens in a horse manger and a hen took them and covered them well with her wings, the cat sitting about 18 inches away looking half pleased and half scared while the hen was real cross if any one offered to interfere with her brood. We watched to see if she would either smother or starve them, but soon found out she gave them over periodically for refreshments, and as eggs were worth 20 cents per dozen we concluded a hen could employ her time better than help a tramp cat raise kittens, so we took a pail of water out to the barn and dropped the young brood in, but when we returned in a few hours we found the cat had taken them out and the hen had nursed them back to life again, or at least three out of the four was under her well and hearty and that is where our hen outshines all the rest, as she proved herself a skillful nurse fit for hospital work, while the other hens so far reported have done nothing one might speak of more than try to claim something that did not belong to them.
