THE RED CROSS COLUMN

There are in Canada to-day many absent sons whose fathers and mothers look anxiously for their return. They are fighting for Canada and the Empire and some of them have already fallen on the field of honor.

Wonderfully are the people of Canada responding to the call for service. Even the little children are doing their duty and old people who are long past the allotted span of life are working with a magnificent spirit of love and self-sacrifice for the cause of humanity.

In no spirit of self-congratulation, but gravely, as those who have performed a duty lying to their hands, the people of Canada may take stock of the work which they have been the means of accomplishing.

With the main objects and purposes of the society the nation is sufficiently familiar. The nation knows also that motor ambulances have been provided for the transport of the wounded from battlefield to base hospital and have been kept in sufficient running order through these difficult winter days.

But these benefits represent, after all, only the material and positive side of what has become one of the greatest works of mercy in the world. To measure the Red Cross Society justly it is necessary to put lists of material things out of mind and to reckon, not in terms of goods supplied, but in terms of pain and suffering obviated and alleviated.

The medical correspondent of the London Times said recently: "I have followed the work of our sick and wounded since the outbreak of the war. I have seen the work of the society develop from what were rough and ready beginnings to its present perfection of organization. Day by day the lot of the wounded man has been rendered more and more easy, detail after detail of his personal comfort has been considered and provided for, and finally, to comfort luxury—in a medical sense has been added."

To listen to the expressions of gratitude—expressions which put even lavish generosity to shame—is to feel that no sacrifice can be too great when our soldiers are thus restored to health. The restoration of a single one of our heroes to health would be reward enough for almost any self-denial. But this work measures its results not in units but in thousands. Save for this great work hundreds of lives which have been saved would have been lost and a whole world of suffering added to the grim total of the war.

If there is anyone in Canada who is not bearing some share of the burden of a world-wide war in which the very life and fabric of our empire and dominion are at stake, he is not worthy of the name he bears or of the country of which he is a citizen. There must be few in Canada who are not doing something, but there are some who could do more. The cries of wounded and suffering men cry out to us in the darkness and call upon us for help. Can we turn a deaf ear to them in their hour of victory and death? We must deny ourselves everything if necessary, in order that our country may be victorious. All of us cannot fight, all cannot bear the actual brunt of war, but all can do something, however little it may be, for the cause of mercy and humanity.

The Red Cross Society appeals to every Canadian, rich or poor, young or old to assist in this great work. All donations, medical supplies, comforts for the sick and wounded soldiers, tobacco and all kinds of luxuries, should be sent to the provincial headquarters in the different provinces or to the head office at 77 King Street, East, Toronto. Wherever possible, supplies should be sent to the provincial offices.

TRAVERTON.

Never a "run" has the sap made this season. About once a week it oozes a few drops and then grows tired.

Mr. Vincent Morrison of Berlin Collegiate Institute, and Miss Lizzie, of Owen Sound, spent the Easter holidays at the old home on the 8th concession.

Having returned from McGee, Sask., to Ontario, some time ago, Miss Myrtle Hunt is spending a fortnight with kindred in the old neighborhood, before leaving for Oxford, Mich., where a good position awaits her.

Miss Benn of Arthur, who has taught in Sep. S.S. No. 5 since the new year, resigned her position before Easter, to accept a more lucrative one down country.

Mr. Wm. Taylor sold eight nice butcher cattle to Jas. G. Wainwright last week. They netted a nice little pile of money, yet there wasn't a pile of profit in feeding them.

We notice that Frank McAssey has erected a shingle mill and has a big pile of sniggle timber on hand.

The ratepayers of the township will be pleased to learn that the council has made a settlement with Mr. J. C. Ross of the burg and thus avoided the heavy costs of a surrogate court lawsuit.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. McNally have been seriously ill of late. The latter has recovered her former vigor but the former is far from being well.

The monthly meeting of the Zion branch of the Women's Institute had a specially successful meeting at the home of Mrs. M. J. Davis on Thursday last. Twenty-four members were present and made a fine job of quilting the autograph quilt, which has about 350 names on it. That means $35 and when their concert comes on there is no telling what price some lover will pay for that quilt.

Last week Mr. J. McNally sold "Teddy," his hardy driver, to Mr. Noble of town, and Mr. J. Levine coaxed us with a big wad of bills to part with "Frank," our high-spirited gray. That little gray had more vim and "git" about him than all the cold-blooded Clydes that ever were bred.

Mr. H. Metcalfe drove his winson's daughter Phoebe out to see her auntie, Mrs. J. J. Peart, the beginning of last week. He returned the following day, while she remained the rest of the week. We were pleased to have him give us a call on his way back as few men in his township are better posted on current matters than he.

Mr. John Cliffe and family of Durham spent the week-end at the Darcy homestead.

United in life for over 57 years, they were not long separated by death. Mr. Wm. Anderson passed away on March 23, and after an illness of less than a week. Mrs. Anderson passed away on Sunday morning from an attack of pneumonia. Mrs. Anderson was truly a pioneer mother, and besides mothering a family of twelve of her own, has through life been most solicitous for the welfare of those around her.

Endured with strong physical and mental powers, she has reared a large family, who to-day are making life a success. For many years she has been a member of Zion Methodist church and always ready to give a helping hand in time of need. Owing to two of the sons coming from Montana, the funeral is delayed until Thursday, when interment will take place in Zion cemetery.

WM. ALLAN, License Inspector, South Grey.

PRICEVILLE.

Nothing much to report on this week, only mud, slush and such like.

We notice that some are plowing for the past few days down west of here, but not much done in this vicinity yet.

The sick people are beginning to get better. Whooping cough south from here is quite prevalent. A number of young children have it.

Mr. Watson of Egremont is cutting wood for some of the south line farmers for the last few days.

The Rev. Mr. Matheson gave his last sermon last Sunday on a series of sermons preached by him during the last six Sundays. His theme last Sunday was "Is Paradise and Heaven the same?" Mr. Matheson always bases his subjects on a firm foundation. Consequently, he proves his remarks during his discourse from a scriptural point of view.

The Presbyterian church choir is losing their good and faithful organist, nee Emma Conkey Mrs. Harrison is joining the Methodist church, of which her good husband is a faithful member, and although the church she served so faithfully for the last few years as organist regrets her removal from them, yet they congratulate the good people of Ebenezer church in being the gainers. Miss Edna Sackett of town is her successor, a young lady of excellent qualities as a musician and organist.

Mr. Arch. E. McDonald is shipping a car load of potatoes from Priceville to Saskatoon, Sask. Archie has a ranch up in that country and he thinks he can supply the inhabitants with the good potatoes grown in the vicinity of this town.

Potatoes are cheap and flour dear, in the land of some of our forefathers they cared well on potatoes and herring the most of the year, and Pat said potatoes and buttermilk were good "mae" at home, while Sandy said, "Potato and sgaddan (herring) were biadh gasta aig an tigh" or potatoes and herring were fine food at home. We hear a man who is worth thousands tell us not long ago that his father's family lived for months in the fall on potatoes and milk, and when there was no milk, on potatoes and salt. Why not now those that are depending on buying all their eatables—use potatoes with their bread, when they can get the best of potatoes for 40c. or 45c. We are sure that it would be far cheaper than giving $1 a hundred for flour, but sometimes pride and poverty don't agree, for they are bad comrades.

Cattle feed is also scarce and we notice a lot of cattle and horses crying to make a living by picking at the ground, but it's worse than living on potatoes and sgaddan, for the poor dumb animals that are compelled to pick a living or starve.

The funeral of the late Malcolm Beaton of Cork Hill, north of Markdale, took place on Tuesday, the 6th inst. Mr. Beaton, who was in his 82nd year, was one of the pioneers of the north line. Glenelg, coming there in the early part of the '50s, near Glenelg Centre. About 20 years ago he moved to the place where he ended his days. Mr. Beaton was a quiet, unobtrusive man in religion he was a Baptist, and in olden times led the singing in the old Gaelic language, during the pastorate of the late Rev. Robt. McInyre, some 60 years ago. Mr. Beaton was a native of Mull Scotland, and came to this country when a small boy. He leaves a widow and some sons and daughters to mourn his death. The Rev. Mr. Matheson of this town officiated at the grave. The attendance at the funeral was small, on account of bad roads. The remains were taken on the train to Priceville, where a number of old friends met to pay a last tribute of respect to an old fellow citizen.

Since writing this budget, the news came by wire of the death of Mrs. Thos. McDougall (Maggie Hooper), suddenly, on Sunday morning. We have no particulars of the cause of death, probably heart failure. The remains will be sent to Priceville from Engadine, Mich., and the funeral will likely be on Wednesday of this week. The remains will be taken to her old home, the residence of her brother, Angus Hooper, and will be interred in the cemetery on her old home. To the aged mother, the arrival of her dutiful daughter in her casket will be a sad and sorrowful one. The bereaved husband and little girl of six years will be left sad and lonely. Mrs. McDougall was well known a Durham, where she and her husband spent some years.
