PIONEER PRESERVING

(By Peter McArthur)

A request made some weeks ago for the recipes used by the pioneers for preserving fruit without sugar has brought me replies from all parts of the Dominion. Although the methods differ slightly in detail they are practically the same. Of course many of our grandmothers dried their fruit, but their methods have already been described in the press this season, and are so simple that they should be within the capacity of any housewife who can boil water without burning it. Here is a recipe for preserving blackberries and plums that is guaranteed to keep them fresh for any reasonable length of time.

"Take a deep stone crock, one that holds five or six gallons, and fill it with plums or berries that are not too ripe. Place over them a board or plate with a weight on it, preferably a good smooth stone which is easily cleaned, and then fill the crock to overflowing with hard water. Be sure that the weight is heavy enough to keep the plums under the water or they will spoil. There will be a scum formed on top of the crock which must be removed before using the fruit which will be found as fresh as when put up. Rhubarb cut in lengths to fit the crock will keep the same way."

Another correspondent writes: "I have canned tomatoes, apples, rhubarb and plums without sugar and have had good success. After the fruit has been cleaned and prepared in the usual way fill the jars as full as possible, shaking the fruit down and packing it tightly; then place rubbers and tops on tightly; put as many jars as will fill the bottom of a wash boiler, with a board and heavy weight over them to hold them down. Pour in as much cold water as will cover the tops of the jars and boil twenty minutes after the water has come to a boil. Plums may take a little longer. They will be delicious and not spoiled as most fruit is that is put away with too much sugar."

Here is another recipe that is probably alright though I would not care to use it without consulting a pure food specialist. "Pick the fruit from the stalks and put into bottles or jars. Add one drachm of alum to four gallons of boiling water and let it stand until it is cold. Fill the bottles with this liquor, bung them tight, put them into a copper of cold water and heat to 176 degrees. Then tie them over with a bladder and seal them."

That would probably preserve the fruit but the very mention of alum puckers my mouth, and I doubt if fruit put up in this way would be relished. However, the housewives who think sugar is too dear to use this season need not be without fruit. Several to whom I have shown these recipes say they are going to try them anyway for it would be a luxury to have fresh blackberries and cream or fresh plums in the winter time.

FULL VALUE FRUIT

(By Peter McArthur)

The war is developing in many people a higher ideal of citizenship—a clearer conception of the fair-play that should prevail in all the business of the country. Even our government is preaching honesty, thrift and economy—work that was usually left to the pulpits. In addition to this, business organizations are adopting a more public-spirited attitude and giving more attention to the service they should render for the money they receive.

A notable example of this new spirit is being shown in the fruit industry of the country, which has now reached so large a proportion. The organizations having charge of the marketing of tender fruits (berries, currants, plums, peaches, etc.) are particularly anxious to place the work of marketing and distribution on a plane of patriotic public service. It is their aim to distribute their products so widely that there will be no waste and at the same time to place them on the market in such a way that the consumers shall have full value for their money. During the past few months I have had an opportunity of investigating the business of marketing plums and peaches. I have interviewed growers, dealers and retailers and have no hesitation in saying that except in a few centres where there are local ordinances that interfere with the business of marketing outside products it should be possible for consumers to get better service than they have ever had in the past. They should get good sound peaches and plums at a fair price and in order that they may be able to do so I am going to make them an unusual offer.

If you feel that you are being overcharged for peaches, plums or tender fruits kindly send the facts to me, stating price paid and date of making the purchase and the district from which fruit was secured. This will enable me to learn exactly what the price of fruit should have been where you bought at that particular time. If you have been overcharged I shall write and let you know so that we may expose everyone who is trying to make undue profits in this year when every man should be doing his part for the good of his stricken country.

The campaign to sell the fruits is the first big selling campaign to be organized within the empire since the outbreak of the war and it is desired to handle the business in such a way as to set an example to the rest of the empire. To this end everyone is asked to co-operate, from the grower to the consumer. The consumer in particular is requested to report all instances of over-charging so that the persons guilty of it may be exposed to public censure. Complaints will be investigated by Peter McArthur, Appin P.O., Ont.

Let us all get together and see that the fruit crop is marketed this season in a manner worthy of patriotic citizens of the empire who wish to avoid waste and to see to it that everyone gets full value for his money.

The membership contest now on in the Women's Institute is creating a deep interest. At the monthly meeting last week the attendance was unusually large and after general business a pleasing program was rendered.

The concert under the auspices of the Methodist Ladies' Aid last week was well patronized and the program was an excellent one. The home talent was assisted by Mrs. Peterson and Miss Georgina Barton of Dundalk, both of whom rendered very highly appreciated services. Mrs. Peterson has splendid elocutionary powers and Miss Barton is a pleasing soloist. Both responded generously to the very hearty encores after each number.

Mr. and Mrs. John Sloan met with an accident while driving to the Presbyterian service here on Sunday. Their horse took fright at a passing motorcycle and, upsetting the buggy, both occupants sustained some severe bruises in the mix-up. Only slight damage was done to the buggy and the horse was captured by the cycle rider.

Mr. Charley Pedlar, son of Mrs. S. Pedlar of this place, is a hustler in his line of business at Neepawa, Man. The Register of September 2 reports this season's sales so far, as 50 Ford cars, 101 Massey-Harris binders and 18 threshing outfits.

Mr. Cole's grandson, who visited him, has enlisted for overseas service and leaves for the front in a few days.

Your correspondent and wife had an enjoyable visit part of last week with our esteemed friends, Mr. and Mrs. John Boyd of Markdale. We were pleased to meet a number of their old friends, and also to see the marked improvement and apparent prosperity of the town since our last visit some years ago.
