The Red Cross Column

An incident which recently occurred in England shows the necessity of the greatest care in packing and labelling all materials intended as field comforts or hospital supplies. A sudden call was received by Col. Hodgetts, the Canadian Red Cross Commissioner in London for a large supply of bandages for immediate delivery in France. Twenty cases were at once rushed out, but on being opened at the hospital bases were found to contain not bandages but "aurses' aprons." These goods had been shipped from some western point. It can easily be seen that if such instances of incorrect labelling were all frequent the whole Red Cross hospital service would be completely disorganized.

The Australian Red Cross

Canadians perhaps will be interested to hear some details of Australia's Red Cross organization. Strange as it may seem, there was no branch of the Red Cross Society in the Commonwealth prior to the war. An Australian Red Cross Society was at once formed under the Presidency of Lady Fergusson, the wife of the Governor-General.

There is a central warehouse in the ballroom of the Government House at Melbourne with branch depots at Sydney, Adelaide and Perth. Five hundred thousand dollars was sent as a gift to the British Red Cross. An Australian Red Cross hospital was established at Netley, in addition to several hospital units on that continent. Gifts of motor ambulances have been a favorite method of Red Cross benevolence as in Canada. An average of 34,000 garments a week have been distributed throughout the English hospitals, and since the Dardanelles operations an immense quantity of field comforts and hospital supplies have been sent to the Australian troops in the Mediterranean. All in all the Australian Red Cross has done admirably during its one year of existence and has received official thanks from Queen Alexandra and the British Red Cross.

Prisoners of War in Germany

T. E. Steen, a Norwegian, is lecturing in England under the auspices of the Red Cross upon the treatment of prisoners of war in Germany. The Red Cross is the recognized international guardian of all prisoners of war and is at present actively engaged in supplementing the meagre German rations. Mr. Steen's statements show the need of public support in this matter. He states that after many difficulties he was allowed, in the company of German officials, to visit several prison camps.

The first visit was to the camp at Saussen, 22 miles from Berlin, where 15,500 prisoners were interned in huts. They then slept on mattresses, with two or three blankets each, but plank beds were being made. There was a hut used as a theatre, and in another some sculptors, one of them a pupil of Rodin, were carving monuments for dead comrades. The bread was made of rye, with 25 per cent. of potato flour. When well made it was nourishing and not bad, but the quality was not uniform, and when not kneaded properly the bread soon became mouldy. Each prisoner received three pounds every five days. The dinner was a kind of pottage made of salt cod and barley meal, insipid and not appetizing. Solid food was given pounded or stewed, so that it could be eaten with a spoon. Knives and forks not being allowed. Hospital arrangements left nothing to be desired.

At Blankenburg, six miles from Berlin, where some 140 officers were confined in a building well adapted for the purpose, he saw General Leman, the gallant defender of Liege, who was in bad health, and spoke of himself as being "condemned to death." He also saw General Gordon of the Gordon Highlanders, who was in ill health. His general impression was that there had been decided improvements in the last few months, and that the German authorities paid great attention to hygiene.

An officer who has just returned from a German camp said that, though conditions were much improved, the favorable descriptions given and the pictures shown by the lecturer did not apply to all the camps. Hygienic precautions had not prevented ravages of contagious diseases, and there were 2,500 deaths in one camp from typhus. The food was sometimes insufficient, and presents of biscuits and such things were useful. But present conditions were not those of one or two months ago. Epidemics of disease due to neglect were things of the past, and relatives of prisoners need not now have any anxiety.

HOLSTEIN.

The Rev. Dr. Marsh left his holidays on the 20th. He will take two weeks now and the remainder a little later. He is spending a few days in Springhill and Peterboro then will go to Rochester and New York.

The Rev. Mr. McCullough of Port Hope filled Dr. Marsh's pulpit very acceptably on Sunday, and will preach again next Sunday. The garden party at Fairbairn on August 19 was a grand success. Excellent supper and a short, spicy program in the church after supper. The proceeds were very satisfactory.

Mr. Hostetter left Holstein for Winnipeg on the 16th., and will likely be absent till Christmas, or longer.

Mr. Chas. Legge expects to go west in a few days.

The villagers much appreciate the effort of the Trustees to secure the Hydro-Electric for Holstein.

MILITARY CAMP AT THE EXHIBITION

Every branch of war activity to be vividly portrayed at Toronto Fair

Every branch of war activity to be seen in Europe today will be vividly portrayed at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto. Aeroplanes will land at the Military Camp after taking observations in mid-air; miniature battleships will be blown up in the lake; there will be bridge and sheltered trench building, armored cars, hospital autos, field ambulances with stretcher bearer sections, field dressing stations, field bakeries and cookeries, ammunition corps, observation masts, etc. The camp will be occupied by several hundred officers and men now training for overseas service at Niagara and other camps for the infantry, cavalry and artillery units.

FRUIT NEWS

Burbanks, Gages and Bradshaw Plums also Triumph Peaches are now at their best for canning. The thrifty House wife will put up more fruit this year than ever before. Plums with their numerous variety present a change for table dessert which is not possible with any other variety of fruit. Peaches, are especially favorable as a home canning and preserving fruit—easily preserved and delicious when served on the table. Grocers are quite willing to book orders ahead and householders should see their dealers in good time as this year is a home canning year if ever their was one.

TO THE PANAMA PACIFIC EXPOSITION VIA CANADIAN

At the present time a great many are planning their annual tour. Considerable numbers visit the popular California resorts while many prefer the unsurpassed resorts, palatial hotels and magnificent scenery of the Canadian Rockies. This year why not combine the two by a visit to the Panama Pacific Exposition?

Numerous people in comfortable circumstances, well able to afford a trip, have the mistaken idea that a journey of this nature is most expensive. This is not so; thanks to the modern railway facilities, an extensive trip, both interesting and educational, can be made with speed and comfort at a comparatively small cost.

Why not investigate? Those contemplating a trip of any nature will receive full information from any C.P.R. Agent, or write M. G. Murphy, District Passenger Agent, Toronto

PRICEVILLE.

The past week was fine, but on Saturday it turned wet again. We hope the weather man is mistaken in his prediction of a heavy storm.

The most of farmers will be busy this week with the harvest, and in many places it's a hard matter to handle.

This town is kept busy attending to the different wants of the people, lots going and coming all ways.

We see Mrs. John McArthur is spending some time at the old home here, visiting her son, Mr. Peter McArthur. She spent some weeks with her other son, Dr. John McArthur, at Markdale. Dr. Hugh McNeil of Chicago, who visited the old home at this place, presented the people of the vicinity of Priceville with five acres of ground for a cemetery, being the old homestead of his boyhood days. On Saturday, he gave a clear title on the property. This is a very generous act on the part of the Dr., which very few would do.

The Rev. Mr. Jones preached on Sunday in the Presbyterian church here. Mr. Jones is a good preacher, and an excellent tenor soloist, also.

Rev. Mr. Matheson will be back next Sunday and take charge of his own congregation.

Miss Charlotte McDonald, nurse, was called upon to attend a patient in Durham, lately.

Some near here only finished haying last week.

Mrs. Arrowsmith of Durham is visiting old neighbors in this vicinity. Her maiden name was Helen Earnet.

THE HANDY MAN.

I was talking to the 'handiest' man I know. If anything were the matter with any of the family belongings, from the automobile to the kitchen sink, he could find the trouble and remedy it, before the ordinary hired plumber or mechanic had even left the shop. In camp he was a perfect wonder at cooking and of course they never needed a carpenter for off jobs at his house.

"How did you ever learn to do so many kinds of work?" I inquired admiringly. "I have yet to hear of the job that you can't turn your hand to, besides being a great success in your own particular line of business, which doesn't require any manual dexterity at all. It I had a wireless apparatus or a flying machine and they needed tinkering, you are the first man I should come to."

The handiest man laughed. "And I suppose I should dash right in and try it," he admitted. "It's the way I was brought up. There were five of us boys at home on the farm and when mother and father wanted anything done they just picked out the nearest boy and said 'Sam,' or 'Joe,' or whoever it happened to be, you go and do that.' And it didn't make any difference whether we'd ever done it before or not, we had to go, and we did it, too, the very best we could.

"These parents of ours didn't have many rules about bringing us up, but there was one good and plain and everybody understood it—never to say the word 'can't'! If we did disobey and say it, the biggest, hardest job was saved for us next time, if mother had to send a mile to find us. I said I couldn't solder a tin pan once, I remember, and as a result I got a job of taking down and cleaning the next stovepipes. I learned my lesson right there and then.

"Puppies, I suppose, think 'can't' pretty hard when they are being thrown into the water, but they strike out and learn to swim just the same and it's the same way with boys and girls. Once they learn never to say 'can't,' they stop thinking it even, and by and by they've forgotten it entirely.

"I'm sure whatever success I've had in business has come from that ingrained habit of tackling whatever came along to be done and expecting to do it somehow; and the thing that's a constant surprise to me still is how few impossibilities there are in life after all."
