The Good Roads work is going merrily on under the supervision of Mr. Thomas Nichol and has progressed West as far as the McInnis hill. The roller and roadmaking machinery is at present working opposite John Nichol's.

Court was held in the village last week. Judge Sutherland presiding. The action is one for damages, and was brought against the County by George A. Watson, miller, of this village, for alleged damages done his property when the County Good Roads were put through here last year. W. H. Wright of Owen Sound appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Middlebro of the same city for the defendant. Judgment was reserved. Major McGillivray was in Toronto over the week-end.

George Ostrander, son of Andrew Ostrander, a former resident of this village, died last Friday at his home near Swinton Park after a long illness from tubercular trouble. Mr. Ostrander, who was about 40 years of age, was injured nine years ago while logging and his death can be directly attributed to this. He leaves a widow, but no family. His father and one brother also survive, living in the vicinity of Swinton Park. The funeral was held Sunday at Salem cemetery. The Rev. Mr. Curran of the Methodist Church officiating.

There was a garden party at Salem on Tuesday evening of this week at which a good crowd and good time is reported. The Salem people have had better luck with their dates than the residents of Balsam Valley, who have tried twice for a picnic, but picked wet days on both occasions. The last date picked was Monday evening. It is likely they will give it at least one more trial, as the people of that neighborhood seem bound to have at least one picnic this summer.
