Glenelg and Pricerville

(Our own correspondent.)

The weather has been cool during the past week. It is said there was frost one night about the middle of the week, but not much damage done.

Haying will soon be on now and will be general about the 12th.

The good roads are progressing well towards the west from Pricerville.

A garden party will be held at the Presbyterian Church, Pricerville, on the 17th of July, when a good time is expected, as Pricerville and the surrounding vicinity are never behind in giving a good program.

The Rev. Mr. Jones will be away to Owen Sound next Sunday but will have a substitute in his place during his absence.

Rev. and Mrs. Jones and family, and Mrs. Jones, Sr., gave us a pleasant visit on Thursday of last week at Edge Hill.

Statute labor was the general work during the past week. The residents of the back roads must make good roads for themselves or do without them.

We attended two funerals on Monday, July 2. First, Mrs. John McVicar in the forenoon, which was largely attended by all classes of the populace. Mrs. McVicar was a long sufferer from an incurable ailment.

She was a woman of kind disposition, always ready to help those in need, and her large and comfortable house was often a shelter for needy travellers. The funeral obsequies were very solemn, her pastor, Rev. Father McGeoy, speaking comforting words concerning the departed. Her remains were laid to rest in the fine cemetery close by and St. John's acre was made the richer by another of the faithful. The deceased, a good wife, and mother, and an obliging neighbor, was born and raised in Glenelg, being a daughter of the late Alex. McDonald.

At Pricerville, the funeral of Mrs. Alex. Livingstone in the afternoon, was also largely attended, as Mrs. Livingstone, whose name was Annie McArthur, had friends and relatives in the different townships of Grey. She was a sufferer since last winter, but her death was not expected so soon. Her pastor, the Rev. Mr. Jones preached the funeral sermon. Her remains were laid in the old cemetery at Pricerville, where many of her father's family are laid away. Mrs. Livingstone was about 74 years of age and came to the Durham Road Glenelg, when only four years of age. Six of her nearest friends acted as pall-bearers.
