ONE OUNCE OF GENUINE TEMPERANCE REFORM IS WORTH A POUND OF CATCH-CRY

Whitney's service for Temperance reform has covered nine years of progressive ACTION.

Under Whitney's rule, 1904-14, liquor licenses were reduced from 2,814 to 1,600. Decrease 1,214.

Whitney found an unworkable Local Option law and made it workable. Local Option has made four-fifths of Ontario dry. And it is safely and surely taking care of the other fifth.

Whitney gave Temperance a valuable weapon in the Canada Temperance Act which he made applicable to Ontario's needs. Whitney doubled the tax burdens on the liquor trade in nine years—$620,123 to $1,240,945.

In 1906, 96 municipalities enjoyed Local Option. In 1913 no less than 347 were under Local Option rule. This progress was made possible by excellent enforcement of the liquor license laws.

"The Pioneer" (organ of Dominion Alliance) said in 1910: "The liquor laws are carried out in a manner that reflects credit on the Government in general."

Mr. Jos. Gibson, Pres. Ontario Alliance: "You did your duty. You said at the start that you would make the license holders keep hotel and you did." General Booth, on Ontario's management of the liquor traffic: "In this respect Ontario leads the world."

WHITNEY'S HOLD IS UNBREAKABLE

Temperance Conservatives Decline Rowell's Cunning Invitation

PARTY LINES ARE SOLID

Canvasses by Liberals Demolish Rowell's Anticipations—Hopes of a "Landslide" Vanished

Every indication that can be conveyed to Conservative headquarters in Toronto by letter, wire or personal visit, proves conclusively that Temperance Conservatives are standing solidly for Whitney at the approaching election.

Defections have been so remarkably few that the Toronto "Star" which kept account of all Conservatives turning to Rowell, could only muster half a column in two weeks and then were forced to withdraw several owing to telegraphic protests from the parties mentioned.

Canvasses made by Liberal workers appealing to the Temperance convictions of Conservative voters have met with such dismal failure that the first calculations of the Rowell party have been entirely upset. Reports made to Liberal headquarters in the various ridings and at Toronto show that Rowell's political device to stampede Conservative temperance workers to his fold—have caused only indignant repudiation and sent scores of supporters into the open field to campaign for the Whitney cause.

Whitney's Great Temperance Work

Sir James Whitney has been in office nine years. During that time he has kept pace absolutely with the wishes of the majority of the people in curbing the evils of the liquor traffic. So exemplary has been the enforcement of existing laws, so impartial and exacting has been the control of license holders as to win General Booth's compliment: "In this respect Ontario leads the world."

Whitney fought the discreditable regime of the Ross Government, a regime for which N. W. Rowell battled with all his might. Whitney found a broken-down Local Option Law. He changed it, improved it, and set it to work. That law has cut the liquor licenses down from 2,814 when Rowell's party was forced from the Government benches, to 1,600, a reduction of 1,214.

Whitney added a powerful Temperance weapon when he made the Canada Temperance Act, a Dominion measure, applicable to Ontario and which carries on a majority vote, without the three-fifths requirement. Only recently that Act banished the bar from Huron and Peel counties.

Whitney took the Ross Government's record of $620,123 of tax burdens on the liquor trade and he increased it by 100 per cent. He selected sterling officers to enforce the liquor laws and spent $20,000 a year to bind the laws on all holders of licenses, for such a purpose Rowell's friends spent $4,188 in fifteen years.

Four-fifths of Ontario Dry

Rowell's service for Temperance Reform has covered thirty years of political indifference or hostility and one year of catch-cry.

Rowell's party twice promised prohibition and then threw the Temperance cause overboard. Rowell stuck fast to that party. He sticks to it to-day. And he has revived their plausible devices to put himself in power. No one has yet given a proof that Rowell is less insincere to-day than in 1902.

Rowell refuses to sacrifice the liquor shops. Whitney's Local Option Canada Temperance Acts sweep away bars, clubs and shops, the moment the people demand it.

Rowell lacked courage to feature "Abolish the Bar" in his 1911 campaign. He laid it aside until he had experimented with other issues. Hopelessly beaten 83 to 18, he picked up the only remaining chance of winning office. Temperance is his political toy. Temperance is Whitney's pledge and achievement. Rowell juggles. Whitney gives Reform an actual meaning.

An over-night passion to "throttle" a branch of the liquor traffic has little weight beside nine years of genuine and permanent accomplishment.

Local Option. In 1913 no less than 347 were under the Local Option Law. That law is a Whitney law in so far as its workability is concerned. Four-fifths of Ontario now stands "dry" after nine years of genuine Temperance Reform. The balance of the traffic is disappearing year by year as fast as the people decide.

Sir James Whitney has refused again and again to take the deciding voice on bar abolition away from the people immediately concerned. And when they do decide, his laws sweep away at a single stroke, the open bar, the club license, and the shop. Mr. Rowell proposes to disregard the majority sentiment of each community regarding liquor licenses, and administer a semi-prohibition law with an army of officials and private detectives manipulated from Queen's Park, Toronto.

WHAT IS THE BILINGUAL ISSUE?

Whitney Declares English Dominant, Rowell Says "Maybe, But,----"

OPEN BID FOR FRENCH VOTE

Rowell, His Supporters, and Law Partner Assure French-Canadians Language Claims Will be Met

What is the Bilingual Issue?

The Whitney Government has declared through Regulation Seventeen that no French-Canadian child shall be taught more French than is necessary to carry it until it receives a thorough education in the language of the country—which is English.

That regulation has stirred up much bitter hostility to the Whitney Government and brought down on Sir James' head the threats of French-Canadian extremists.

Accepting those threats as a political advantage to himself N. W. Rowell, the Liberal leader, framed an "announcement" on the bilingual issue which balances gingerly between any possible offence to either English or French citizens.

Mr. Rowell at New Liskeard, in Nipissing, Glengarry, Russell, Prescott and Essex deliberately told the French-Canadian audiences that he would endeavor to have English taught, but that at all costs the French-Canadian right to his own mother tongue must be "retained."

On the day following one of these speeches, the Toronto "Globe" came out frankly and admitted that Regulation Seventeen, which upholds English as the dominant language would not bind Rowell should he be returned to power.

Mr. Wilkie, Mr. Rowell's law partner, told the French-Canadians of North Ontario that Rowell would settle the bilingual question as Sir Wilfrid Laurier settled the school question.

Only the votes of the people of Ontario stand between Mr. Rowell and the accomplishment of his scheme

On Sunday evening, June 14th, a sermon on "The Dominion Alliance" was delivered in the Orange Hall, near Greenside, but which we are sorry to say proved to be an entirely political speech, using temperance and church as a cloak. Temperance in itself is a good cause, but when it allies itself to politics it is liable to overstep its lines and spoil some of the moral and good effects it otherwise might produce. We think the discussion of temperance and politics when combined should be limited to six days in the week. Surely that ought to be sufficient, but probably the reverend gentleman believes in the saying, "Six days shalt thou labor and the seventh do odd jobs." We feel justified in saying that the reverend gentleman departed with very little credit and thanks either for himself, the church, or the parties who sent him.

Coincidence is that the Sunday preceding the address on "The Dominion Alliance" a gentleman, Ben Watters by name, preached a sermon strictly from scripture and without a single
