THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, I Sam. xvi, 4-13. Memory Verses, 12, 13-Golden Text, I Sam. xvi, 7-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

It is certainly restful to be in the hands of Him who worketh all things after the counsel of His own will (Eph. i, 11) and who says, "I will work, and who shall let it" (hinder, or turn back) (Isa. xliii, 13), provided we have no will of our own in the matter. Even Samuel seems not to have been fully one with the Lord concerning Saul, for he continued to mourn for him after the Lord had rejected him, so that the Lord had to say to him, "How long wilt thou mourn for Saul, seeing I have rejected him from reigning over Israel?" When we can say, "Even so, Father," "Just and true are thy ways," because we are certain that "As for God, His way is perfect" (Matt. xi, 26; Rev. xv, 3; Ps. viii, 30), we have entered upon a restful life. Then its continuance depends upon our living in the perfect will of God moment by moment. Note the messages to Samuel in verses 1-3: "I will send thee to Jesse. I have provided me a king. will show thee what thou shalt do. the legal man, with sufficient em-Anoint unto Me him whom I name unto thee." This left nothing for Samuel but simple obedience to Him who was managing.

But Samuel had an objection, "If Saul hear it he will kill me." The Lord quieted him, and matters proceeded, and Samuel did that which the Lord spake and came to Bethlehem to meet Jesse and his sons (verses 4, 5). The elders of the town seemed to regard Samuel almost as God Himself or they must have had very guilty consciences, for they trembled at his coming until assured that he came peaceably. Those who are walking with God need have no fear of a visit from a man of God nor of the coming of the Lord Himself, for it is possible so to abide that we shall not be ashamed before Him at His coming (I John ii, 28). Having called Jesse and his sons, Samuel thought that he saw in Eliab a fit successor to Saul, but the Lord told him not to look on his outward appearance (verses 6, 7). When we consider Eliab's contemptuous and uncalled for treatment of David a little later (xvii. 28) we do not wonder that the Lord refused him, for He knew what was in man (John ii, 25). Seven of Jesse's sons passed before Samuel, all who had come to meet him, but the Lord's choice was not among them, so that Samuel had to ask, "Are here all thy children?" Then he learned that the youngest had been left at home to keep the sheep, and Samuel said, "Send and fetch him, for we will not sit down till he come hither" (verses 8-11).

I am interested to know how David felt that day when left at home and all the other brothers went to meet Samuel, for, knowing what we do of David, we can easily imagine that he the Order was planted in England at would be more desirous to meet Samuel than any of his brothers would, even though there might be nothing especially for him in it. Some day in the kingdom we may talk with him about that particular day. I never read or write this story or think about it that I do not rejoice to see the Lord's way in it. The young man left their fate, to be restored again when at home because he was seemingly of Philip and Mary came to the throne. no account on this great occasion, and then all the older brothers set aside and compelled to wait till he came, and then to see Samuel take the horn of oil and anoint him in the midst of his brethren.

I think I can hear Eliab say to some of his brothers as they went homeward, "The old prophet must be in his dotage." There is nothing to it, for tarian movements of the age. they did not hear the Lord say to Samuel, "Arise, anoint him, for this is he" (verses 12, 13). The comfort I get from it is that the Lord looketh on the heart, not on the outward appearance, and when he wants you for any work He will find you and get you there in spite of all obstacles. It is ours to keep quietly on minding our sheep, like David or Moses; thrashing our wheat, like Gideon; plowing, like Elisha; doing housework, like Mary of Nazareth; mending nets, like Peter and John, or whatever else is our regular occupation. The Spirit of the Lord came upon David, but departed from Saul because of Saul's failure to obey (13, 14). God allows us to choose, and if we choose the evil and not the good we have no one to blame but ourselves. By the advice of Saul's servants he sought some one to quiet him when the evil spirit was upon him, and they recommended David, the son of Jesse, as a cunning player on the harp, a valiant man of war, a prudent man, a comely man, and they also said that the Lord was with him (verses 15-23). Being sent for, Saul loved him greatly and made him his armor bearer. How strange it all seems! God moves in a mysterious way. What a wonderful chapter! How can we refrain from saying, "Lord, take control of me and all my affairs and work out in and through me all thy good pleasure." It would seem that Jesse was an old man at this time, and his family consisted of eight sons and two daughters (xvii. 12; I Chron. ii, 16), but David's mother's name is not given. The whole story is an illustration of ber from Haldimand ever to sit in the truth of Eph. ii, 10, that God has the House. In days gone by a Conthe life and service of His redeemed servative had been elected, but grim John Joynt has been elected all planned beforehand and will work | death gathered him in before he had

SHE GOT IT BACK.

One Way to Deal With the "Wildcat' Real Estate Man.

A story which is being told with great relish by investors in Ontario will interest those who have put money into a realty deal which, to say the least, is not as profitable as represented. It shows what can be accomplished by a determined champion, who has the law at his finger ends, and who is righteously indignant into the bargain.

The lawyer in question is guardian to a young woman in Ontario, who has the support of a blind brother on her hands. He acts as guardian on the request made by the young woman's father, who has been dead for some years. She was inveigled into handing over the sum of $2,500 cash for so-called town lots somewhere in the region of a Canadian city. Certain circumstances in the deal aroused her apprehension, and she finally went to the lawyer and explained the whole matter to him.

The legal man promptly went to the telephone, called up one of the partners who had put through the deal, and spoke to him in this wise: "You procured Miss So-and-So to buy lots in a certain subdivision, for which she paid you the sum of $2,500. This is Thomas Caveat speaking. am her lawyer, and her guardian. I want you to come up here to my office

"I don't want you to speak to me that way over the telephone. I have no intention of coming to your office," said the other.

"I haven't got the money," replied the uncomfortable party of the second

"I'll give you thirty days to get it, and at the end of that time if the money is not in my hands I will get out a warrant for the arrest of you and your partner on the charge of conspiracy to defraud," declared the guardian.

The real estater made haste to get the money, and the amount of $2,500 is now safely invested to the credit of the young woman. - Saturday has its corps of St. John Ambulance men for service in the military and naval hospitals.

This is an ancient Order, which owes its origin to the year 1050, when a few wealthy merchants obtained sanction to found a hospital within the walls of Jerusalem, the object being to succour the poor sick pilgrims who made their pilgrimage to the For this term of reproach the lady was Holy City. Something like a century ago Prussia rose against Napoleon, who was already weakened by the retreat from Moscow, and with the help of the Austrians and also of a very large body of Russians managed to drive the French army over the frontier, after defeating it in the tremendous two day struggle at Leipzig.

It appears that certain women played a prominent part in this fighting. Seventeen daughters of Prussia were at the front during this momentous conflict. They were most capable as soldiers, able to command and able to obey, as well as being capable of withstanding the hardships of campaigning. To cite some instances, Maria Werder, a woman of Silesia, was allowed to serve as a bussar in the same regiment as her husband, who was a wealthy landowner.

Elenora Prochaska is one of the better known of these heroines. She engaged, under the name of "Carl Renz," in the Light Horse when only eighteen, and several poets have sung of her courage. A monument to her memory stands in Potsdam.-Washington Star.

Some National Flowers.

Every one knows of the rose, shamrock and thistle as the floral emblems of England, Ireland and Scotland and the leek, though not a flower, for Wales. The sugar maple leaf is the emblem of Canada. Other nations and cities have all their floral emblems, and the lily seems to be the favorite. "You'll either come or I'll send a Italy has chosen the lily and also the policeman for you with a warrant, city of Florence, known affectionately as "Giglio," which means lily, and the city itself is spoken of as "the Flower of Cities and the City of Flowers." France, of course, has the lily in the fleur-de-lis. Germany's is the cornflower, while Prussia's choice is the finden tree, and the most famous thoroughfare in Berlin is known as the Unter den Linden. Spain's emblem is "You have taken advantage of the 'the pomegranate, and its wonderful city of Granada is named after that fruit. Egypt, with the glories of the Nile, appropriately chooses the lotus. Athens has the violet, while Saxony has the sweet scented mignonette.-Pearson's Weekly.

Court Humor.

A legal journal gives the following instances of humor in German courts: In Berlin an tronworker was sent to prison because he had laughed at a policeman. It appears that as this man was proceeding along a street one day his risibilities were aroused by the sight of a particularly stout policeman giving chase to a dog. The offender was promptly haled to court and "sent up" for scandal.
