

A TRIP AROUND THE WORLD

From Milan they passed through Lugano, in Switzerland, near the Italian border, thence through St. Gothard tunnel and on to Lucerne. It was here Mr Bolger first saw and felt what snow was like, and to him it was quite a revelation.

At Weish-baden, in Germany, he purchased an automobile, for which he paid $3,500. This he shipped to London, and afterwards used it in touring southern England and a considerable portion of Ireland. They next went down the Rhine to Cologne, and from Cologne to Berlin, where they saw the Kaiser's troops being reviewed, but they didn't see the Kaiser himself. Berlin has a population of three and one-half millions, and is pronounced a very fine city, the best he has seen, barring none, says Mr. Bolger. Everything seemed prosperous, no poverty, and no slums being seen anywhere.

Amsterdam, in Holland, formed quite a contrast, being low and, in consequence, being very dirty. From here, they visited The Hague, Antwerp, Brussels, the plains of Waterloo, Ostend and Dover.

Then they went to London where they first spent two weeks. From London, they went to Hammerfest, in Norway, and the most northerly town in the world, being in 70 degrees, 40 minutes north latitude, and well within the Arctic Circle. It is a fishing centre, with a population of 2,000. A two-day's sail farther north brought them to North Cape, north of Norway, where they spent one day. It was then in June, or early in July, and during five days from leaving Hammerfest, till they returned, the sun never sank below the horizon.

We must hurry on. From Hammerfest, they sailed to Newcastle-on-Tyne, then to Edinburgh through the Trossachs, on to Glasgow, then to Obin, a watering place on the west coast of Scotland, and again to London, next to Paris by way of Dover and Calais.

From Paris, they returned again to London, toured the south of England and part of Wales in an auto, crossed from Holyhead to Dublin, continued the auto tour through the south of Ireland and spent five days at Killarney, after which they went back to Dublin, crossed to Liverpool and then motored through Birmingham to London, where they shipped the car to Australia, and after some difficulty, secured passage on the Allan liner Virginian to Montreal. Toronto and Durham were mere incidents in the trip, and now Mr. and Miss Bolger have reached the climax of their sight-seeing and are spending a couple of weeks at the home of their uncle, Harry Williams, at Edge Hill.

When they leave here they will go to New York, Chicago, Winnipeg, Vancouver, and home by way of Honolulu, Fiji, Auckland, and home at Sydney, where they expect to land on the 19th day of December.

The young man who has now got half way round in his circumnavigation of the globe, is not yet 21 years of age, and his experience in sight-seeing is a liberal education in itself and will never fade from his memory. He is a son of James Bolger of Australia, who visited these parts some six or seven years ago and made many friends and acquaintances. His mother is Miss Nellie Williams, a daughter of the late Christopher Williams of Edge Hill.

THE WAR

good cause beyond a gratification of a desire for conquest on the part of the German war god. The German fleet is still safe in port but the floating mines are a menace to the British fleet as well as to the commercial world.

Three British cruisers were sunk by German submarines, with a loss of 1,500 lives. Of the attacking flotilla of five units, two are reported to have been sunk by the British gunners. A bold effort is likely to be made to force a battle with the German fleet. From the bottled up situation of the German fleet they have an advantage over their opponent, and the British Admiralty is justly cautious in keeping out of danger.

The Kiel Canal connects the southern Baltic with the North Sea, and if the British fleet divide up their strength and half go by way of the Cattagat and Skager Rack, it is possible the whole strength of the German fleet might cause their annihilation, and in turn attack the other half with an equal measure of success. The cushion chair war critics are finding fault with the British Admiralty for their apparent inaction, but if the truth be known they may be doing more good than all the land forces. By continuing their present system they will, in time, starve the enemy, and prove a mighty factor in their ultimate defeat. Though liable to meet with occasional losses, the methods they have adopted are more humane less destructive of life and property, and in the end will prove equally effective.

The Russian forces from the east are a source of anxiety to the Germans. At the present they are apparently taking a rest but reinforcements are on the way and these in a very short time will receive additional reinforcement from the overwhelming armies of Russia's vast population. Austria seems to be pretty well exhausted and Italy in a very short time is almost certain to enter the conflict against the Germans, who, in the face of such odds, are sure to be defeated.

THE KAISER AND GOD.

By Barry Pain.

"I rejoice with you in Wilhelm's first victory. How magnificently God supported him!"—Telegram from the Kaiser to the Crown Princess.

Led by Wilhelm, as you tell, God has done extremely well; You with patronizing nod Show that you approve of God. Kaiser, face a question new— This—does God approve of you?

Broken pledges, treaties torn, Your first page of war add; We on fouler things must look Where you did in time of war. All that you in peace forswore, Where you, barbarously wise, Bade your soldiers terrorize. Where you made—the deed was fine—

Women screen your firing line, Villages burned down to dust, Torture, murder, bestial lust, Filth too foul for printer's ink, Crimes from which the apes would shrink—

Strange the offerings that you press On the God of Righteousness! Kaiser, when you'd decorate Sons or friends who serve your State,

Not that Iron Cross bestow But a Cross of Wood, and so— So remind the world that you Have made Calvary anew.

Kaiser, when you'd kneel in prayer Look upon your hands, and there Let that deep and awful stain From the blood of children slain Burn your very soul with shame. Till you dare not breathe that Name

That now you glibly advertise— God as one of your allies. Impious braggart, you forget: God is not your conscript yet: You shall learn in dumb amazement That His ways are not your ways. That the mire through which you trod Is not the high white road of God.

To Whom, whichever way the combat rolls, We, fighting to the end, commend our souls. —London Times.

WEALTH OF HAIR.

Parisian Sage Makes Thin Lifeless Hair Soft and Abundant.

Beautiful hair, thick, soft, fluffy, lustrous, and free from dandruff, is one of woman's greatest charms. Yet so many have streaked, thin and lifeless hair and think there is no remedy. Pretty hair is largely a matter of care.

Frequent applications of Parisian Sage well rubbed into the scalp is all that is needed—it acts like magic. Try it to-night—you will really be surprised with the result. Not only will the hair become soft, fluffy, radiant with life and really doubly beautiful, but all dandruff disappears, falling hair and itchy scalp cease—your head feels fine.

All druggists sell a large bottle of Parisian Sage for fifty cents. Get it from Macfarlane & Co., they will refund the money if you are not satisfied.

When the War is Over WHEN the War is over what motor car or piano, for example, will stand highest in public favor? What cereal? What Range or Furnace? What brand of soap, paint, stock food, and so on? The answer is: The make or brand that has kept itself constantly in the public eye DURING THE WAR—by means of advertisements in the public press. Selling courage expresses itself in publicity. The withdrawal or suspension of advertising is a form of economy with a "back kick" in it. Veterans and Heroes are the men who fight and keep on fighting.
