SALT FOR LIVE STOCK

Considered Necessary for Practically All Farm Animals.

Be Careful Not to Salt Too Heavily-Live Stock Grow Unthrifty Without It-Milking in Holland-Kindness and Cleanliness Strictly Insisted Upon.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Salt the cattle, salt the sheep, and salt the horses. Why do we practice it? You stockmen have been doing it all your life, and your fathers did so before you. But why did they do it? No doubt it was observed that the stock liked to lick anything that had a salty favor—a fish cask, or soil where salt had been spilled or a natural salt deposit. Like all our animal feeding practices, the feeding of salt has developed through years of observation, until it is now regularly practiced by all the best herdsmen and feeders.

Salt. For Animals a Necessity.

Animals must get salt from some source if their bodies are to function with full efficiency. If no salt is available to the animal through the food medium or minerals given, the digestion is impaired. Large quantities of salt are as harmful in practice as no salt at all. But a little is absolutely essential in that it supplies the chlorine so necessary in forming a minute part (the hydrochloric acid portion) of the digestive fluid. The quantity of salt given to farm animals should not exceed one-half ounce per day for fully grown horses and cattle, small animals in propor-

Do Not Salt Stock Too Heavily.

Many people make the mistake of salting the stock heavily once a month during the summer, and forgetting to do it at all during the winter period. The live stock kept by people who neglect this work usually develops the appearance of neglect. The use of blocks of rock salt, in troughs or mangers erected in either the stable, yard or field is a good practice that will pay good returns for the expense or effort. Just remember that the stock must have salt from some source, and that the salt that you give them supplies the chlorine essential in the formation of hydrochloric acid in the animals digestive system.

Animals that have been kept without salt for a year become very unthrifty, and animals that are given an overdose of salt do not thrive. Half an ounce a day is about right. It is not a food, but it helps to make the food materials available during the process of digestion .- L. Stevenson, Director of Extension. O.A.C., Guelph.

MILKING IN HOLLAND.

Milkers Carefully Trained to be Clean, Kind and Thorough. In Denmark and Holland the milk-joys the privilege of being allowed to 7 12tf milk such cows as are in the drying off period, although it is done under the severe supervision of his father, who fears that his son or pupil may spoil the animal. I remember well my first lessons in milking on our Holland farm, and how proud I was of being allowed to milk. Before jumping on the stall with my bucket and stool (the Holland stalls are some 2 1/2 to 3 feet above the regular stable floor) the cow was given a little warning of my coming by a couple of caressing words, then the bucket was put between the knees, the bottom on the inside of my right wooden shoe. The two tront teats were milked first, and if one of the teats milked out sooner than the other I was inclined to take one of the back teats. This was not allowed because it might result in an unusual development and decreased stimulation of one of the quarters. The two front teats had to be empty before going over to the back teats. These were the preliminary instructions. After being able to milk several drying off cows I was allowed to follow with the second class. This was another important step, and believe it cost me still more sweat than the first lessons, for now I had to milk rather quickly and with the full hand, as stripping of the teats between thumb and forefinger was never allowed on our farm. Aside from the rather quick milking, we were not allowed to make strippers of our cows. Still there was a third last mentioned date the said executor | class, and that was the milking of will proceed to distribute the assets | fresh cows and heifers. My father was always milking these, because he had the idea that nobody else but himself could break them. The milking of the fresh cows, thrice a day, was not such a hard job, but to milk those stubborn heifers and never lose one's temper was a difficult job. Instead of milking first two the front quarters empty and afterwards the rear quarters, with the heifer a front and a rear quarter were first milked and afterwards the other two opposite quarters. This was done for the purpose of obtaining an equal development of all four quarters in the future cow. We were then called fully skilled in the milking science, but let me add that we had to receive a good many side instructions, such as not to talk or be noisy during milking. never to be rough to any animal, never to lose one's temper, to milk always one's own cow and in the same order and at the same hours, and so
