

WILD ANIMAL LIFE in JASPER NATIONAL PARK

Famous for its ever-fascinating natural beauty, Jasper National Park has other claims to distinction. It is the largest wild animal sanctuary in the world. It is marvellously rich in plant life, its streams and lakes abound in fish, and a great variety of birds are found there. The grandeur of its mountains—there are over 100 lofty peaks in its area—the sheen of its glaciers, the glory of its woodlands and its valleys, the flashing brightness of its waters, all combine in allurements of eye and mind, not found elsewhere in Canada.

All the main animal families of this country are found in Jasper National Park. The list of them reads like a section of a work on natural history. There are the Big Horn Mountain Sheep, Mountain Goats, Wolves (black and grey), Coyotes, Foxes, Mule Deer, Moose, Caribou, Elk, Lynx, Cougars—or as many call them Mountain Lions,—Beaver, Martlets, Musk-Rats, Squirrels, Rabbits, Porcupines, Weasels, Ermines, Minks, Martens, Fishers, Otters, and Grizzly, Black and Cinnamon Bears.

Some of these have grown accustomed to mankind and accept its presence without fear. Hence black and brown, or cinnamon bears, do not hesitate to come near the lodge and the camps in search of dainties which add to the variety of the diet nature provides for them. Deer, Elk, Beaver, Rabbits and Porcupines are also frequent visitors to points where they are readily observable, or are permanent residents in places easily reached by those who do not care about hunting, but are yet interested in animal life.

With all this prodigality of wild animal life, it is assuring to know that no poisonous snakes or reptiles have ever been found within Jasper Park, and that the greater part of the area is almost entirely free from mosquitos and insect pests.

The bird life of Jasper National Park is another attraction that every visitor appreciates. No less than seventy different species of birds have so far been recognized.

Outside of the Park confines there is plenty of hunting for those to whom the chase is as the wine of life. There are many trails to the areas where big game abounds, and the hunters who scorn "easy killing" may have all the thrills and excitement they desire. Experienced guides are always available for hunting and exploring parties, or for those who simply desire to wander leisurely through a never-ending succession of scenic beauties.

With its majestic mountains, Mount Edith Cavell being the highest (11,033 feet) its numerous glaciers, its beautiful stretches of woodland, valley, streams and lakes, and its unrivalled, wild animal life, Jasper National Park is an alluring prospect alike for the seeker for health, the searcher for recreation, the angler or the hunter of big game.

A LITTLE OF THIS AND THAT
If the government really wishes to be helpful it might issue a bulletin on dodging taxes.
A man is old when the giggling of sweet young ladies gives him a large rectangular pain.
Getting up in the world is just a delightful business of getting up a little later in the morning.
It may have been divinity that shaped our end in the old days, but now it's vanity and shoe styles.
Country folk visit you when you have a case of sickness. Town folk wait until you have a case of hootch.
Most any woman will agree that one religion is as good as another but with dressmakers, that's different.

If you believe story books, getting married solves all the difficulties there are.
The wife doesn't hold his arm because she loves him, but because that is the easiest way to stop him when she sees a shop window worth while.
And a scratching hen only digs up the ancient animosity of a neighborhood.
When a man likes the country and his wife likes the city they compromise and live in the city.
What puzzles kiddies is why they have to wash when they are only going to bed.

Life would be pretty dull if it were not for the things we wish we could afford to own.
And when the worm turns he meets either a chicken or a fisherman.
A husband is a man who expects $85 worth of petting for $1.65 worth of spending money.
A man thinks he is a great help around the house when he cleans his own safety razor.
Almost any system of government will work if the people will.
A man isn't old until he begins to wonder dismally what the world is coming to.

Still, the house with the largest car parked in front of it may be the one with the biggest mortgage on it.
In the old days the draw bridge gave you entrance to a man's fire-side; now it's auction bridge.
You can fix the temper of metal by hot water and frequently it will work in the case of a husband.
"Ah, well," sighed the philosopher, "he who steals my jit steals trash."
It is strange that the sailors who proudly boast of having "a girl in every port" do not discover that the girl usually has "a lover on every ship."—Widow.

ANTIPATHIES OF GREAT MEN
Shakespeare disliked a forced abstinence from victuals.
Lord Chesterfield hated to have the chair upon which he was just sitting down, withdrawn from under him.
The Iron Duke and Lord Roberts would grow quite uneasy if shut up in the same room with a mad dog.
Schiller would never, if he could avoid it, write with a broken nib.
Carlyle never liked being alluded to as a "blithering idiot."
Keats would go out of his way to avoid a lungtic with a knife.

FADS AND FANCIES
How nice it would be if people could "forget" all their rascality. Few are anxious to have people "forget" their good deeds.
Some who are not politicians "forget" to pay their subscriptions. Even an honest witness may "forget" what he isn't asked about.
Last we "forget," we take the opportunity of asking delinquents to pay up.
Flattering a woman before marriage is a matter of taste and discretion. Flattering her afterwards is a matter of absolute necessity and safety. Don't "forget" this.
