FLESHERTON.

Mr. John Gilchrist, one of the early settlers in Artemesia, and a highly respected old gentleman. passed away on Saturday in his 85th year, at his late home at Cevlon, where he has resided for more than 25 years. The funeral took place to Flesherton cemetery on Monday, and was largely attended. Service was conducted at the house by the deceased's pastor, was born in the county Fermanagh, Ireland, in 1831. In 1850 he many a day. came to Canada and lived Bowmanville till 1865, when he came to Artemesia and settled near this village, farming for many years. He was twice married, his first wife being Mrs. Hannah McNally of Holland, and his second wife, who survives, being Miss Mary Quigg of Toronto, sister of Mr. P. Quigg of this place. Three sons, Andrew and Thomas of Ceylon, and William of North Dakota, children of his first marriage, survive him, together with one aged sister, Mrs. Weir, of Singhampton. Relatives who attended the funeral from a distance were: Andrew Bentham of Toronto, William, John and Robert Weir, George Wilson and son Alex., Singhampton, and Mr. and Mrs. Noble Wilson, Proton.

A quiet wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hanley, 8th concession, Artemesia, on Tuesday, November 2, when their daughter, Lillian Pearl, was married to Mr. Walter Akitt of Rock Mills. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. C. Kerr of this place. After the wedding breakfast the young couple left or their honeymoon, visiting Toronto, Niagara Falls and other points.

NOVEMBER

Novembers tone moved me more than Linda's passion. He was a man fighting it out against his own heart. I knew well the power of attraction Linda possessed, but somehow I had not guessed how it had worked on Joe. I had, indeed, been right in so far that he had not dreamed of aspiring to her: Rev. Mr. McVicar. Mr. Gilchrist nevertheless the episode would mean pain and loss to him, I feared, for

> Once more I heard him. "Don't you think I'll be proud every hour I have to live that you was so good to me, Miss Linda? I shan't never forget it."

"Joe, I think I hate you!" she cried, And then the quick tap of her footsteps told us she had run into the house. There was absolute silence for a minute or two. At length Joe sighed heavily and with the slow laborious movement of weakness went to his room.

When all seemed safe Petersham and I stole out of hiding like thieves, and, though we exchanged no word, Petersham was swearing violently under his breath until he shut his office door.

Rather to my surprise November Joe came out for awhile after supper, because he said it was my last evening at Kalmacks. Neither he nor Linda gave any sign that anything unusual had passed between them. Indeed, we were gay enough, and we had Charley Paul in to sing us some French-Canadian songs.

After saying goodby as well as good night to Linda and her father I followed Joe to his room.

"I won't wake you up in the morning, November," I said. "There's nothing like rest and sleep to put you on your legs again."

"I've been trying that cure, Mr. Quaritch, and I won't be long behind you." "Oh, where are you going to?"

I'm kind o' homesick like, and that's the truth."

"But how about Mr. Petersham's wish to give you a start in his business in New York or Montreal?"

"I'm not the kind of a guy for a city, Mr. Quaritch. All the chaps 'd get turning round to stare at the poor wild fella, and I'd sure be scairt to sleep in one of them up in the blue sky houses anyway!" He laughed.

November Joe had no idea how far I could read into his fable.

"And what did the otter say?" "Huh, nothing! He just went down his slide into the lake and got chasin' fish, and I guess he soon forgot he missed seein' the city all right."

"And how about you, Joe?" "I guess I'll get chasin' fish, too, Mr. Quaritch."

When I arrived at the depot at Priamsville in the morning, to my surprise I found November Joe there before me. "Why, Joe!" I exclaimed, "you're not

RAISE THINGS

It was no trouble for our forefathers in this country to raise things. They had a new and opulent soil on which to raise them. The crudest preparation of that soil, the most careless treatment of the plants, could not prevent a harvest. Things are different now. The old methods were all right then, but today they mean poverty-still poorer soil and impoverished tillers of it. But there are ways by which the soils reduced by generations ahead of us can be restored to usefulness. And there are ways by which this restoration can be accomplished while the land pays for it. Before we give up any land that was once fertile let us look into these things to see whether it cannot be made productive again and at the same time raise things to pay the cost.-National Stockman and Farmer.

WAR FARMING.

Isles. The shortage of farm labor in England is causing increasing unrest in agricultural circles.

hands is not so serious as the lack of horses. The lack of male labor is being filled so far as possible by the use of female and child labor.

Much of the lighter field work also is being done by women, and in the market gardening districts they may be seen in "To my shack on Charley's brook. | large numbers at such tasks as weed- ished from the king's table daily the ing and setting plants. On some of the smaller holdings they have even undertaken the rougher work of plowing and cultivating.

Some of the agricultural colleges have organized short courses of instruction for women who are willing to enter farm work. The course of instruction includes milking, dairy work, live stock, poultry, preparation of land, use of tools, planting and cultivation. "But you would soon be used to city | The course reviews eight hours' work daily for fourteen days.

Wages throughout the farming districts have advanced sharply, the average increase being about $1 weekly.

A Cleanly Currycomb.

At first glance the accompanying cut might be mistaken for a nest of cake pans, but it is designed for use in the stable instead of the kitchen, for it is the latest thing in currycombs, recently patented by an Iowa genius. It consists of a series of flexible loops of corrugated metal strips, one fitting inside the other, and all joined at one side by a metal binder, which also acts as a handle. The greatest advantage claimed for this idea is that there are no lodging places for the germ laden dust which it extracts from the animal's hair, and any such accumulation must pass right through it, and for the particular horse owner it offers opportunities for further precautions against contamination by washing in water. This device sousca around in some soapy water would be thoroughly cleansed.

GROWING LATE CABBAGE.

Many farmers do not have a supply of late cabbage for winter because they neglect starting plants in midsummer for the fall crop. Cabbage is one of the easiest vegetables to grow in the garden. A large patch should be set out late each summer, and the surplus may be sold or used for winter green poultry food. It is also very easy to keep through the winter.

Cabbage seed for the late crop may be sown any time in July, sowing in a rather moist and shady place. By mixing some sand with the soil inclined to be heavy the young plants At a young people's meeting in will come out of the soil in a better shape for transplanting. The crop may be planted in the truck patch where an early crop of beans or peas has been growing. Replow the ground before planting and fertilize well with decomposed cow or other stable manure. Work the soil down with a harrow and disk to a very fine and firm seed bed. Have the rows from three last week visiting the former's to four feet apart to admit of cultivation with horse tools. As soon as a rain comes after the soil has been prepared set the young plants in rows about two feet apart, watering for the first two or three days, or until the roots begin to take hold of the new soil. Begin cultivation almost as soon ALMINITUDE LA

Lesson VII.-Fourth Quarter, For Nov. 14, 1915.

Text of the Lesson, Dan. i, 8-20-Memory Verse, 15-Golden Text, I Cor. xvi, 13-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

of writing a lesson on Daniel, even though it be what is called a temperance lesson, for we shall find much more in it than appears on the surface. He is mentioned in Ezek xiv, 14, 20. with Noah and Job as noted for their righteousness. He is mentioned by the Lord Jesus in Matt. xxiv, 15, in connection with the great tribulation at the end of this age immediately preceding the return of the Lord in His glory, to which Daniel also refers saw a little captive maid glorifying the God of Israel under very trying circumstances, and in this lesson we see four captive young men glorifying the God of Israel under difficulties. The Lord permitted this oppression and captivity because of the sin of Judah and gave Jehoiakim and some of his people and some of the vessels In some cases the scarcity of farm of the house of God into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, and among the captives were these four young men of royal blood, who were chosen to stand in the king's palace and to be taught the learning and the burg on Thursday and constock it is likely that male labor will be might stand before the king (verses

They were to have a three years' course of preparation for their calling, and as to their food they were noursame meat and wine which he ate and drank. At least that was the provision made for them. It was humiliating for an Israelite to be a captive. It was humiliating to have their beautiful Jewish names, each of which had in them a suggestion of the true God of Jehovah, changed to names suggestive of idols (verses 6, 7). But this they could bear without any sin on their part. Our Lord Jesus Christ Himself was taken prisoner, bound and led by His captors as they pleased. They also called Him a devil and Beelzebub and said that He was beside Himself. So in these two particulars they were foreshadowing the sufferings of Christ.

When we suffer in these ways we have fellowship with Him in His sufferings. When it came to eating and drinking that which had been offered to idols Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself, and no doubt he had prayed to his God about this. He asked permission of the prince of the eunuchs that he and his friends might be excused from receiving the food from the king's table and be given very plain fare, which had not passed that way, asking that they might be proved for ten days. The same God who permitted them thus far to suffer for His sake now gave them favor in the sight of this man, and he consented to prove them. At the end of ten days they were fairer and fatter in flesh than those who did eat the portion of the king's meat, so it was kept from them, and they were given the plain fare, which had not been offered to idols. See Deut. xxxii, 37, 38. If this is a temperance lesson the same principle applies to food as to drink. To my mind it is a lesson on the necessity of keeping one's self wholly for God in every particular and of being willing to submit cheerfully to difficult circumstances for His sake. In chapter x, 2, 3, Daniel says that for three weeks he did without pleasant bread or flesh or wine, while he mourned and waited upon God for a special purpose, implying that he did not always see the necessity of denying himself food that could have the blessing of God. As to the sin of intemperance or self indulgence in any matter, the teaching of scripture is very plain, and the filthiness and beastliness of strong drink could scarcely be more vividly described or condemned than in Isa. v. 11, 12, 22, 23; xxviii, 7, 8. The only remedy is in Christ Jesus, who alone can forgive sin and give the sinner a new nature and such a purpose to keep one's self wholly for Him as

Daniel had. Though he stood before the earthly king in a place of honor, he stood more consciously before the King of kings, for whose sake he in his old age went to the lion's den rather than dishonor him by any fear of man, for whose sake his three friends went to the fiery furnace rather than bow down to any image which man might set up. No doubt Daniel and his friends were prayerfully diligent in their Chaldean studies, but God gave them knowledge and skill in all learning and wisdom, and He gave Daniel understanding in all visions and dreams, so that these young men were ten times better than all the magicians and astrologers in the whole realm (verses 17, 20). On three different occasions related in this book, when all the wisdom of Babylon's wise men failed, Daniel did not fail once because his God never failed him. Any believer who is willing to pay the price by self denial and indifference to what others say or think of you and a purpose of heart to see no one but Jesus only and covet only His approval may know the power of God as others cannot. The whole cost of salvation fell upon Jesus Christ, and we receive freely what He so fully provided and paid for. But to be His faithful witnesses we must have the devotion, seif denial and continuance of De
