A petition containing over 1100 signatures has been presented to the Owen Sound council asking that a vote be taken in January for the repeal of local option. This is said to be a very small margin over the required number. In the face of conditions as they exist in the province to-day, and the rapidly growing sentiment throughout the world in favor of temperance, it is hard to conceive of Owen Sound going back to the license system. Of course, a majority vote is all that's required there, but even with that we have no expectation of local option being defeated.

Rev. W. G. Reilly, rector of the Anglican church, Chatsworth, for the past 21 years, and for a number of years rural dean of Grey, has resigned his charge and moved to Thorndale, in the county of Middlesex. He preached his farewells at Chatsworth and St. Mark's church in Holland, on Sunday. In addition to his ministerial work, he took an active interest in matters pertaining to the well-being of the village and community. Since the death of the late George Blyth, he has been clerk of the village. He has also devoted time and energy to the public library, for 18 years being chairman of the board.

We have just received the information that Mrs. Philip Eva, Allan Park, died at 12 o'clock to-day.

A young man named Rea was up in police court at Owen Sound on a charge of attempted suicide by taking strychnine. He took the trouble to heart because his best girl went and married another fellow. Rea was committed for trial.

The publishers in the county of Bruce have decided to raise the price of subscription from $1.00 to $1.50 a year. After the first of May, 1916, all weekly papers in Bruce county will be $1.50 a year.

Dr. Ross, now in France, has been appointed by the militia department as head of the Canadian Overseas Hospital Corps. Hon. Dr. Jamieson offered his services for the position some time ago, and signified his willingness to resign the Speakership if appointed. Only one man would be preferred to Dr. Jamieson, and that was the present appointee.

Mr. Archibald Ferguson died very suddenly at the home of a friend in Owen Sound on Saturday night or Sunday morning. He went to Owen Sound on the late train Saturday, intending to go to Sault Ste. Marie next day. He appeared in good health, but was found dead in bed next morning. Heart failure was the cause. The remains were taken to his home at Mt. Forest, where interment took place yesterday.

We want a regular correspondent at all important points in the four adjacent townships, and we shall be pleased to hear from persons who are willing to undertake the task at places not now represented. To jot down the news items of the community would be good practice, and take only a short time each week. We want the news, and short items are better than longer ones in many cases. We want our correspondents to avoid anything liable to cause ill feeling in their communities. Call at our office, or write for supplies.

The roof will soon be on the new high school, and inside work will then go on independent of weather conditions. When finished, it will be quite a handsome structure, and we hope it will prove a valuable asset for the town. It is doubtful if it will long remain large enough to meet the growing educational requirements of the town and adjacent townships. The location will be all right when we get better accustomed to it. In any event, it would be hard to find anything better in town.

Dundalk citizens donated $3,001.07 on Trafalgar Day, or an average of nearly $4 per head of the population. The highest individual contribution was for $140, given by S. McCullough John Sinclair, E.G. Lucas and S. Bell followed with $100 each. The next contribution was by T. F. Lockhard, who gave $75. The next twelve names on the list were for $50 each. Then follows two $40 subscriptions, one $35; next come nine at $30 each, then fifteen at $25 each, two at $23 each, eleven at $20 each, three at $15 each, one at $12. Next we find sixty-four $10 contributions, one $9, one $7 and twenty-one of $5 each. A number of others have given from 50c. up to $4, making up a grand total of over $3,000, with more to follow.

PRESBYTERIAN ANNIVERSARY

The anniversary services were held in the Presbyterian church on Sunday, when appropriate and interesting sermons were preached both morning and evening by Dr. Farquharson, late pastor of the congregation. As the state of Mr. Farquharson's health caused him to resign his charge about two years ago, it was gratifying to all to see his improved condition, and his many friends in the congregation and community hope ere long to see him completely restored.

On Monday evening the regular annual tea-meeting was served and, as on former occasions, there was a good attendance, and all enjoyed the excellent menu so bountifully supplied by the ladies of the congregation.

About eight o'clock the auditorium of the church was comfortably filled when the chair was taken by the pastor, Mr. Whaley, and a fine program set in motion. The meeting was opened by Rev. Mr. Wylie of the Baptist church leading in prayer. The chairman followed with an address on "The Unexpected," containing humorous references to the commonplace things of the evening, to things, indeed, that would be easily overlooked by the ordinary observer, but handled by Mr. Whaley, they possessed a real living interest.

The musical part of the program was all good. The different choruses showed the choir to be in good form, and thoroughly efficient. Mrs. A. W. H. Lauder and Miss Ida Wilson sang a couple of solos; Messrs. Telford and Harding favored the audience with a well rendered duet; a duet by Misses Zeta Black and Ida Wilson was so appreciated that the audience forced them to respond with an encore. The quartette by Messrs. Telford, Harding, Ramage and McComb was a splendid number and was thoroughly enjoyed. The fine pipe organ was ably played by the efficient organist, Miss Margaret Hunter. The program was unique for a tea-meeting.

It was previously announced that only one address would be given, and that Dr. Farquharson would be the speaker. On rising, he started off in a reminiscent address, going back to the year 1888, when he was first in Durham, but only for a short time. His reference to some of the "men men" of the day, many of whom have since passed over to the great majority, was feeling in its character and touched, no doubt, a tender spot in the hearts of many. He spoke of the late Thomas Lauder and family, the late Dr. Gun and family, and other members who were then a power in the church. These have passed away, but now in 1915 we have a Thomas Lauder and family, a Dr. Gun and family, and things, after all, are not so much changed.

For his address proper, the war was a timely topic, but to talk of the war, he scarcely knew of new lines along which to proceed. Every member of the audience had the same sources of information as he had. The newspaper reports of a filtered censorship were available to all, but the whole truth was not allowed to reach us. He pointed out the causes of the war, and the difficulties of the belligerent nations to effect the results by diplomacy that the easy-chair critics thought they should have accomplished. He referred to bitterness still felt from the Balkan troubles of a few years ago, and the difficulties of adjustment so as to satisfy the cravings of the various factions. He deplored the unfair criticism too frequently indulged in against the governments and war offices. The Dardanelles expeditions, though not up to the desired effects expected by the Allies, was by no means a failure. The fighting on Gallipoli kept the Turks from Egypt and prevented the destruction that might be wrought elsewhere. The British Navy are still the watch-dogs of the sea and have assisted and still assist the Allies in carrying on trade, almost as usual, with the outside world.

The enemy, he remarked in conclusion, is fighting from within, and her easy access to the different fronts, will give her the advantage in the start. The fact of the enemy being cut off from the outside world necessarily means that she is growing weaker and weaker as time goes on, while the Allies are in a position to increase their fighting strength and will ultimately win, but how soon cannot easily be foretold.

A warm vote of thanks was tendered the speaker on motion of Inspector Campbell and Mr. John McGowan.

The proceeds amounted to $76.

OBITUARY

SAMUEL CALDWELL.

A telegram announcing the death of Mr. Samuel Caldwell, of Bethune, Sask., was received here on Thursday, and was sad intelligence to his relatives and friends in this locality.

The deceased was 50 years of age, being born in Adjala township in 1865. He was the youngest of three sons, and all came with their parents to Normanby in 1875.

He was twice married, first to Miss Ellen McNiece, who only lived a few months after marriage, and second to Miss Lizzie Fee, who survives, together with three children, the oldest being about ten years, and the youngest about six months.

He had been west on two or three occasions, and secured property, but did not move out with his family until four years ago last spring. He was a highly respected and industrious man, and was doing well, with bright hopes for the future. He enjoyed excellent health until taken down a few weeks ago with typhoid and pneumonia, which terminated his earthly career on Thursday last.

Besides his widow and three children, he has two surviving brothers, Rev. Harry Caldwell, of Waterford, and William C. Caldwell, of Normanby.

The remains were brought here for interment, which took place on Tuesday afternoon at Maplewood. The Chronicle extends sympathy to the mourning relatives.

HARRY VOLLETT.

Harry Vollett, son of Mr. Aaron Vollett of Normanby, died on Tuesday night from pneumonia. The young man was about 32 years of age, but an invalid from infancy, and never able to walk. Notwithstanding his infirmity, he enjoyed life, was fond of company, and industrious at his home, where he spent much time in knitting and other work. He had a quiet horse and drove out frequently to town, to fairs and other gatherings. He will be much missed in the home.

MRS. SCHRAMM.

Mrs. Schramm died this morning at the home of her daughter, Miss Carmount, at the age of 80 years. Interment will be made Saturday.

HARRIET AMELIA LUNNEY.

Notice has reached us of the death of Harriet Amelia Lunney, B. C., on the 14th of October, of Harriet Amelia, sixth daughter of the late James Lunney of Bentinck, and wife of Thomas R. Astleford, a resident at one time of Drayton. The deceased was 48 years of age, and besides her husband, two sons and four daughters survive. She leaves also three sisters and one brother, in Ontario, and two sisters in the west. Mrs. James Brunt of Bentinck is her youngest sister.

Sanford Lindsay and his wife were arraigned at Peterboro on a charge of murder in connection with the death of their 14-year-old daughter. They were arrested after a pursuit of over 150 miles.

Walkerton contributed $2,100 to Trafalgar Day appeal. The highest individual subscription was from John Rowland, Sr., for $60, the next highest on the list was from Mrs. David Robertson, and David Robertson, who gave $50 each. A few gave $25, but the bulk of the contributors gave smaller sums. They fell short of the $3,000 mark they thought to reach.
