MULCH STRAWBERRIES

Will Assure Larger Yields of Bigger Berries.

See Marsh Hay or Clean Straw—Apply in Fall When Ground is Frozen—Renovating Old Patches—Winter Conditions for Bees—Why Plant Trees?

Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

The practice of applying a coating of straw, strawy manure, or marsh hay over the strawberry bed after permanent frost has set in and the ground is solid, has proved of great value. This mulch prevents alternate freezing and thawing in the spring, and heaving of the plants, both of which cause at times heavy loss. It also protects the plants if the snow-fall is light, and is even more valuable when pulled between the rows in the early spring. This conserves moisture and more especially keeps the fruit clean. Driving rains splash the fruit with dirt, particularly on sandy land, which will much lessen the value of the crate or shipment into which these berries are put. A box of dirty berries will ruin the appearance of a whole crate.

Marsh Hay or Clean Straw Best Mulch.

Marsh hay or clean, medium length, straw are the best materials to use. Green manure is not good because of the large number of weed seeds it contains. No material which will pack over the plants is to be recommended. As two to three inches is sufficient mulch, and a heavy coating may cause heating in the spring before removal, it is not advisable to use more. About two tons per acre is required.

When it is desired to hold the plants back in the spring to prevent blossom killing by late frosts, the mulch is best applied on top of the first heavy snow fall. It should be removed in all cases before the plants start growth, as after that time much damage may be done by smothering. After harvest the mulch is removed, burned, or, if suitable, can be stacked in a protected place for use another year.

Renovating an Old Patch.

In renovating an old patch it is not advisable to burn the mulch and mowed leaves on the patch. These should be raked off and burned outside the patch, to avoid injury to the crowns of the plants.

No rows should be grown between the rows in a strawberry bed for cover crop or protective purposes. This provides too much competition for the plants in moisture and food at a time when the grower wants them to fill up the rows for the following year's fruiting.—D. A. Kimball, O. A. C., Guelph.

Winter Conditions for Bees.

To winter bees successfully the colonies must have:
A sufficient supply of proper food;
A good, fertile queen;
Plenty of good workers;
Sufficient protection from cold and wind.

While the winter food, either honey or sugar, should have been in the hives by October 1, it may still be given to the bees. Protection is afforded either by packing properly or insulating the hives outdoors, or by transferring them to a good cellar where at least five conditions can be maintained: darkness, freedom from disturbance, a temperature of from 44 to 48 degrees Fahrenheit, proper ventilation and freedom from moisture.

A dark place is best, as bees usually fly to windows, doors or lamps, and do not return to their hives. Freedom from disturbance includes not only absence of noise but absence of jarring and vibration. An even, reasonable temperature must be maintained in order that the bees may not break their winter cluster. Proper ventilation is required in order to prevent accumulation of moisture and to aid in maintaining the needed temperature as well as adequate supplies of air. Dryness is required or the bee-bread combs will mold, some of the honey will ferment and the bees will be uneasy.

Why Plant Trees?

Trees add value to property.
Trees cool the air in summer and radiate warmth in winter.
Trees help keep the air pure for man and the lower animals.
Trees provide homes for thousands of birds that help man in his fight against injurious insects.
Trees provide homes for many animals that are useful to men for food and clothing.
Trees help man in his fight for better sanitation.
Trees supply a large part of all the fuel in the world.
Trees give us wood, and wood provides us with building material, furniture, implements, utensils, tools, and other useful things in great variety.
Trees provide one of the most striking and permanent forms of beauty.
Trees improve the climate and conserve soil and water.
Trees provide a great variety of miscellaneous, useful products.—The Maritime Farmer.

Where the walls join the floor of the stable, be certain that the cement is rounded; not like a "quarter-round" but like a "cove." It will help to keep the barn clean. Do not neglect this precaution because it may be slightly inconvenient for the person doing the cement work; remember the inconvenience it will be daily not to have the rounded corner.

Uncle Ab says: A community that doesn't pull together will get as much work done as a balky team.

ROMANTIC STORY THIS WEEK AT VETERANS' STAR THEATRE

One of England's Best Movie Stories, "Tilly of Bloomsbury," Here To-morrow and Saturday Night.

When Ian Hay wrote "Happy-Go-Lucky," he probably did not realize that his novel, in play form and rechristened "Tilly of Bloomsbury," was destined to become one of the biggest drawing cards on the English-speaking stage. City audiences are familiar with the version of "Tilly" as presented in the spoken drama, in many instances received with pleasure the screen version which is to be the attraction at the Veterans' Star Theatre to-morrow and Saturday nights.

In obtaining the film rights of Mr. Hay's famous story, G. B. Samuelson, the noted English producer, has put one "over" on his American contemporaries, for it is doubtful if a better movie theme than "Tilly of Bloomsbury" has ever been obtainable, and it is fortunate, too, for audiences on this side of the Atlantic, that the production was made on the actual ground that evolves the action of the original story—London streets and by-ways—all the familiar spots and touches of local color are preserved for us.

The plot unravels itself quickly, and the action is fast. Tilly is the daughter of a Bloomsbury boarding house mistress, and her romance with "Dicky" Mainwaring, member of one of the best titled families, forms the plot of the play. The eventual bridging of the social gulf between the two lovers by the ingenuity and loveliness of Tilly is both mid-th-provoking and touching in pathos.

Rare judgment has been shown in the selection of Edna Best for the role of "Tilly." Miss Best is heralded as one of England's most talented actresses. In type she answers the requirements for the part of the Bloomsbury milliner's assistant perfectly. The part of "Dicky" Mainwaring, the persistent and generous lover, is ably handled by Harry Kendall.

Tom Reynolds, who will be remembered for his admirable work in "The Game of Life," acquits himself admirably, his every appearance within the focus of the camera being the signal for laughter. His present characterization, that of Samuel Stillbottle, the bailiff's man, affords him one of the best comedy parts of his career.

Movie fans in Durham will not miss this superb English picture, especially those who saw "The Game of Life," "Me and My Gal," and "Squibs Wins the Calcutta Sweep."

WOMEN FROM FORTY TO FIFTY

Will Be Interested in Mrs. Thompson's Recovery by Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Winnipeg, Man.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me good in every way. I was very weak and run-down and had certain troubles that women of my age are likely to have. I did not like to go to the doctor so I took the Vegetable Compound and am still taking it right along. I recommend it to my friends and to any one I know who is not feeling well."—Mrs. THOMPSON, 808 Lizzie St., Winnipeg, Man.

When women who are between the ages of forty-five and fifty-five are beset with such annoying symptoms as nervousness, irritability, melancholia and heat flashes, which produce headaches, dizziness, or a sense of suffocation, they should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is especially adapted to help women through this crisis. It is prepared from roots and herbs and contains no harmful drugs or narcotics. This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from roots and herbs, has for forty years proved its value in such cases. Women everywhere bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Women who suffer should write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Cobourg, Ontario, for a free copy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women." C
