GERMAN-AMERICAN SPEAKS

Mr. Otto Stuntz, of Wilkesbarre, Pennsylvania, writing to The New York Evening Post, says: "Being of German parentage, I sympathize with the Germans in the great struggle now in progress in Europe. But why so many Germans in America so rabidly espouse the German cause when it represents all that most Germans left Germany to escape from is more than I can see."

"Moreover, as a consistent member of the German Reformed Church, it seems to me but a shade better than sacrilege for the Kaiser to continually refer to God as being with him in this crusade of murder and pillage. If the Kaiser is not responsible for this war, he certainly did nothing to prevent it. One can hardly believe that the venerable Franz Josef would have attacked Serbia without the sanction of the German Emperor. To me it seems as absurd to call upon God, the Prince of Peace, for aid in an avoidable war as it would be for a bank burglar to pray to the Lord for power to murder the night watchman, blow open the safe, and make good his escape."

INCREASE GRAIN PRODUCTION.

Many farmers, when urged to try growing fall wheat, have excused themselves on the plea that it did not pay; but it is likely for the next year or two there will be ready sale at good prices for every bushel of wheat grown in Canada. Every farmer should endeavor to increase his production of grain next year by putting into use every acre capable of producing it. There are hundreds of acres in central and eastern Canada that would successfully grow fall wheat. By preparing the land immediately a great number of farmers could sow at least a few acres each this fall. No risk is being taken in so doing, as the extra cultivation for the fall wheat would increase the yield of a spring sown crop in the event of the wheat being winter-killed. The land would need only to be disked or cultivated to prepare it for spring grain.

The grain production can also be increased by ploughing up the old unproductive meadows at once and sowing to grain in the spring. They should be ploughed shallow NOW and packed and disked and kept worked until autumn, when they should be thoroughly ploughed again, ready to be worked early next spring. The importance of ploughing the land for next spring's crop early in the summer and keeping it worked during the autumn cannot be too strongly emphasized. Those who are not practising a systematic rotation might profitably increase the grain crop area next year, and to those who are following the old meadow plan of farming, a better opportunity was never offered to change to a systematic rotation by breaking up the old sod and putting in grain. It will pay to make use of every acre possible in producing grain, as it is sure to be needed.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

Clean tarnished silver with a piece of common raw potato dipped in baking soda. Tin and iron should not be cleaned when hot, as they rust. They should be well dried. Linoleum which has been rolled and put away can be prevented from cracking by placing it for a few minutes in front of a fire before it is unrolled.

When ironing, have a number of coat hangers upon which to put waists, children's dresses, etc. Before cleaning knives on a knife board dampen them slightly. They clean more quickly and gain a better polish.

It is a good plan to pepper a carpet thickly just where any heavy piece of furniture has to rest on it. This helps to keep the mats and other insects away. Never throw away cake, no matter how dry—but the next time you take a custard slice it on top before putting into the oven. This makes a delicious caramel crust. Before darning stockings, hold the card or skein of wool over the spout of a kettle full of boiling water. The steam shrinks the wool, and when the stockings are again washed the mended portions will not shrink and tear the other parts.

ENGLAND'S INDIAN TROOPS

"A wonderful wave of enthusiasm and loyalty is passing over India," said the Marquis of Crewe a month ago in announcing to the British House of Lords the proposed employment of native Indian troops in the war in Europe. Truly a remarkable commentary upon the constant reports of widespread disaffection to British rule in that vast empire, upon the threatened "holy war" of the Mahomedans, upon the implacable plotting of the Bengali, upon the never-ending disorder on the north-western frontier. The princes of India in a few hours subscribe $2,500,000 for the use of troops in a war at the other end of the world; the Viceroy of India reports to the home government that serious dissatisfaction will arise unless the native troops are permitted to give their lives for the empire and for the far-off Emperor who was crowned in the halls of the mighty Moguls.

But so it is and so it has been. In the piping times of peace, poor old England is "doomed"; in every part of her far-flung dominions the favorite pastime of her varicolored subjects is twisting the tail of the old moth-eaten, doddering lion. But when danger threatens when the clarion call of England's war resounds to the farthest bounds of the empire, how different the note! From China to Peru they troop to the threatened colors, white, black, yellow and brown. India is stirred to the depths; Ireland closes ranks, and the word is "clear the way."

So now from "disaffected," "rebellious" India they come in troops "the kindly dark faces who fought with us, faithful and few," loyal and brave, and "first-class fighting men." Tennyson had in mind the famous little Ghoorkas, five feet nothing, the fierce little laughter warriors who prepare for battle with "a happy sigh of contentment," but the troops now come to the aid of their own Kaiser-i-hind are of a thousand tribes of scores of races and sub-races, of complexion varying from a lighter olive than that of the Spaniard, to almost black, of many shapes and sizes.

Besides the Ghoorkas, the best known of India's warriors are the Sikhs, the Lions of the Punjab, bravest of the brave. They are really not a race at all, but a religious sect which comprises many different tribes. The practices of their creed have, however, rendered them practically a distinct race even to uniformity of stature and appearance. Tall and splendidly proportioned, with black flowing beard, and unusually large turban, the Sikh looks what he is, the finest warrior in India. Almost as well known is the handsome Dogra of Cashmere, the gentleman of India. Rajput and "descendant of kings." And the wild and turbulent Pathans of the northwestern border, formerly among the fiercest of England's foes, have but one complaint to make of their Emperor—that he doesn't give them enough fighting.

And so it is with the remainder of the heterogeneous warriors whose swords leap in their scabbards with joy that they are to share in the defense of an empire which has become inalienably their own since the coronation at Delhi. The warriors beyond the Indus have never fought in Europe. They are now not only to fight to their heart's desire but they are to fight the great powers of Europe in defense of their Emperor. Their peerage is acknowledged. Nearly all are well-bred and their officers are among the most courteous in the world. They are proud of the privilege granted them to show their mettle on the widest, sternest field in the world.

Not lightly does England treat her "Indian brothers"—"high-souled men" was the tribute to their worth by the Marquis of Crewe in the House of Lords. Nor does she fear for her honor while it is in their keeping. This war has shattered many a preconception; it will but shatter more if it but give these splendid and honorable soldiers their due in the eyes of the world.

HAMPDEN

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Turnbull of Vickers, visited at the home of Mrs. Henderson, Sr., last Sunday, and attended the Hampden church. Mrs. Will Little attended the funeral of her brother's wife last week. We are sure Mrs. Little has the sympathy of the congregation at this sad death. We understand he was only married a year this month.

A great many from around here took in the Holstein Fair and seem to have enjoyed the show very much.

The W. M. Society are preparing a very interesting missionary social. We hardly know when it will be, but expect it in October. We must congratulate the children, and also some of the young people in our congregation on the way they are repeating scripture passages, and also the older ones repeating catechism.

While he and a few other young men were cutting corn, Mr. Wilfred Anderson got his finger badly cut. We understand it was done accidentally by another young lad, who was swinging his sickle.

We hear that a number of others around and near our church are intending to instal the telephone this fall.
